Although this man has had a wife for 9 years (one) and three fine children, he is the loneliest person in town. He is sour, sullen and makes no effort whatever to extend himself. When someone reaches out to him, he's a million miles away. Everything bounces off.

I have yet to hear him give a compliment. He's always the first one with the bad news. Of course he is infallible—never made a mistake in his entire life. His only pleasure seems to be pointing out the mistakes of others. If he gets into an argument he will turn the library upside down to prove he is right. Of course he doesn't have a friend in the world. His children tolerate him but there is no love. As for me, I'm stuck.

So when people tell you how lonely they are, just remember, there's a reason for everything. Sign Me—No Mystery Here

Dear No: Too bad you two didn't get some counselling years ago. Your marriage sounds like a disaster area. Is your home an armed camp, and I feel very sorry for all of you.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the woman who thinks she has a problem because her husband doesn't put down the toilet seat. If this is the worst thing the poor girl has to contend with in her life, she's lucky, and herself lucky.

I am 32, hitched for the second time, and couldn't be happier. When Lee and I married I became the instant mother of his three sons. Not one of the four puts down the toilet seat and I couldn't care less.

The reason there are so many sicker patients, migraine headache sufferers and pain misery in the world is that people don't know what's important enough to get upset over. I learned and found—Peace.

Dear Peace: Isn't it beautiful?

CONFIDENTIAL to Binny Talks: Sorry, I don't buy your approach. If money talks, it should be apologizing for being in short supply at a time when most people need it so desperately.

Sabia Criticizes Ad Stereotypes

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Ukrainian women are given back decision-making on the question of abortion, the issue will never be solved, Laura Sabia, chairman of the Ontario Status of Women Council, said Saturday.

She said a women's conference that would have allowed the federal government, particularly Justice Minister Otto Lang, to mete out justice uniformly regarding abortions.

Mrs. Sabia was also critical of advertising which places women in stereotypes. She said in one advertisement, a woman needs her husband to read out the contents of a dog food can.

She said she will know stereotypes no longer apply only to women after she sees an advertisement for "cross-your-heart socks."

Inside Postal Workers' President Predicts Long Strike

Walter Yateman, president of Belleville postal workers in Belleville and Brighton predicts a "long and bitter summer strike" by his union.

Inside workers and the federal treasury board have been negotiating "in good faith" since October, the inside workers and outside letter carriers were divorced from each other.

"We have been without a contract since last fall when the council of postal unions was dissolved," said Mr. Yateman.

The union president predicted the talks will be put into the conciliation process by the end of this month and he said, "we would be legally able to strike on the days following receipt of the conciliator's report."

"It seems inevitable there will be a strike . . . though that is my personal opinion by what I see locally and not necessarily the national opinion," said Mr. Yateman. "The thought of strike scares the hell out of me."

He said strike is a strong possibility due to the distance between union demands and treasury board offers.

"So far, the treasury board has said no to everything and has offered an hourly raise of $1.15 over a 33-month contract," he said.

"Unless the negotiating committee puts some progress out of the board, the general membership will be militant and bring a great deal of pressure to the bargaining committee by the end of May," he said.

Inside workers currently earn an average of $4.60 an hour.

Wages are not a central issue in the negotiations, said Mr. Yateman.

"The union is more concerned with gaining the right to negotiate technological change.

"The union is more concerned with earning the right to negotiate technological change and its effects on the workers . . . particularly in reference to the modern and mechanical mail sorting," he said.

Vandals Cost Parks Board

Vandalism may not take root any more readily in parks.

But it exists. As does the mutual frustration. The talk specifies about it — by a common theme. Vandalism may become an inspiration, circumstance dead ends or destructiveness may prompt fresh outbreaks.

But this year, for the first time, Belleville parks department is keeping a detailed record of the numbers and material costs of depredations to facilities.

The accumulation may put prove anything aside from financial losses. But then again, it could reveal specific problem areas — and help with any future research into vandalism in parks, says parks director Lloyd Syer.

He is careless about estimating the dimension of the problem, acknowledging the increase in vandalism is an accepted social phenomenon.

Mr. Syer is not certain that parks are getting their share across — today are any more prone to vandalism than more areas — schools, industries, even private homes.

Any increase could also be due to the expansion of facilities. There are now more parks than ever and the city's greenbelt continues to add new acreage.

But there are instances too obvious to miss the eye:

— Young trees, already four or five feet high, wrenched from the ground, even in winter.

— Telephones adjacent to beach frontages for emergencies, repeatedly ripped out.

— Chainsaw-proof facilities continually damaged so that new mirrors and pegs for boards are a thing of the past.

— Flags repeatedly torn down.

Worst, A costly example is installed as a centrepiece in a riverside green strip, was cut from its concrete base. The department has purchased another pedestal in the area but about where it would be installed.

The department has learned from experience and has made changes in remedy problems by designing installations that are "attractive in appearance and not an vandal-proof as possible," says Mr. Syer.

Although he admits, there is no such thing as a totally vandal-proof installation.

He has proof of his point: waste containers, so heavy the design was copied by other municipalities, have been destroyed. Park benches constructed to the ground have been uprooted — concrete bases and all.

Some are insisted incidents. Others, deliberate attempts. In one night, trees were uprooted in three different parks.

Trends also play a part in damage. There's one park which posses an ongoing problem. Young motorcyclists repeatedly use it for sport, cutting up the grass and creating chaos.

"With these things they have to have some place to go and if something prevents it they're the ones that get stuck," said Mr. Syer.

One municipality which has decided to solve acutely the same problem by building a track for motorcycle enthusiasts found the sports-men considered to prefer the pavement.

"We're not the only ones to suffer. I wouldn't call it cooling us all quite a bit of money, when you add it all side consideration — added the parks director.

And the solution, if any?

"I don't know except they can do anything about it is our education system to help to foil the problem. That I think where they can do something about it is in the schools."

Bus Driver Won't Talk

Ann Scanlon doesn't think her story is worth telling.

But a Belleville first was won her driver bid, as she took to the wheel.

Ann Scanlon added "We're supposed to be equal now so it really isn't a story."

Mary Lou Bart, chairman of the Belleville Transit Commission, thinks differently.

"I wanted a little publicity on this. I would like to have more women. They're easier to handle and they probably wouldn't get fired," she said.

"We're paying her the same money the men make, too."

Prone to Vandalism

Trees are among items prone to vandalism in city parks. City parks department has a nursery where its workers like John Bonter (left) and Doug McDermott care for plantlings before new trees are sufficiently mature for removal to parks.

Law Enforcement Week

Police Go on Public Display

By ROBIN CRAIG
Staff Reporter

Remember the neighborhood cop years ago — always ready to chat, lend a hand or give advice?

The neighborhood cop hasn't changed but his system of operation has — patrol cars, high-frequency radios, short-term systems in short, he's become mechanized.

Police across Canada will attempt to re-legate the personal aspect into police work as they mark Law Enforcement Week next week (May 11-17).

The theme is "Police Protect People" and one of the highlights will be a display at the Quinte Mall May 15-17 involving the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Belleville City Police Department, Canadian National Railway Police, military police and the Ontario Provincial police.

"We want to bring into focus that the police cannot function without the aid of people," said City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie in an interview.

"With the mechanization of the police force, the personal contact has been lost," continued Chief Crosbie. "We want to regain that personal touch with the people."

Lapel buttons and automobile windshield stickers proclaiming the theme will be distributed.

And included in spot radio announcements will be a 45 R.P.M. stereo recording of 55 seconds entitled "That's Our Policeman". Lyrics, words and music by Canadian songwriter Bibby Gaylord and sung by himself (nicknamed—The Pied Piper) and a group of youngsters.

Some primary school classes have scheduled visits to the city police department and Sgt. Robert Hall, safety officer, will continue with his in-school safety sessions.

Centennial Secondary School students will enjoy a rap session at noon on Tuesday with Sgt. Harry Bowen, head of the city's youth branch and Cpl. Douglas Rutledge of the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Constable Hall, a member of city police and Chief Crosbie have already spoken to Bayridge Public Relations and Quinte Christian Club respectively on Monday.

Inspector Ralph Blatchford of city police will speak to 4-B students at Centennial Monday and to Belleville Collegiate on Tuesday.

In addition, city police have been assisting the Belleville Fire Department in short, in-house mechanics.

Grape Boycott Planned

Organizers will have one more planning session before May 16 when a picket of local grocery stores will take place. Pickets will hand out pamphlets explaining the problems faced by the fruit pickers and will ask consumers to boycott fruits not picked by the United Farm Workers.

Sister Rose Marie said local student bodies will be approached to hand out pamphlets. "We have to awaken our students to the injustices that exist," she said during a telephone interview Wednesday.

The Quinte District Labor Council and the National Farmers Union are working in conjunction with the college to arrange the boycott.

Three Belleville and two Toronto youths have been charged with the theft of an undetermined number of automobile tires from the warehouse of Goodwin Tire Sales on Bleecker Ave. here.

NDP Candidate Receives $200 from Labor Council

The Quinte District Labor Council Tuesday voted to donate $200 to the New Democratic Party pre-election campaign of Carmen McLauchlan.

Mr. McLauchlan has already begun making a sweep of the constituency in his door-to-door campaign. The labor council pledge is to defray expenses with the understanding that another donation will be made at election time, as well.

In supporting the motion, council treasurer Jack Tuzes said, "elections aren't won solely on money — but they are not held freely."

The council also voted to make a contribution similar to the NDP candidate in Prince Edward County.

Member Gilles Tuesday night were asked to contact their members to form a Quinte group to attend the rally and also to raise union funds to offset the cost of the buses.

"Finding people to fill the buses isn't going to be any problem," said Gord Young, union representative of the Canadian General Electric Plant Trenton. "We've got several hundred unemployed unionists in the area."

Also discussed Doug Sword will attend a government session in the morning when a formal provincial labor bill will be presented outlining the problems of unemployment in the province and how they affect the working class. Following that meeting, he said he will join the rally.

Labor Council Votes For Buses to Rally

The Quinte District Labor Council will charter buses to a provincial conference in a mass rally at Queen's Park May 21 to call to the attention of the provincial government problems facing the laborer.

Spectators Make Mural Lighting Vary

OTTAWA (CP)—Reflecting the glass-tube-and-electronic world of scientists, an 18-foot kinetic light mural stands in the main lobby of the recently-completed Statistics Canada tower here.

The 216-sq.m work designed by Toronto sculptor Mary Mary Ellen Bartley Dimple is made of hundreds beads of colored plexiglass illuminated by fluorescent light varying, at intensity according to the noise and movement of spectators.

A program of music composed by Mr. Blanzé, integrated with the moving light patterns, complements the color and light.

The public works department commissioned the sculpture as well as a $20,000 "electric" sculpture by Martin Hirschberg, another Toronto artist, to embellish new government buildings.

Mr. Hirschberg's creation will be assembled in the foyer of a $17-million research and health protection centre being built for the federal health department.

Acrylic tubes with light sources controlled by an electric programmer will rise and twist from walls of angled mirrors. The programmer will be activated whenever people pass near the walk.

Efficiency Pays Off

CLEVELAND (AP) Dr. H. Samuel Thenebouse, professor of electrical engineering at Case Western Reserve University, says an air-conditioner that is electrically efficient can save enough in power in purchase in a few years, compared with operating costs of one less efficient.

Cops and Social Workers Patrol Together in Surrey

SURREY, B.C. (CP) — The cops and the social workers have fallen in love in this suburban municipality 26 miles southeast of Vancouver.

The unlikely romance began about a year ago when Bayside Village, supervisor of family counselling for Surrey, started family court pilot project, suggested it was to the mutual advantage of policemen and social workers to get together to deal with juvenile and family problems.

The result, six months later, was inauguration of the mobile family counselor cooperative, putting a counselor in a police car five nights a week to provide immediate help for families in crisis and free policemen for more crime prevention work.

On week nights, counselors work from 4 p.m. to midnight; on Fridays and Saturdays, the heavy crisis nights, they work from 7 p.m. to 3 a.m.

Each of the four—Lyn Pelkie, Solomon Swaine, Les Lancaster and Alard Mobbs—works the roving shift one week a month, always serving with the same RCMP shift to establish a continuing personal relationship.

The counselor and an accompanying officer roam the densely-populated Whalley area of the municipality, responding to emergency calls selected through the "pull-in effect" of the police dispatcher, who has had years of experience, said Sgt. Keith Slim of the Surrey detachment.

The policemen enters the house first while the counsellor stays in the car. Once the situation is calmed, the constable suggests that the dispatcher talk to a worker from the family court.

The counsellor comes in, listens to both sides of the dispute and tries to assess the family's needs—counselling, legal help or child care services. The constable says that if there are indications of more violence, but usually no leaves and the counsellor calls the dispatcher in an hour or so, asking to be picked up.

The family is referred to a daytime counsellor at the family court who can do a more detailed assessment of their problems and work out long-term help, if there is an immediate and continuing problem of physical danger, the counsellor can remove the mother or children from the home and arrange temporary housing and money.

The counsellor tells the family about the resources open to them through social agencies and formal agreements, legal aid, recreation and juvenile counselling.

The program unique in Canada, concentrates on domestic disputes, the most longstanding of both police and social agency casebreak.

"Most of our domestic calls because they are both dangerous and unresolvable—likely to occur again and again.

"A domestic dispute is potentially the most dangerous situation a constable can go into," Sgt. Slim said. "By far the greatest proportion of RCMP members killed and injured get it in domestic disputes or from mental patients—and the two are often related."

Sgt. Slim and Corporal Ross Treverton of the detachment's youth detail said all a police man can do is a domestic dispute is try not to get killed, advise the combatants of their legal rights and arrest someone if an assault has taken place.

While police and social workers agree that domestic disputes are burdensome, they usually agree on little else except that they don't trust one other.

"We were a little leery when this project started," Sgt. Slim said. "Most of us didn't have much of an understanding of what social workers do and most contacts we had had showed us they didn't have much understanding or appreciation of our role.

"But it's worked out great."

Said Cpl. Townsend. "We found out they could be effective in helping cool domestic disputes and in dealing with juveniles whom, since they also have the power of probation officers, they can apprehend while we can't."

Counsellor Lyn Pelkie said her attitude toward the police has changed.

"I always thought police had redneck attitudes toward kids," she said. "But they do a great job and often are skilled in human relations."

Aluminum Sculling Craft

The world's first aluminum sculling craft is tried out on the Thames in London. The single seater boat is designed for oarsmen weighing up to 154 pounds and has a one-piece hull of pre-painted aluminum. The craft cost 30 per cent more than a wooden boat and designed by Don Ellis of Redditch in the English Midlands. (CP Photo)

Karelia Heart Attack Rate World's Highest

JOENSUU, Finland (AP) — Twice Karelians and his neighbors live at statistical exposit. Their customarily highest the highest heart-attack incidence rate in the world.

Karjinsen's doctor had one at 48, his father died of an attack and his brother-in-law is recovering from one that came at 47. The charts show Karjinsen, 45, is 20 times more susceptible than a man living on the Greek island of Crete.

Karjinsen looks trim and is fat in the thick forest each weekend hunting rabbits but the statistical tables insist that he is a candidate for a heart attack 15 years earlier than a man like him in the United States.

He and his neighbors have petitioned the Finnish government to do something to control heart disease in the area called North Karelia, and a unique World Health Organization (WHO) program is under way to change some of the accepted notions about the basic causes of arteriosclerosis.

A farming aspect about life-style in the sparsely settled area of the Finnish-Soviet border is that its men are not overweight, get plenty of exercise and seem to escape from the stress situations that have been blamed for the rise in coronary disease.

Yet 39 per cent of the adult males say they have had chest pains.

"If you ask a fellow anywhere else if he has experienced them, he'll answer yes or no," said Dr. Pekka Puska, who is in charge of the WHO program. "In North Karelia, if the answer isn't yes, they'll tell you, not yet."

Seventy-five per cent of the deaths among the 180,000 population of the region come from coronary or related ailments.

Figures in a WHO study showed that if only one male between the ages of 30 and 64 out of 1,000 men in Sotia, Bulgaria, has a heart attack each year, 21 do in a town of a few thousand like Tarnaland, about 20 miles east of Joensuu.

"I've had two go before they were 30," said Dr. Heikki Silfasen. "One of the great shocks you get in coming from outside the area, as I did, is making school checkups, and finding out how many young children are already fat."

When the five-year program began five years ago, doctors made a profile of the kind of men who were dying.

Most residents are dairy farmers or lumberjacks, lean, muscular men with substantially less body fat than a comparable group of American railway workers.

Their personality, as a general rule, was far from the standard, high-stat type - that a hard-driving, young executive might, personify. Karelians not only have a reputation for hospitality and generousness but live in a natural setting so relaxing that a U.S. doctor might prescribe it for a vacation for a cardiac patient.

But the cholesterol level in the Karelians' blood was so high that WHO found that men with the lowest levels in the community are equal to the highest 19 per cent in Japan.

Their diet was extremely rich in fat and low in vegetables. With dairy products plentiful, many men drank two quarts of milk a day. The meat staple was a fatty sausage and meals came rich with butter and pastries.

Most of the men smoked and there was considerable hypertension. These factors - diet, smoking and high blood pressure - became the main target areas of the program.

Dr. Vaino Sahalaen, the medical officer, who is 48 and has already had a heart attack, said:

"The important thing for us is not campaigns and posters, although we do that. We take the initiative. We have hypertension registers now. We don't wait for people to come to us. We're trying to change a way of life at its root."

Besides a program to teach Karelian women how to lower the cholesterol level in their family's diet, the authorities were able to convince the three local dairies to produce more low-fat milk.

Bakers have co-operated by reducing sugar and butter content and the community's largest sausage manufacturer agreed - after he had a heart attack himself - to develop a low-fat substitute for the spicy sausage.

Cigarette advertising was banned, as was smoking in all public places. Private offices and stores were urged to forbid it. Among men, during the program period, smoking dropped down from 35 to 45 per cent.

Hypertension has been lowered 14 points on an average throughout the male population.

Karjinsen, a taxi driver, knows that at 45 he is in a zone of deep danger. Two-thirds of the heart attacks here come in middle age where the majority in the United States escape. But he was sitting in the office of Dr. Jarmo Viitanen, where he had gone for a check of his hypertension, and talked about himself:

"We've made an effort on the diet at home, and my blood cholesterol level is better now. I take the high blood pressure medicine, and that's improved.

"But I'm still smoking. Yes, I know how foolish it is, and the doctor talks to me in pretty tough terms about it. God knows everybody talks enough about it. I got nagged everywhere. I have an interest in dying, but it's hard to stop smoking."

Dr. Puska says there won't be any concrete way to measure changes until the completion of the five-year program. But he said, "We are not just interested in the heart-attack rate because we have shown we're reducing the risk factors."

Dr. Puska has suggested the program may indicate that physical activity is not a significant factor in preventing heart disease.

There is an effort to control behavior of the men as sedentary Karelians with that of active neighbors. Dr. Puska believes that if good physical condition generally helps recovery from an initial attack, it neither prevents nor attenuates others.

B.C. Publishers Find Going Tough

VANCOUVER (CP)—Despite formidable odds, a book publishing industry is being established in British Columbia.

From virtually nothing three years ago, it has grown to a 15-million industry, with more than 20 companies actively publishing in the province.

In 1965, Mitchell Press was the only active publisher in B.C. introducing about five new titles a year. Last year, more than 160 new titles were published on subjects ranging from history, cooking and how-to books to poetry and yoga.

However, many of the companies have discovered the advantages in being located west of the Canadian centre.

The B.C. Publishers Group, a year old, outlined some of the problems in a brief submitted to the provincial government.

First, the brief said, printing costs here are 15 per cent higher than in Ontario and in Quebec and 35 per cent higher than in the United States.

It attributed the difference to higher labor costs and the need to ship all book-binding material and most of the paper from the east.

Second, it said, Canadian library wholesalers are based in Toronto, with the result that B.C. book sellers have to make a return trip to Ontario or to the U.S. before selling to local library shelves. The National Library of Canada, for example, purchases all its books through an American wholesaler, it said.

Third, the brief said, book publishers generally are unable to raise working capital through normal commercial markets. Banks, for instance, rarely accept bound books as collateral since they are not considered real assets.

Finally, the brief noted 79 per cent of the Canadian market is in Ontario and Quebec.

The problem of access to capital was a problem shared by all Canadian publishers until recently.

B.C. publishers have not been so fortunate.

"We're not looking for a handout," said Jack James, who divides his time between co-ordinating programs for the B.C. Publishers Group and running his own Sono-Omand Press in North Vancouver.

"We are an industry first and foremost, and are only looking for the kind of assistance which will give us an even start with other Canadian and foreign publishers."

Karl Siegler, business manager of Talonbooks in Vancouver, also said aid could be justified on basic needs.

"This is a province which claims to listen to the little guy and secondary industry. Mr. Siegler said, "and at this point we're as little as anybody."

The B.C. Publishers Group has approached the provincial government for aid on three fronts.

It has asked for a meeting with Evan Hall, the provincial secretary whose department administers the B.C. Cultural Fund, established in 1967 to allocate money earned on capital of $15 million—nearly $1 million a year.

Publishers generally have been denied grants from the Cultural Fund because they are not registered as non-profit-making organizations.

Talonbooks, which publishes almost solely Canadian literature, is seeking grants from the Cultural Fund because of the cultural orientation of its books; it has sole rights to playwright Gorge Ryga, the English rights to Michael Tremblay and has published plays by Eric Nicol and David Freeman.

In its brief to Gary Lauk, minister of industrial and economic development, the Publishers Group recommended implementation of an aid program similar to that in Ontario, under which about $3 million in working capital has been made available to 11 Ontario publishers.

Finally, the Publishers Group has urged the department of education to adopt a more responsible book purchasing policy.

"A good 80 per cent of the textbooks in our public schools are American," said James, secretary-treasurer of the Publishers Group said.

With provincial aid programs and a move by the secretary of state in Ottawa to control foreign ownership, most publishers are confident the industry will thrive in B.C.

"People in B.C. are more regionally conscious," said Allan Vichert, production manager with J.J. Douglas Ltd. of North Vancouver.

"They will read more books about their own province than people in Ontario will," he said.

Russian Village Is Famous For Folk Tale Miniature

PALEKH, U.S.S.R. (AP)—This ancient village of 4,000 is a place, an art form and a way of life for a select few. To many collectors, its name is synonymous with a colorful little box gleaming on the coffee table.

Palekh is world renowned for its miniature portrayals of old Russian folk tales, styled in vivid colors on black lacquered papier-mache.

The Russians themselves see little of it—80 per cent is exported for the even more beautiful commodity of foreign currency.

The Soviets are proud to show it off within limits. The technique has been jealously guarded for years. Recently, however, the government brought in foreign journalists to help celebrate Palekh's 30th anniversary.

Art in Palekh is far older than half a century. This was the home of many of the best icon painters before the Bolsheviks banned religious endeavors.

The Russians admit the heritage but the official line is that Palekh really bloomed when the icon painters turned to ancient folk legends for their subject matter after the 1917 revolution.

The Palekh style is purely decorative, more whimsical than the socialist scenes which royalty, art is inspire the people to work harder for communism.

Palekh box or pin costs from $30 to $70, depending upon the artist and the intricacy of the work. Most items sell for under three figures.

About 120 artists, half of them women, work in the studio at the edge of the village, 220 miles northeast of Moscow. They produce about 30 to 40 items a year, far above the volume of the old time masters who used to last and pray before addressing the paint brush.

They work in tempera, an emulsion from the yolk of an egg, to produce the bright colors characteristic of their work. They use brushes made from squirrel hair, a goose feather to brush off the face of the finished work and a wolf's tooth to polish the gold leaf lines.

It takes five years to become a member of the Artcleal Painting Art Co-operative. Some students get bored and go out on their own.

"They seldom succeed, because they lose touch with their roots and the rural setting from which we get our inspiration," said one Palekh master.

The work is so straining that many of the artists wear glasses and often use a magnifying glass to work.

This spherical hump on the head is purely the result of the camera angle, as two men work on an industrial gas turbine at the St. Cloud, Minn., plant of Turbodyne Corporation. The men are putting the finishing touches in part of the compressor section of a turbine for a southern California utility company.

Dutch Consider Chain Of Wind-run Turbines

AMSTERDAM (Reuter) — Dutch scientists are working on a giant scheme to generate "clean" energy by harnessing the fierce winds of the North Sea.

The plans envisage a long chain of wind turbines, like colossal windmills, stretching along the coast or on artificial islands set at sea.

The scheme would please Dutch environmentalists who fiercely oppose building more nuclear power plants because of the risk of pollution and damage to wildlife.

The government's industrial council for economy, one of the groups studying alternative sources of energy, says a power station with 150 wind-driven turbines could produce as much electricity as the 650-megawatt nuclear power station near Flushing, south Holland.

"Technically, it would be possible to start the project within six years," said a spokesman. "But we are evaluating the cost aspects," said Prof. Willem van Gool, chairman of the government steering committee on energy.

Experts estimate that generating electricity by wind turbines would probably cost about 10 per cent more than by conventional means because of the new technology required.

But the scientists hope that large-scale production would eventually cut costs substantially.

The marine power station would probably consist of about 50 units, each with three wind turbines built on steel towers 225 feet high. The units would be driven by three huge rotor blades about 164 feet long.

The units, constructed on platforms rather like oil rigs, would be placed about half a mile apart.

The scientists believe that the output of wind turbines at sea would be considerably greater than along the coast or inland, where the wind would be less strong. Only 29 turbines would be needed out at sea to produce 580 megawatts, but the same output would take 85 along the coast or 125 inland.

To master the problem of uncertain wind conditions the so-called seawills might be linked with conventional power stations supplying the main grid.

Another possibility under study is a complex system of transforming the electricity from the turbines into hydrogen by water electrolysis.

The hydrogen could then be brought ashore by pipeline or in tankers. This would be cheaper than laying a network of electric cables.

The Dutch government is studying an interim report by the economy council before deciding to give the go-ahead for more detailed research.

The report noted that the scheme would have virtually no environmental drawbacks.

On To Phone

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — South Africa, a nation of almost 25 million people, had 1.3 million telephones installed throughout the country by the end of March, post office officials told Parliament.

and would help reduce Holland's dependence on oil for its energy needs.

Prof. van Gool said the turbine towers would not present a hazard to shipping. "They would be no more dangerous than oil rigs at present in the North Sea."

The only drawback of the scheme likely to cause an outcry is the fact that the turbines would ruin television reception over neighboring Ireland areas.

For centuries, Holland has used windmills to grind corn and drive pumps draining the vast areas of the country lying below sea level.

More than 1,000 of the old windmills are operating and the oil crisis has aroused new interest in the use of small mills for providing cheap electricity for domestic use.

Extend Subway

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Swedish engineers are forced to blast underground stations out of solid granite as they extend Stockholm's subway to the city suburbs. They are in the city suburbs. They are surprised to find these "cave" stations cost one-fifth as much as regular stations built with prestressed concrete.

Bowman Combs Referee Lloyd Gilmour

Rene Robert's Sizzler Sinks Canadiens

BUFFALO (CP) — Coach Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadiens was wondering what he thought was the turning point in Tuesday night's fifth game of the Stanley Cup semi-final won by Buffalo Sabres 3-1 in overtime.

"We had it under control until the penalty to Pitchbrough," Bowman said, referring to a tripping call by referee Lloyd Gilmour against Montreal centre Doug Risebrough at 13:02 of the third period.

"I heard Lloyd Gilmour say on the radio he wouldn't call a penalty in the neutral zone."

At that point, Scotty Morrison, National Hockey League referee-in-chief, effigged from the officials' dressing room. Bowman spotted him and the two became embroiled in a three-minute shooting match.

Morrison, who has heard Bowman criticize his officials before, told the Montreal coach he would like to see him say the officials had done a good job when the Canadiens lost.

Bowman at one point accused Morris of not liking him and at one stage there was a reference made to a recent Bowman statement that referee Wally Harris did not like the Montreal coach.

The argument drew a small crowd of fans, reporters and policemen and even some players peeked out of their dressing rooms to see what was going on.

Finally, Morrison wheeled away and Bowman brushed past the group of waiting reporters and said: "That's your referee-in-chief."

If is the second time in this best-of-seven semi-final series that Bowman has berated the work of the officials. In the second game he was visibly upset over the work of Ron Wicks.

The Canadiens were leading Tuesday's game after Jimmy Roberts third-period goal when Robert's rebound brought out the Buffalo power play which tied the score 1-1 on Craig Ramsay's second goal of the game.

The Sabres then pounded a strong attack and had many chances to win in regulation time.

"Nobody likes to go into overtime," said Rene Robert who scored the winning goal at 1:28 of the overtime period. "I was like to get it over quickly."

The win gave the Sabres a 3-2 lead in the series which resumes Thursday in Montreal.

Besides Ramsay's goals, the Sabres got scores from Pret Stanfield and Gil Perreault. Jacques Lemaire, Yvan Cournoyer, Risebrough and Roberts scored for Montreal.

The Sabres had a 45-29 edge in shots, including a 6-1 edge in the overtime period.

Coach Floyd Smith of the Sabres admitted that goalie Ken Dryden of Montreal was worried for a while."

On the winning goal, Robert stationed himself in the slot and Danny Gare drew Serge Savard off a faceoff and fired the puck past the Montreal goalie from close range.

"I was just trying to shoot on the net," Robert said. "Dryden (Dryden) didn't even move. He didn't have time. They were screening him."

The overtime win was the Sabres' second over Montreal by this series. They won the first game here on Danny Gare's overtime goal at 6:42.

Both Smith and Robert agreed Tuesday's win was vital for the Sabres after losing the previous two games in Montreal by 7-2 and 5-3 scores.

"We had to get going," Robert said. "It was a good win for us. We needed it."

"We took two beatings," Robert said. "It was good for us to get beaten real bad. It makes you aren't the only team on the ice. We worked hard when we got back. It paid off."

Robert—We Worked Hard and It Paid

Proposal Upsets NHL

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League reacted vehemently Tuesday to a proposal that it be restructured as leagues face intervention by the federal government if they fail to reach agreement with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) on compensation for junior players who turn professional.

Roland Mercier, vice-president and junior hockey chairman of the CAHA, made the proposal while announcing the national junior championships—the Memorial Cup—in Kitchener-Ont.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said he had written a letter to Gordon Juckes, executive-director of the CAHA, to protest Mercier's proposal and to determine whether the statements reflected the views of the CAHA or the personal opinions of the official.

We consider it a very unfriendly act" Campbell said. Mercier said his suggestion arose from the fact neither the NHL nor the rival World Hockey Association has renewed its pre-amateur agreement with the CAHA. The agreement under which the CAHA received payment for each junior player drafted, expired last month.

The NHL has expressed its willingness to renew the agreement provided the rival WHA does the same. But so far the WHA has balked.

The WHA has already said it would not enter a new agreement under the current setup, but would prefer dealing directly with individual players.

It currently owes the CAHA $125,000, while the NHL has paid for all players it obtained in last year's amateur draft.

Mercier said his proposal, which would be effect after the federal government to tax the leagues for playing in it, would be used only as a "last resort."

He said he had submitted his proposal to Robert Grenier, deputy health minister, at a meeting in Toronto last October. Mercier said the CAHA could charge a team $100,000 for any player permits to play on Canadian ice.

Campbell said the NHL had paid the CAHA's development fund "many thousands of dollars" for players it received in the draft and he described Mercier's proposal as not in the best interests of the CAHA.

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Centre Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers and right wing Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens were named Tuesday by Sporting News as the top players in the National Hockey League for 1974-75.

Hockey Player Jailed For Smuggling Hashish

HERNING, Denmark (AP) — Gregory Wentz, a 28-year-old American who played ice hockey with a Danish team, was sentenced to five years in prison Tuesday after he was arrested in what police described as one of the largest smuggling rings.

He was arrested last December before a game for Gladsaxe, a team he joined in October.

Wentz was one of several hockey players and race drivers arrested in what police described as one of the largest smuggling rings.

Eye Injuries Cause Alarm

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto eye doctor, alarmed at the increasing number of eye injuries in hockey that cause blindness, has undertaken a research program he hopes will prevent or reduce such damage.

Dr. Tom Pashby said Tuesday the study is by no means complete, but I think its important to publish some of it because the annual meeting of the Canadian amateur Hockey Association is not going ahead. I'm hoping they'll give this problem some consideration."

The ophthalmologist, a regular around Maple Leaf Gardens for the Toronto Maple Leafs in 1932, said that as of May 1, 1975, there had been 181 eye injuries reported to him, 121 had been classified as sticks, 48 by pucks," he said.

He admits the statistics are incomplete, "but I s ider them reliable because I expect doctors to reply if they'd dealt with serious injuries."

Last year the Canadian Ophthalmological Society asked him to study eye injuries in hockey and he produced some disturbing figures concerning the 1973-74 season. Blindness had been inflicted in 24 eyes. Of 361 injuries reported by 75 of 535 doctors polled, 178 were caused by sticks and 66 by pucks. In about half the cases, the players were under 16.

Bernie Parent Aiming For Early Fishing Trip

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — Goalie Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers can't wait until the hockey season is over so he can get in some sports fishing.

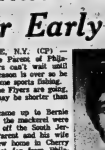
The way the Flyers are going, the season could be shorter than he thinks.

A friend came up to Bernie and told him the mackerel were really biting off the South Jersey coast. Parent and his wife live in a new home in Cherry Hill, N.J., not far from Philadelphia.

"I hope to win the cup and 20 grand and we'll go for some mackerel," Parent replied with a grin.

The Flyers are overwhelming favorites to end the season tonight for New York Islanders and advance into the National Hockey League playoff finals against either Montreal or Buffalo.

The chances of playoff survival for the Islanders were dimmed considerably Sunday night when Parent returned to the nets and blanked New York 1-0.



BERNIE PARENT

He didn't have to work hard, making only what he considered to be three difficult saves, but he said it was a good test for his ailing right knee.

Parent missed the first two games of the Islander series when he was struck on the knee by a puck during a pre-game warmup.

The Flyers lead the Islanders 3-0 in the best-of-seven semi-final and they can complete their second series sweep in the playoffs tonight in fourth game at the Nassau Coliseum.

Right now, there is little support anywhere for any repeat of the Islanders' defeat of Pittsburgh.

The Islanders were down 2-0 against the Penguins in the quarter-finals but rebounded and won the next four games and the series. Only Toronto Maple Leafs had ever done that in NHL history—the 1942 version against Detroit Red Wings in the Stanley Cup final.

But the Flyers are not the Penguins. The Islanders were fifth in capitalize on a weak Pittsburgh defence. With Parent in the net, the Flyer defence is the best in the league.

Th Flyers have not been content to fi 22 games—10 shutouts and two ties—since March 8. In winning their opening quarter-finals in four games, they limited Toronto to only 9 goals and an average of 24 shots a game.

Islanders goalie Glenn Resch, who stopped 39 shots Sunday, is confident the Islanders still can come back.

"Sure, a little bit of hope is involved, a little bit of luck. You gotta get the breaks. But you never know. No one thought we could do it against Pittsburgh. So we'll just have to wait and see."

Indians One Away

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Jim Peters scored early in the second period Tuesday night to stifle a New Haven comeback and give Springfield Indians a 4-2 win over the Nighthawks in an Eastern Hockey League playoff game.

The Indians, who lead the final series 3-1, could wrap up the title with a victory tonight in Springfield.

Peters scored his sixth playoff goal at 1:29 of the middle period, just 22 seconds after Richard Mulhern had put New Haven even at 2-2.

Ron Lewis and Phil Hoene scored in a first period marred by 14 penalties to send the Indians into a 2-0 advantage.

But Rick Kessell scored a power-play goal late in the second period to bring the Nighthawks within one goal of the Indians' lead.

After Peters provided the pushed tally, Tom Cassidy scored at 8:06 of the second period to give the Indians an insurance goal.

The third period was scoreless.

Dennis Abgrall picked up three assists to lead Springfield Indians' goalie Rick Charron stopped 32 shots and Nighthawk netminder Brian Holdernens turned aside 38.

Aeros Stick to Basics While Stopping Quebec

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Aeros have learned that offensive play is the only way to stop good defense and last defending champions Aeros are doing a good job of it.

The Aeros' disciplined style of checking helped earn them a 5-3 victory over the Nordiques Tuesday night and a 3-0 lead in the World Hockey Association final playoff series.

The series resumes Saturday in Quebec.

"That's the only way to play them because of their great speed," Dineen said. "If you don't, they'll burn you with shots on goal.

The speedy Nordiques were ready to play after a slow start in last Saturday's 8-2 loss and trailed the Aeros goal-for-goal until Houston broke away in a scoring flurry in the second period, when three goals were scored in 56 seconds.

The score was 2-2 going into the third period. Houston's Gordon Labossiere scored at 2:06, but Quebec came back 17 seconds later with a goal by Marc Tardif, his second of the game.

Then at 4:45 rookie Terry Ruskowski, who replaced Dineen in a second-period fight, picked up the go-ahead goal for the Aeros and Mike Flanagan made it 5-3 with his fifth playoff goal at 11:08.

Gordie Howe kept the Aeros even with the Nordiques with goals in the first and second periods. Dale Hoganson scored for Quebec in the first period and Tardif's first goal in the second period.

Houston increased the pressure on Quebec goalie Richard Brodeur in the second period with 19, 15 and 23 shots on goal for a total of 47—31 more than the Nordiques had.

Brawl Mars Action As Guelph Takes Lead

EDMONTON (CP) — Guelph Biltmores grabbed a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven Centennial Cup hockey final Tuesday night with a 6-1 win over Spruce Grove Mets in a game marred by a third-period brawl.

Captain Wally Hogg led the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League champions with an impressive two-way performance. Hogg scored two goals, one of them while Guelph was short-handed, and set up another as Guelph Biltmores in blocking shots in their own end.

Tim Holder and Dave Kenyon each scored one goal. Kenyon scoring, while Barry Brown, the rookie winger who scored three goals in Monday's Spruce Grove victory, got his first goal

What Could the Experts Teach Our Coaches?

Belleville must be one of the most knowledgeable hockey towns in the world. There just aren't be any question about it.

Here we sit, with the most renowned hockey symposium in the world (according to people who know) taking place right under our noses and only one coach from Trenton and one from our city feel they need to attend.

"It's beyond me," said Gary Green, executive director of Team Canada Hockey School, the organizing body behind the symposium, "there are guys coming from across Canada and the United States, colleges and university coaches, coaches from Europe, just there are only two coaches from the Bay of Quinte in area."

Among the coaches who deem it necessary to attend the symposium is Billy Dineen, the former coach of the Houston Aeros' bench. He will join the Hornet. He won the World Hockey Association championship last year and is right in the middle of the WHA finals again, yet he deems it a little a symposium such as the one here in Belleville will help him.

"I was talking to one of the Rochester's at a meet-ing a while ago," laughed Green, "and he said he wasn't coming because he didn't think he could be taught anything."

There are a lot of coaches around the area who must feel the same way. And they must be right. Just look at the Oshawa Generals' championship the Bay of Quinte area holds.

Instructors at the clinic include Philadelphia Flyers' coach Fred Shero; Team Canada Tv-man Billy Harris; Peterborough Petes coach, Roger Nelson; Austrian National coach during the 1976 season Frank Varney; sports psychologists Dr. Richard Loyatin and John Marshall and physical fitness expert Wayne Elson. Father David Bauer, former Canadian National coach will be on hand for questions and panel discussions.

Let's face it. What could the coaches of Belleville or the surrounding areas learn from a bunch of guys like that?

I mean, maybe Billy Dineen could some tips on coaching, but nobody around here could possibly pick up on anything from this symposium.

If coaches from the area happen to get their heads out of the clouds before registrations for the symposium reaches the 300 mark, that's when the registration is closed (135 coaches have already applied) you can get all the information you need by writing Tom O'Connor Hockey School, care of Albert College Belleville.

The symposium goes from July 27-August 2.

Loyalist Drops Hockey Lancers

Citing the high cost of equipment, travel and ice rental, Rob Stinson, sports supervisor at Loyalist College, has announced the withdrawal of the college from the intercollegiate hockey program.

Escalating costs are said to be the reason for similar decisions at community colleges in Oshawa, Lindsay, and Peterborough.

While polishing the ice rental this year, beer and possibly more (soft hockey sticks) as the main reason for the removal of the sport from the Loyalist program, Stinson also blamed the increasing price of items like sticks, and tape, and bus trips, for the decline in intra-mural activity at the college will benefit from the move. Last season, 45 per cent of the sports budget was spent on inter-collegiate hockey.

"Our aim is to get a greater number of people involved for less money and increased intramural participation will accomplish this," said Stinson.

"We have to sacrifice something to wind up with more in the long run," he said.

Admitting that many of the players would be disappointed in the decision to drop hockey, Lancer coach Paul Zukes suggested that perhaps there would be sufficient interest to warrant an intramural-hockey program.

Inter-collegiate sports at Loyalist will grow, since men's volleyball and women's basketball have been added to the program. And both these sports can be accommodated at college facilities.

"Look at it this way," offered Zukes, "we're not losing a sport; we're gaining two."

Brent Walmsley's six goals powered Belleville Collegiate Institute to a convincing 11-1 Bay of Quinte High School League win over Nicholson Catholic College at Moira Secondary School, Monday.

The big point getter was John Coon who added five assists to a three-goal performance. Rick Bronskow and Gord Wilcox were the other marksmen. Rob Prower and Mark Wiznesky each drew three assists.

BCI owned a 4-0 lead after one quarter and it was 7-1 at the half.

Middleton Park Joins TMBA

Baseball Groups Combine

TRENTON — The spirit of co-operation that exists between service personnel at Canadian Forces Base Trenton and the residents of the town, has been underlined again.

This time, it's in the field of minor sports.

And groups at Middleton Park (personnel married quarters for base personnel) and in the town proper have benefitted from their willingness to work together.

Trenton Minor Baseball Association, (TMBA) under Gord Webb, commissioner, has added the Middleton Park minor baseball program to its operation.

Each organization held separate baseball registrations recently with TMBA situating approximately 150 youngsters and Middleton Park, 114.

A meeting between Bob Alward, representing the Park Webb, and assistant TMBA commissioner Don Cole, was scheduled. The plan to join forces was the result.

Monday night, both groups were well represented at a coaches meeting at Trenton Country Club.

The expanded TMBA now boasts four teams in each of the tadpole, tyke and peewee divisions and at least three teams in the bantam section.

Organizers find Bills difficulty lining up coaches for each of the teams during the Monday session. And when a letter from both the town and the Park are alerting the coaching responsibilities.

The TMBA will also be represented by three teams in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association competition again this year. The TMBA Ladies' Auxiliary Tykes, Royal Canadian Legion Branch 109 Peewees and Slate Farm Insurance Bantams will be ready when league play begins later this month.

TMBA Home League openers will be marked by a May 19 parade which will wind its way through town, destination Centennial Park.

Bruins Make It on Hard Work

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — New Westminster Bruins made it to the Memorial Cup Hockey tournament with a bench boss — actually Mr. Outdoor — and hockey players.

While the Western Canada Hockey League champions lack the finesse of the other two teams in the tournament—Toronto Marlboros and Sherbrooke Beavers — they know they can go into tonight's game with Toronto Marlboros money to take the cup and the Canadian major junior hockey championship.

New Westminster was never expected to make it past the first round of the WCHL playoffs. The Bruins faced second-place Medicine Hat in the quarter-finals after finishing a notch below them in the West Division standings and won the series in five games.

They played first-place Victoria Cougars in the semi-finals and disposed of them in six games. The Bruins final series with Saskatoon Blades took seven games, with the Bruins winning the last two at home. They may face their biggest test of the season in tonight's game against the Marlboros, Ontario Hockey Association champions.

Toronto won its first game of the tournament 9-4 in overtime over Sherbrooke. The Quebec Major Junior Hockey League winners, the Marlboros then won a come-from-behind effort with three second-period power-play goals.

If Monday night's New Westminster-Sherbrooke game was any indication of things to come, Toronto may have quite a few power-play chances.

New Westminster won the game 7-5 with five unanswered second period goals in a contest that saw 108 penalty minutes called, including 14 majors. New Westminster played shorthanded most of the first period, accounting for Sherbrooke's 2-0 opening - period lead.

If tonight's game will automatically gain a berth in Sunday's 1:30 p.m. EDT final, Sherbrooke, losers of its two games in the first round, will play the loser of tonight's game on Friday to determine the other team in the final.

Ernie McLean, coach of the Bruins, says he doesn't plan any lineup changes for tonight's game as Kitchener Memorial Auditorium—site of all games in the eight-day tournament.

Toronto coach George Armstrong did not put his team through any special drills during a one-hour practice Tuesday, but said if the Marlboros are playing their best "they're the team I going to have to be pretty good to beat us."

Linesmen in Cup Game Will Be Taking No Chances

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The linesmen at tonight's-Memorial Cup hockey game between Toronto Marlboros and New Westminster Bruins have been ordered to wear helmets by Hugh McLean, referee-in-chief of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA).

McLean, of London, Ont., said Tuesday that he told linesmen before Monday's game between Westminster and Sherbrooke Beavers to wear helmets because of the many fights they might have to break up.

Monday's game saw 102 penalty minutes assessed and the linesmen broke up seven fights.

The Quebec Major Junior Hockey League has been invited by the CAHA to field a team to represent Canada at December's world junior hockey tournament in Finland.

Gord Juckes, CAHA executive director, said he approached QMJHL officials on Tuesday with the invitation. The Western Canada Hockey League represented Canada in the world junior tournament at Winnipeg this year and Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association traveled to last year's tournament in Russia.

One of the many rumors circulating at the Memorial Cup tournament is that Calgary Centennials of the WCHL will move to Vancouver next season. Reason for the move is reported to be that Vancouver Blazers of the World Hockey Association have moved to Calgary, leaving Centennials without an arena.

Ted Chynoweth, WCHL president, said all transfers must be approved by the league directors and must first be submitted to him. Chynoweth said he hasn't received any application for the Calgary move, but applications for Victoria Cougars and New Westminster since it left a spot open their territory.

Ted Lindsay, guest speaker at the CAHA's Memorial Cup dinner Tuesday night, took a swipe at the two major hockey leagues for their policy of removing young players from junior ranks before they are ready for pro play.

Lindsay, a former National Hockey League star with Detroit Red Wings, blamed "the greedy elements of hockey" for threatening the entire structure of Canada's national game. He said the pro teams are doing all their best to "rape junior hockey."

Clarence (Tubby) Schmalz, commissioner of the OHA Major Junior A series, said Tuesday he favors a limit on the playoff format in place of the present round-robin schedule for the Memorial Cup. He suggested the Ontario and Quebec champions play off in one series with the winner then advancing to meet the West in a best-of-seven final.

Bulls Fall

OAKLAND (AP) — Golden State Warriors stormed back from a seemingly ruinous first period Tuesday night and beat Chicago Bulls 111-106 to even their National Basketball Association Western Conference final at two games each.

The Warriors trailed by 16 points early in the second quarter, but cut the Bulls lead to two points—23-21—at halftime.

Rick Barry scored 36 of his 38 points in the second half when the Pacific Division champions mounted a final fourth-period rally.

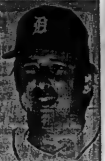
Chicago, Midwest Division champions, were ahead 84-83 after three quarters. The Warriors tied the score three times before going ahead to stay for good on a layup by Derrek Dickey with 9:07 left in the game. Dickey had six points in the last quarter, when Barry scored 12.

The Bulls' 106 points are just most of the third period after drawing his fifth personal foul, scored nine of his team's points in the last 4:30.

Love led Chicago scorers with 27 points, and Barry, Sloan followed with 22.

Dickey, a reserve forward, scored 14 for the Warriors while guard Charles Johnson finished with 13 points, including five near the end of the game.

The best-of-seven series resumes here Thursday night.



JOE COLEMAN

Falcone Young Giant Ace

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

He is a young left-hander just breaking into the National League. He went to Lafayette high school in Brooklyn, N.Y.

But there end the similarities between Pete Falcone of the San Francisco Giants and Sandy Koufax, the former great pitcher.

The 21-year-old Falcone made his fifth major-league start in his team's 7th game Tuesday night. Koufax didn't appear in his first game until the end of June, 39 summers ago, and didn't start until July 4.

A 19-year-old Koufax pitched a total of 6⅔ innings his first season, while Falcone already has worked 27. The last eight of those innings were spent beating Atlanta, 7-1, holding the Braves hitless for the first six innings and losing his shutout on an eight-inning bash.

In Tuesday's other National League baseball action, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Houston Astros 3-1, Montreal Expos defeated Chicago Cubs 9-4, Cincinnati Reds beat San Diego Padres 7-3 and Pittsburgh Pirates edged New York Mets 3-1 on eight innings. The Philadelphia-St. Louis game was rained out.

Randy Moffitt came on in relief of 21-year-old Falcone in the two finishes with a three-hitter that went into the books as Falcone's third victory in four decisions.

"He has the poise of a 10-year veteran," says manager Wes Westrum of his southpaw.

Los Angeles pitcher Don Sutton carried a one-hitter into the eighth inning but lost that on Cesar Cedeno's leadoff double. His second consecutive shutout and 23 consecutive scoreless innings came away on Bob Watson's ninth-inning home run.

2-run Homers — So What?

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Coleman thought he threw a good pitch. Nelson Briles knew he threw a bad pitch. Both pitchers came down behind a fence as two run homers led Cincinnati and Texas came up with victories anyway.

Detroit Tigers' Coleman was tagged for a two-run homer by Milwaukee's George Scott in the first inning but that was the only hit he allowed as the Tigers rallied to nail the Brewers' five-game winning streak 4-2.

Kansas City Royals' Briles blanked Texas on four hits until Willie Davis tied the game with a two-run homer in the eighth. But the Royals retaliated with four runs in the bottom of the eighth and beat the Rangers 6-3.

In other American League baseball action, Boston Red Sox defeated Cleveland Indians 4-1, Oakland A's beat California Angels 5-3 and Minnesota Twins defeated Chicago White Sox 4-1. The New York-Baltimore game was rained out.

Georgia Brett delivered a tie-breaking single and Frank White added a two-run hit in Kansas City's four-run eighth. After the Rangers tied the score on Davis' two-run homer, Jim Hunter issued a leadoff walk to John Mayberry in the bottom of the eighth and Hal McRae singled him to second.

Rollver Steve Foucault fanned Rusmon Killebrew but Brett snapped the tie with a single and the runners moved up on second and third on Dave Chalk's fly to the plate. White followed with a two-run single, his second on the three hours and scored on a single by Buck Martinez.

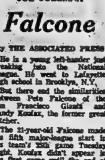
Bill Lee's six-hit pitching and Bob Montgomery's two - run single led Boston to its fourth consecutive win. Montgomery's second-inning single off Dick Pole scored the Red Sox ahead 2-0 after singles, by Jim Rice and Rico Petrocelli and an error by second baseman Jack Brohamer loaded the bases.

Bill Hands doubled home the winning run for Oakland in the seventh inning after Chandler Washington tied the score with a leadoff homer. The A's added an insurance run in the eighth on singles by Phil Garner and Bill North and Washington's sacrifice fly.

Steve Ilyie hit his first home run of the season and Larry Hisle added a run-scoring triple to help the Twins to their fourth consecutive win. The defeat was the sixth for Chicago's Wilbur Wood, who has now said once.

SIX TO COMPETE

OTTAWA (CP) — Six badminston players from four provinces will compete in the Canada-Indonesia Uber Cup championship in Jakarta May 11—June 4, the Canadian Badminton Association said Tuesday. They are: Jane Youngberg, Vancouver; Alison Hedgecock, Calgary; Lesley Harris, Montreal; Wendy Clarkson and Lorraine Thorne, Edmonton; and Barbara Welsh, Toronto.



MIKE JORGENSON

Rekindles Old Spark

MONREAL (CP) — First baseman Mike Jorgensen of Montreal Expos was mobbed at home plate with pitcher Rick Reuschel of Chicago Cubs Tuesday night and rekindled an old spark of two seasons ago.

Jorgensen accepted a fourth inning offering from Reuschel and powered his second career grand-slam home run over the fence in right field to lead the Expos to a 9-4 win over the Cubs in front of 11,000 baseball action.

Jorgensen's first grand slam came off Reuschel on Sept. 6, 1973, also at Jarry Park.

Foamtreads last longer than flowers.

A cosy pair of Foamtread slippers may be the most sensible idea for Mother's Day yet. They're something that'll make her life nicer the other 364 days a year.
Foamtreads come in a bouquet of wonderful colours too. Everything from red, red rose to lily white.
And of course, Foamtreads come in enough styles to please even a mother-in-law.
We've got styles with wedge heels or flat. Foam soles or leather. And no matter which one you choose, they all have the comfort that made Foamtreads famous.
(They should make you pretty popular too.)
This year give someone you love some Foamtreads. They're cosy. They don't cost much. And they also last considerably longer than a box of chocolates.

Joey the Kangaroo

Customers at the hotel in Glen Innes, a tiny fabled resort in south-east Australia, are used to seeing Joey, an 11-year-old gray kangaroo, sipping drinks at the bar or dancing in the pub's lounge. Joey was taken from the pouch and raised by children after his mother was killed by a car. He is not allowed to drink beer, but likes lemonade. (CP Photo)

New City Is Being Built For Folk of Mixed Race

CAPE TOWN (AP)—South Africa has begun the creation of a major new monument to apartheid.

An entire city called Atlantis, which will house 350,000 people by the year 2000, is being built near Cape Town exclusively for coloreds, or people of mixed race.

The new city will help ease an acutely housing shortage for the Cape Province's 1.7 million coloreds, who are carefully segregated from white residential areas in Cape Town and other cities.

Coloreds are not as strictly segregated as Africans in South Africa because government policy is to allow them "parallel development" with whites while "separate development" is ordained for blacks.

Thousands currently live in shanty towns on the outskirts of Cape Town in an area known as the Cape Flats.

Atlantis will be built from scratch on the plains about 30 miles north of Cape Town.

The creation of Atlantis was announced recently by Jan J. Loots, minister of planning.

It is the first totally new and independent city planned in the republic and the first time in the history of South Africa that a city will come into being with schools, hospitals, community centers, playing fields and other facilities all there before the residents themselves arrive, said a government spokesman.

Although affiliated with Cape Town, Atlantis will be a new city with a residential and industrial complex linked to the rest of the western Cape by road and railway, said Loots.

"What we envisage is a balanced city with a happy community in all spheres of life.

"Industry will be asked to play a vital role because if we want people here we will have to provide the necessary job opportunities which will arise out of industrial development."

Industries setting up business in Atlantis will be granted government aid, concessions and assistance based on the number of coloreds they employ in their factories.

Loots said the first 600 houses will be ready for occupation later this year.

The first commercial units will be villages, then towns each with a population of about 60,000, which will finally be amalgamated into a city.

Atlantis will stand near a plateau overlooking an imposing natural amphitheatre.

The plateau will house the central business district and two large industrial areas totalling about 1,730 acres will be located on the city's fringes.

Atlantis, a legendary island in the Atlantic Ocean, was said to be the seat of a powerful empire around 10,000 BC which sank into the sea.

Agricultural Students Aid Farmers in India

BOMBAY (CP) — Manjula Gandhi, a Bombay college student, has just returned from spending six weeks in a village in Madhya Pradesh state, 650 miles away.

Miss Gandhi, no relation of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, was in a group of 25 student volunteers who helped illiterate farmers in agriculture, sanitation, education and other fields.

The government met half the expenses of the college in sending the volunteers to the remote hamlet. Its last six months, dozens of student groups have been active in rural areas.

"This is India's version of what students in China are doing," said Miss Gandhi, who comes from an orthodox Hindu family where women are not expected to work on farms.

"We are constantly told by visitors to China that students there are massively participating in rural development. Maybe they are ahead of us in such areas. But this important thing about our campaign is that it is entirely voluntary."

Reports from various Indian states show that nearly 200,000 students have taken part in rural development work in the last year.

Federal and state agriculture ministries now are working on a plan to involve at least a million students in sowing, harvesting an dother agricultural work. They will be sent to areas where farmers need help during key agricultural operations.

Many of the students will be from the growing network of agricultural colleges so that farmers will get the benefit of modern technology.

Vaillancourt Execution Postponed Until Fall

OTTAWA (CP) — Rene Vaillancourt's May 13 date with the hangman was delayed Tuesday until Oct. 31, possibly to allow the federal government to put its own life on the line in an effort to end capital punishment.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said a cabinet committee began studying the Vaillancourt case last Friday but found it too complex, with seven other men on death row, to allow a rapid decision.

The lengthy stay of execution for Vaillancourt, 36, who shot Toronto Police Constable Lucio Maitland in 1972 after a bank robbery, was taken as a signal that the abolitionist Trudeau cabinet is out to solve what former cabinet member Robert Stanbury calls the dilemma of the present law.

The law, on trial until December, 1977, is that anyone convicted of killing a working policeman or prison employee must be sentenced to death.

The final appeal is to the federal cabinet, which reviews all death sentences and has commuted each one since the last hanging in Canada in 1962.

"Under the present law, they're obliged to consider the facts," says Mr. Stanbury, "At time goes on, there's bound to be a case where there are no mitigating circumstances."

All Commons votes on capital punishment in the last 10 years have been free-vote votes. Parliament not being required to vote along party lines and the government not having its own head on the line, Efforts to get Parliament to accept total abolition have been fruitless and the compromise law has been the result.

Mr. Allmand said he will examine all alternatives during the next few months. These include tougher gun, bail and parole law.

Mackasey Won't Lift Postal Suspensions

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Tuesday he will not withdraw suspensions against 69 Montreal postal employees "even in return for a national collective agreement."

"They are not negotiable," Mr. Mackasey told Vivian Dingle, (PC—Brandon-Souris) in the Commons.

Joe Davidson, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, last said the suspensions must be retracted before a new national working agreement can be reached.

"I am not wiping the suspensions out to please Mr. Davidson," Mr. Mackasey said.

"The quickest way to deal with the . . . problems is for him to start moving around the country and go back to the bargaining table where he belongs."

The government was prepared to "sit down and negotiate in good faith."

"If, however, one of the conditions of arriving at a settlement is that we write or cancel the suspensions, I suspect we shall still be waiting for a settlement in 1980."

Mr. Mackasey said outside the House that the government "has no intention of bowing to Mr. Davidson's request."

The postmaster, who received indefinite suspensions a month ago, would not necessarily be fired.

"The length of suspension will vary with the particular infractions, ranging from a matter of days . . . to a matter of actual dismissal."

The workers were suspended after preventing casual employees from working. They said union members had not been offered overtime before the part-time workers were brought in.

OUT OUR WAY — by Neg Cochrane

Otto Lang Target Of Bitter Criticism

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative criticism of government plans to improve income stabilization for western grain farmers turned into a hard-hitting personal attack Tuesday on Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board.

"Everything this minister has touched . . . has turned out bad for us," said Alvin Hamilton, Conservative agriculture critic. "Why does he keep stirring everything up?"

"The minister was born on a farm," added Alberta Conservative Jack Horner, a cattle rancher and frequent critic of Mr. Lang, "but he left the farm because he hated agriculture. I say . . . he still hates agriculture."

Their comments came during continued debate on a bill to improve income stabilization for grain farmers by establishing a special fund from which to draw in bad crop years.

Conservative MPs support the general aim of the bill, but say it falls short of what farmers need. They want it delayed until public hearings can be held in the West to get first-hand advice from grain producers and farm groups.

BRAND NEW
ONLY $34,900., TURBAN
We have a limited number of lots within the city where we can offer certain three bedroom homes at only $34,900.00. The down payment would be less than $2,000.00 and if it's your first home, you would get the entire amount returned in grants from the Government.

These will be sold on a first come first sold basis, so call early and ask for Mr. Turban.

10% MORTGAGE
AND $2,000.00 GRANT
is a combination we have hard to beat in today's market. We have two homes in the East end, each of which offers just such a package. You could move in at once. Everything is done — even the lawns are seeded.

INVEST WITH NO CASH
and make many thousands in a couple of years. Sound impossible? Not so! You can, if the Government gives you a down payment on a new Townhouse, live in it for a couple years and sell at a profit. Ask those who bought townhouses a couple of years ago. Many have made $5,000. or more in cash! You will never get another opportunity like this!

St. Thomas' Has Weathered Adversity Before

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

St. Thomas' Anglican Church struggles for life today — gutted, weakened, blackened and a testimony to the awesome power of God — perhaps, when all the truth is known to the fullest, of man.

And as its demise was construed in at least some fashion by man, so now is its fate lies in the hands of other men in high places with power over resources by which to restore it and return it to life.

But St. Thomas' has weathered adversity before, as it has 36, 101, to be exact, when it was partially destroyed by fire just 13 years after its original construction.

Whatever the future holds in store, St. Thomas' history will always be known thanks to Ina Benbloch of Belleville, whose booklet, "The Parish Story, written in 1948 to honor the church's semi-centennial, recounts its life from the time before Belleville was incorporated as a city.

It was conceived on Dec. 30, 1818 when the congregation was formed and a meeting held by a number of the respectable inhabitants of the town and vicinity says, "according to pictures, the first church was an unpretentious brick building. The square were square with high backs and the pulpit and prayer desk were of the three decker style, placed in the centre of the church."

The brunt of much criticism for its appearance, that first humble structure, was finally doomed to small and in April 1836 permission was appointed "to procure a plan for a new church from some competent person or persons in the city of Toronto."

On May 30, 1835, the corner stone of a new stone church was laid and under it placed a declaration shortened printed on satin at The Intelligencer office.

In addition, inside the corner stone was laid a copy of the Belleville Intelligencer from its 22nd year of operation, a copy of the Canadian Churchman from the 12th year of its operation, various coins and other tokens.

H. H. Horsey was the architect, John Regan and Andrew Northcott of Belleville were the builders. Percy Geen's grandfather, a stonemason, assisted in the construction.

Sunday, March 21, 1836 marked the opening of the new church and 18 years later it had its first trial by fire. A photograph from the era of that pitiful occurrence shows almost a twin of the present damaged building.

St. Thomas' re-opened for services on Dec. 28, 1879 and the Hastings Chronicle reported, "the pews with those in the gallery are calculated to seat 400 persons . . . the carved railings of the pulpit and altar are elegant, yet chaste and correspond with the brackets in the roof . . . the cost of the building so far is over four thousand pounds, and we are told not a stranger towards it has been solicited outside the town and congregation."

In 1894 the church was consecrated by Bishop Lewis and Bishop Mills. On May 29, 1935, the 100th anniversary of the laying of the corner stone was celebrated, and as a centennial project in 1967, floodlights were installed outside the church.

By St. Thomas' stood small the early hours of Wednesday, April 30, 1975 when it was death. Its death was done. And lost to memory are the following:

— fireplacerake stained-glass windows depicting the Crucifixion and the Ascension of Christ, portraying various biblical themes and commemorating the memory of many of Belleville's past personalities;

— several memorial plaques including one in memory of Capt. John Walden Meyers, the founder of Belleville;

— several regimental colors of Belleville's past military history including the oldest, being those of the 15th Battalion which were made and donated to the regiment by the ladies of Belleville in 1883 and deposited in the church in 1905.

— and the War Memorial Organ dedicated in 1957 which contained pipes from the two older organs of St. Thomas'.

First Fire

An eerie similarity can be seen be tween this photograph of the original St. Thomas' Anglican Church, taken after its first fire on February 26, 1876 and the present gutted structure which resulted from the fire of April 30, 1975.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stockton Edwards, co-host of ABC-TV's AM America show, will leave that job after May 16 to concentrate on her acting career in Hollywood, ABC said Tuesday.

Miss Edwards began co-hosting the show with journalist Bill Beutel when it started Jan. 6.

JACKSON (AP) — More than 1,000 persons jammed into the Mississippi Coliseum Monday night as singer Elvis Presley performed for charity.

Presley's show raised more than $110,000 for victims of the Mississippi River flood at McComb and other southwestern Mississippi communities.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Macy, who plays the easy-going husband on the television series Maude, is the estranged husband of actress Samantha Harper on the Hawaiian Island of Maui following their marriage Sunday, a spokesman said Tuesday.

This is the third marriage for Macy, 51, and the first for Miss Harper, 28. They met while they both appeared in the stage presentation of O Calcutta.

ROME (Reuter) — Italian actress Nella Montagna, 102, who made her stage debut in 1888, died in Rome Tuesday, her family said.

While here, she had a reunion with her two children — actor Christopher and Michael Wilding and daughter Lisa Todd.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Thursday, May 8

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're going to have a different approach to a problem facing you. A temporary solution is better than marking time.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You will be a very alert shopper today. To get the best buys, you'll need motivation. Think about those shiny objects.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your surroundings today could be restricted because you lack resources in the immediate. You'll find ways to get out of the box.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you approach it in an optimistic manner, your ambitious goals will be created possible. Be able to succeed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't hesitate to ask advice on how to solve a complicated problem today. No one will think less of you. You'll be pleased you asked.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll run into a stone wall in negotiations today. An alternate plan you'll devise will break the deadlock.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An intensive selling job will be necessary in order to sell your ideas — one strong help is vital. Don't hold back details.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A project you were hoping to complete today must be shelved. You don't have the proper tools on hire to something else.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're not as lucky in your dealings today as yesterday. Don't take chances on anything slight-crooner that don't gamble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Your goals will not be in accord with your ideas on a family matter. You may have to take the initiative to realize what's good for all.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) Being overbearing with subordinates today will only serve to defeat you. You'll get nowhere by goading them. Charm works wonders.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21) Before buying anything today, comparison-shop. It may take extra time, but a healthier purse will result.

Eating in Sleep Makes Her Fat

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosdenson:: I have a problem. I hope you can help me with it. I'm not fat, but I'm not. But that's not the only problem. I go to the refrigerator and take food and I don't remember it. I have done this until the next morning when I go to work and my lunch is gone and in my belt.

I figure I must have eaten the food in bed and on my way back from the refrigerator. As a result of eating in my sleep, I might I am gaining so much weight that my clothes don't fit me. I don't eat much during the day.

Doctor, will you please tell me if there is any way of stopping this?—Mrs. M. P.

Stranger things than your nocturnal scenes raids have occurred during episodes of sleepwalking.

Somnambulism is a sort of hypnotic state in which the person has no memory of the episodes, but retains an recollection of his actions. That seems to fit your situation except you have provided your own trail of evidence to go along with it.

Sleepwalking can accompany a dream, and in your case the dream could be about refrigerator scenarios often stem from unresolved emotional conflict. Again, your situation in food may enter the picture.

But it is also possible that metabolic hunger is a factor. You don't eat much during the day, according to your letter. Perhaps if you did eat three balanced meals the subconscious urge to eat at night would disappear. The meals could be low in calories if certain snack you're retiring might help also. Try a piece of meat, a cheese snack, or a glass of milk.

Do the crumbs provide any clue as to what you have eaten? Your weight gain is probably a result of purging of calories from foods you deny yourself during your waking hours.

If a change in eating habits doesn't work, then you should probably see a psychiatrist, who could delve into emotional conflicts involved that may not be apparent to you.

Dear Dr. Thomson: My mother believes you can stretch parts of your body by pulling on them. For example, you have to stretch your body and become taller.

This is a real problem. My sister says it's wrong. What do you say?—M. D.

No amount of stretching is going to add a whit or jot to the body or body parts. Stretching positions are a part of any good physical program and will help improve your posture, allowing you to make the maximum use of the natural height you have.

This may be what your mother means. If you want to convince your mother, explain to her that folks in traction for neck injuries gain not even a little height because of it.

Dear Dr. Thomson:: My doctor told me two years ago I was a hidden diabetic. Can you tell me what the symptoms are? Are symptoms or is? Is it like other forms of diabetes?—Mrs. J. B.

With a latent (or hidden) diabetes there may be no overt symptoms, but the doctor may have found sugar in your urine or an elevated blood sugar, both indicating the presence of diabetes. This means that you have the potential to develop overt diabetes, especially if you are overweight.

If you are overweight, you can help it. Since a history of obesity is found in about 80 percent of diabetics, you should be checked rather regularly from age on (once or twice a year, at least) for urine and blood sugar.

Those in the older person you can slip into overt diabetes with the use of medication, and this is why you should not be taking medication if you are not.

Latent diabetes is often found in women who have had large (over-nine-pound) or unsuccessful pregnancies (miscarriage or stillbirth).

In your case, a more extensive urine and blood test would probably show abnormal sugar content, a bordering situation that would not worry unless you are careful.

Bombay Plans Lovers Parks

BOMBAY (CP) — The government of this metropolis of six million is making plans to give its young lovers a break.

Bombay is relatively free of mugging—only 37 were reported last year—courting couples are frequently subjected to harassment on the beaches and in parks.

Lovers are victimized by criminals like the two young men who threatened to chase a couple of a much senior they were paid. But on other occasions, the course of true love is disrupted by pranksters just for the hell of it.

"There's just no place in this big city for lovers," complained Prem Murti, a college girl, whose evening on the beach with her boy friend was disrupted by a group of youths who serenaded them with lovely songs.

"It's a shame," agreed D. S. Kulkarni, member of the city government, proposing a plan to set up extensive parks for lovers.

The parks, of which four would be fenced in and guarded would be designed to ensure that the lovers' privacy is undisturbed.

While the facility was viewed with enthusiasm by Bombay's younger citizens, some of their elders had misgivings.

"There is already too much indecent behavior in our lives," protested Salim Fazalbhoy, a Moslem businessman with five daughters. "How our children are to be pure in course is love-making under government protection."

Stage Design Chosen

EDMONTON (CP) — Lawrence Miller, assistant professor in the University of Alberta drama department, has been honored by the United States International Theatre Institute.

The institute has selected one of his stage designs for inclusion in a traveling exhibition, which will represent the U.S. at the Prague Quadrennial later this year.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The "C" in ABCH stands for Count your winners and losers. Sometimes the total doesn't add up. Today's deal created 11 winners after the spade opening. Two in spades and three in each other suit. The three in clubs came from the "T" in Review the bidding which marks East with the queen and that suit as part of his opening bid.

When you count losers you are looking at two aces and three spades for a total of five losers. That makes a total of 11 tricks. It further clarifies that if you win the first trick with the spade queen you can't establish a fourth heart trick. Then when you knock out the other ace, the setting trick will be taken against you before you can score your three tricks. How can you come to the "T" or "C" in the middle bracket?

The secret is you can make it by changing your count of both winners and losers. Obviously, when you Analyze the hand you assume that West had fourth best of a five-card suit headed by the king of spades. Your Review of the bidding tells you East has the ace. Thus, you let East hold the first spade and West the second one. Now the defence has two spade tricks, but can't get a third. You have him in knock out both aces and make your contract.

CARD SENSE

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♦	Pass	4♠
Pass	4N	Pass	5♦
Pass	6♠	Pass	7♦
Pass	Pass	Pass

You, South, lead:

♠KQ10543 ♥A5 ♦A8 ♣A987

What do you do next?

A — Pass. Your partner has bid only two and five spades. Accept his bid and five diamonds.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding five spades your partner has bid five hearts over your five diamonds. What do you do now?

Museum of Acadian Settlers

The Acadian House, built in 1780, for a French Canadian official, by slaves in St. Martinville, La., containing furnishings and other items depicting the way of life of the early Acadian settlers. In south Louisiana's heartland, language and customs of those exiled from Nova Scotia more than 200 years ago are still very much in evidence. (CP Photo)

Canadian Nominated UN Food Body Head

EDMONTON (CP) — A 49-year-old Canadian agricultural economist is on of seven candidates announced from six regions of the world nominated for the post of director-general of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO).

W. David Hopper, president of the International Development Research Centre at Ottawa since 1970, has been nominated to fill the vacancy that will be created when the present director-general, Dr. A. H. Boerma of the Netherlands, retires at the end of this year.

Dr. Boerma took his first four-year term at the start of 1968 and was re-elected for another four-year term at the end of 1971.

In 1971, the FAO's governing conference, which elects the director-general, decided that future terms would be for a single, non-renewable six-year period.

The next election will take place during the regular, biennial session of the conference at Rome in November.

Dr. Hopper received a science degree in agriculture from McGill University in 1950 and a doctorate in economics of agriculture and cultural anthropology from Cornell University in 1957.

Between 1957 and 1959 he taught agricultural economics at Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph and moved to University of Chicago where he taught economics and anthropology until 1962 when he went to India as an agricultural economics fellow for the Ford Foundation, and later for the Rockefeller Foundation. He has been president of the research centre since 1970.

Other candidates include Dr. Francisco Aquino Aguirre of El Salvador, who has been director of the FAO-United Nations World Food Program since 1968, Eric M. Ojala of New Zealand, assistant director-general of the FAO's economic and social policy department since 1970, Dr. Josef Olszewowski, 58, of Poland, his country's former agriculture minister and now Polish ambassador to the Netherlands, Dirn Edouard Saouma, 48, of Lebanon, director of FAO's land and water development division since 1965, Samuel Sam, 53, first deputy governor of the Bank of Ghana, and Dr. Bukar Shaib, 47, permanent secretary in charge of Nigeria's agriculture and natural resources ministry since 1968.

Today's Furniture Better

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Synthetic fabrics and artificial wood veneers have made furniture and up to longer lasting, more practical than ever, says Harry Cherney.

Mr. Cherney has been in the furniture business for more than 40 years and says furniture made today is far more durable and practical than the best of the silks and mohairs of the past.

"We hear everybody talking about things that were in the good old days," says Mr. Cherney, partner in the Cherney's five-city chain of furniture stores. "Well, I know what they were like. In the good old days and they weren't as good as in many cases as they are now."

Veneer and material that duplicates wood surfaces "may be artificial in a sense ... but how impractical it is to have that beautiful wood table," he said. "The first person who puts a wet glass down ruins that table top for all time unless it's totally refinished.

"Not every reproduction makes sense. But many of the synthetic fabrics and the impervious finishes that we have today mean that that furniture is going to last longer than the furniture that our grandparents had."

The Cherney family started operations in Peterborough in 1914 when the late Abe Cherney founded a family clothing store that later became one of a chain. Brothers Harry, Myer and Louis later took over the business and began expanding.

They now have showrooms in Whitby, Oshawa and Kingston.

But Harry Cherney remembers when days weren't as good. In 1933, the Depression had hit Peterborough and Cherney, the economy had stabilized somewhat but remained low until pre-Second World War days, recalls Mr. Cherney.

"Everything was one color. There was something called a 176 taupe fabric and as per cent of what we sold was in that one particular color and fabric," he said. "Any chesterfield, chair and three years coming about."

"It was more a matter of economics than of taste. If you could afford a new living room set, you got that 176 taupe."

The Cherney brothers have opened a new 250,000 square foot warehouse sales centre here with a "supermarket" format.

The furniture is displayed with price tags showing both the store price and the suggested retail price. Customers the pick up furniture in factory carriers from the loading docks save the cost of delivery.

"To us the idea of having it all under one roof with minimum administration, minimum movement of goods is an efficiency that just had to be made ..." said Mr. Cherney.

Safety Expert Started His Career by Accident

EDMONTON (CP) — Paul Lawrence spent 23 years in the safety business and is loath to tell it, the whole thing started as an accident.

Mr. Lawrence, recently retired after 23 years as director of the Alberta Safety Council, was a commercial artist by training when he was employed in the publicity department of a Montreal munitions factory during the Second World War.

The plant made detonators for ammunition and "very touchy explosives" and "I had to learn the principles of safety in order to do the publicity."

"The company was safety-oriented. The safety in that plant was so good it was safer to work there than in an office."

Mr. Lawrence wrote "safety propaganda" and designed posters as the plant and when the war ended he continued to work in the safety business.

The need for public safety education was the same in the late 1940s as now, he said.

"Traffic was killing too many people. Fire was a terrific hazard. You only had to look at the statistics to see the need for public education."

He pioneered the first Safe Driving Day in Canada in 1954.

"It was tremendous. We held it Dec. 1 in 1954. We had been averaging 38 deaths in the province every December. That December only had four deaths."

The idea was later adopted by the Canada Safety Council and expanded into Safe Driving Week.

Mr. Lawrence is also credited with developing the Pedal Pusher Club, the first organized bicycle safety program in North America: a rural safety essay competition which still attracts 20,000 entries annually and the first defensive driving program in Alberta.

'Evangeline' Buried At Lousiana Church

ST. MARTINVILLE, La. (CP) — Canada and the state of Louisiana are linked by more than historic ties through the Acadians.

A threat of security to the British during their fight to conquer French Canada, the French-speaking residents of Nova Scotia were ordered into exile in the British-ruled colonies of Maryland and Georgia.

Their expulsion is the background of Longfellow's famous poem Evangeline, which tells of the separation of the lovers Evangeline and Gabriel. The poem ends in Evangeline's tragic become a nun, finds Gabriel, now a soldier, in New England. He has been wounded and dies in her arms.

In Louisiana they tell a story that is equally sad but more hopeful.

Before leaving Nova Scotia, many of the Acadians had agreed to try to make their way to Louisiana, a territory that remained French until some years after the Seven Years' War ended.

It took Evangeline's beloved Gabriel 10 years to reach St. Martinville, where he married three years later. Some months after the marriage, Evangeline and her family arrived.

Visitors are shown in the wharf on the Bayou Teche where the ship docked and a nearby oak tree under which Gabriel is said to have broken the news to Evangeline of his marriage.

The dial presently at Grand Lake says she went out of her mind and died of grief.

"Nonsense," says Mrs. James Guirard, curator of the Acadia House Museum. She died of consumption after walking most of the way from the Atlantic coast.

Evangeline, whose real name was Emmeline Labiche, is buried in the grounds of St. Martin Church under a seated statue of Longfellow's heroine, the gift of Delores del Rio who played the role in a 1929 film that was shot in Martinville.

The Acadian House Museum, a 19th-century brick house built in 1765, is described in some tourist literature as Gabriel's house but Mrs. Guirard, whose ancestors were Acadians, says it is named in Commandant Collection de la Hontzaya, a French nobleman who married one of Queen Marie Antoinette's ladies-in-waiting.

On its lawn is a huge oak under which Evangeline and Gabriel are said to meet at night.

Gabriel, really Louis Arceneaux, is virtually ignored in St. Martinville. His burial place is unmarked and his plantation is not been made a museum.

"We Acadians haven't forgiven him," says Mrs. Guirard. "He should have waited."

Payoff from Find Years Away
Brazil's Oil Euphoria Fades

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP) — The oil euphoria that gripped Brazil last December has faded. Now there is a sober awareness that the payoff from a prevalent offshore strike is years and many millions of dollars away.

But official hopes remain high that the find eventually will more than double Brazil's production and shrink the oil import bill—the biggest of any Latin-American country.

The government is quietly making big new investments to test the potential of new reserves.

The state-run oil monopoly, Petrobras, says it plans to spend $400 million on exploration and development in 1975, 30 per cent more than in 1974.

Operations off the Atlantic coast were expanded early in February with the purchase of a six-million drilling ship, the Petrobras III.

Brazil already had a rented drilling ship and another of its own, the Petrobras II, in operation. A Petrobras spokesman said the company plans to rent still another soon at the going rate of $35,000 to $38,000 a day.

When the government announced Nov. 30 that the Petrobras II had made a major discovery east of the Campos, the country came down with a case of petroleum fever.

Newspaper headlines predicted Brazilian self-sufficiency in oil, the stock market shot up, and businessmen celebrated.

At Campos, the Lions Club put up a sign saying, "Welcome to Campos, the Petroleum Capital," and at least one bar was renamed Petrobras.

President Ernesto Geisel said in a year-end speech that the discovery enhanced Brazil's "credibility in international financial circles." He said Brazil would probably be sure to expend significantly within a few years, but that this would require "intensive work in evaluation and development."

Since then, newspaper headlines on oil have lost their urgency, and Petrobras shares—which led the stock market boom—have level-led off. Officials and businessmen are back in worrying about immediate economic problems, such as what to do about Brazil's huge trade deficit.

The deficit was aggravated in 1974 by oil imports that cost nearly $3 billion, up from about $1 billion in 1973. Brazil uses about 720,000 barrels a day, producing less than 200,000.

After the discovery of the Garoupa oil field off Campos, the president of Petrobras estimated that the field would produce 300,000 barrels a day within two years.

A spokesman said recently that it might take four years for production to start and the 300,000-barrel estimate was premature. But he added that nothing had happened to undermine the general optimism.

One basis for Brazilian oil optimism has been a Petrobras report that 12 limestone formations similar to Garoupa have been detected off Campos and that about 15 exploratory wells will be drilled in the region.

The spokesman said Petrobras also is pressing ahead with exploratory drilling off the shore of neighboring Espirito Santo state, in the mouth of the Amazon River and in the Amazon basin of Acre state, not far from oil fields discovered across the border by Peru.

"That's a very difficult region," the spokesman said, referring to Acre. "The equipment goes in by helicopter."

Brazil's most productive oil fields currently are in the underseas platform off the state of Bahia. Several smaller fields have been discovered, and are under development off the Amazon and other northeastern states.

Lectures In Mexico

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Donald V. Deverall, director of the centre for continuing management education at University of Waterloo recently conducted a five-day seminar on management at University Autonoma de Guadalajara in Mexico. He said there is keen interest among Latin American countries on the way management personnel are developed by Canadian business and industry.

Phobias Acquired Gradually

VANCOUVER (CP) — People terrorized by phobias build up their fears in a series of experiences, says Dr. Gunther Reith, director of the Behavior Therapy Clinic at University of British Columbia.

"Contrary to Freud, the origin of most phobias is not a single traumatic experience but a psychological disturbance learned gradually," said Dr. Reith.

"People often don't realize they have a phobic disorder, for instance, until they're suddenly aware that their heart is pounding on the elevator."

"Each subsequent time the fear increases. The building of anxiety could result in a heart attack."

Dr. Reith cited the example of a man so frightened by crossing under trolley wires that he kept changing his route to work in order to avoid them.

"Finally, the wires became so dense overhead he couldn't find what he felt was a safe route. He was forced to quit his job."

There are several types of phobias but one of the most common is agoraphobia, a fear of open spaces and leaving the security of home environment. Agraphobics often become housebound.

Dr. Reith said about two per cent of all people requesting psychological help are suffering from true phobias.

For 10 years, doctors have been practising a theory for treating phobic disorders called systematic desensitization.

"The emphasis for helping people with phobic disorders is addressed to the manifestations rather than the causes of the phobia," Dr. Reith said.

To a person afraid of flying in a plane, the manifestations of the phobia are his anticipatory fears of flying and actually being on a plane. Patients are asked to discuss their anxieties.

A man nervous about flying might say he felt low anxiety when a plane was passing overhead. His anxiety level would increase if he dreamed of flying. Being on a plane registered high anxiety.

In systematic desensitization, a treatment which takes from eight to 15 sessions, the patient is taught to recognize his anxiety and categorize it on a scale of one to 100.

The treatment involves a verbal presentation or images of the difficult situation while the patient is relaxed. His tolerance to his fears thus built up, the patient is next asked to go to an airport to watch planes and get accustomed to them.

The next step is walking in a plane and finally taking a short flight.

"After a patient with the fear of flying has flown and felt little or no anxiety, the therapy is considered successful," said Dr. Reith.

CP News Roundup

Folks Send Their Mail By Wagon

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The great Canadian wagon train is promising to save us the great Canadian mail train.

Wagon master Gordon Roberts said in an interview Tuesday that people have started to hand members of the wagon train pieces of mail to be delivered to various towns along their route to Alberta.

"For some it's a gimmick," Mr. Roberts said. "They'd just like their letter to go by stagecoach.

"Others fear a mail strike and just don't trust the post office," he said. "They feel their letter would probably get there by wagon train before it would by mail."

Awaits Report

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — John Greenwood, Peel region Crown attorney who ordered provincial police last week to investigate allegations of corruption in city hall, said Tuesday he expects a report within 30 days.

Funds Low

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Margaret Birch, provincial social development secretary, said Tuesday Ontario communities will have to begin taking more responsibilities for social-care programs because the provincial government is running out of money to support new projects.

Fire Kills Four

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — A fire in a tent killed four persons Tuesday on Lake Helen Reserve about 60 miles northeast of here. Dead are Charles Petan, 55, his wife Madeline, 53, and their grandsons, Joseph, 12, and Julius, 8. The Ontario fire marshal's office said it suspects the fire was started by an overheated wood stove.

Broadbent Critical

OTTAWA (CP) — Government anti-inflation programs are wage controls without price controls, NDP parliamentary leader Ed Broadbent said Tuesday.

"It's clearly a set of decisions aimed at working people only," Mr. Broadbent said of two government working papers distributed to labor leaders.

Dealer Fights GM

TORONTO (CP) — Campbell Chevrolet Ltd. of Sudbury, Ont., was granted a Supreme Court of Ontario injunction Monday restraining General Motors of Canada Ltd. from establishing a new Chevrolet dealership within 25 miles of the Sudbury business's largest Chevrolet dealership.

Raises Smaller

OTTAWA (CP) — Wage increases negotiated through collective bargaining show a downward trend in the first three months of 1975, the federal labor department reported Tuesday.

Of 89 settlements reached in the first three months of the year involving bargaining units of 500 or more employees, average annual increases in base pay rates were 14 per cent, Department of Labor agreements are excluded.

Curbs Asked

OTTAWA (CP) — Pleading financial hardship, the predominantly foreign-owned domestic electronics industry urged the federal government Tuesday to put new restrictions on imports of U.S. and Japanese television sets and components.

Opposes Leniency

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis called Tuesday for stiffer penalties for persons convicted of violent crimes and said the federal Bail Reform Act is too lenient.

Asked by a student whether he favored capital punishment, the premier declined to answer, saying the matter is the federal government's responsibility but he said violent crimes are increasing and persons convicted of such crimes must be deterred.

Dredging Trial Rulings Awaited

HAMILTON (CP) — Mr. Justice Peter Cullen of Ontario Supreme Court was in role today as defence motions presented at a trial in connection with alleged kickbacks on Hamilton Harbor dredging continue.

Lawyer Ray Harris, acting for Reginald Leigh Fisher, argued Tuesday that charges of "conspiracy and allegations of substantive" offences should be tried separately.

Malcolm Robb, lawyer for Kenneth Ronald Elliott, asked particulars on each count and each charge. He also argued that the first count, charging Elliott and Fisher with defrauding the harbor commission of $360,000, be separated from the rest of the indictment and tried first.

Lawyer John Bowlby made a motion Monday for special status to represent former harbor commissioners Del Hickey and Joseph Lanza, who are named in one of the counts of the indictment but not charged.

There are 11 counts against Elliott, former Hamilton Harbor commissioner, and 10 against Fisher, a business consultant. They are charged in connection with alleged kickbacks totalling $400,000 on dredging contracts.

Elliott, 63, and Fisher, 61, are jointly charged with fraud, uttering forged documents and conspiracy. In addition, Elliott is charged with breach of trust.

Mr. Harris argued Tuesday that the jury "will be hearing from the trials of ex-Fisher, and the inference to be drawn counts will be he is their intends as they hear evidence on each count."

His suggested five separate trials would be shorter than marathon proceedings facing the court at present.

Mr. Robb said he suggested the first count be separated from the rest of the indictment because the complexity of the present indictment will exhaust the jury.

Assistant Crown Attorney Rod McLeod said defence suggestions would complicate matters and five trials would be expensive and "the only to Elliott and Fisher, but to the administration of justice as well."

The jury for the trial has not been selected. Mr. Justice Cullen dismissed the jury panel while he heard legal arguments Tuesday. The jury was to return today.

Elliott and Fisher have not yet been asked to plead to the charges.

Mr. Justice Cullen rejected a motion of many by Mr. Robb to have charges against the defendants dismissed. Mr. Robb had argued wording of the charges was vague and unclear.

Hiring Halls Rules Coming

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor code amendments will be introduced to halt hiring hall abuses by labor unions, Labor Minister John Munro said Tuesday.

The changes will deal with "the whole question of abuses in hiring hall practices," he said in the Commons. But he gave no indication when the amendments will be tabled for first reading.

He made the announcement in response to a question from Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham) on the Seafarers' International Union (SIU).

Mr. Lawrence asked whether an inquiry will be called on the basis of information contained for the government on SIU activities.

Mr. Munro said he hopes to make an announcement within the next few days. He did not elaborate.

The SIU has been accused of violence, intimidation and blacklisting of members.

Cocaine Valued At Million Seized

TORONTO (CP) — An eight-month undercover investigation has resulted in the arrest of seven persons and confiscation of about five pounds of cocaine, RCMP said Tuesday.

Insp. Emile Beaudoux of the RCMP's Toronto-based drug squad said several more arrests are expected after the weekend seizure of the drug with a street value estimated by police to be about $1 million.

New Type of Automobile Will Store Excess Power

TORONTO (CP) — Ralph Flanagan, a University of Toronto professor, and Anthony O'Donovan, a Toronto alderman, have proposed a high-efficiency hybrid automobile which would cut gasoline consumption by 25 per cent. They say the car would save Canadian drivers $1.1 billion a year.

The key to their plan is a hybrid drive centred around a flywheel-type energy storage unit. Power in the prototype would come from a diesel engine.

All power produced would pass through the storage unit and a new type of transmission to the wheels.

When the car used more than the power produced by the engine, extra would be drawn from the storage unit. When it used less, the excess would be stored in the unit.

The prototype would be a two-passenger city car, ideal for commuter use, Prof. Flanagan said.

Price Freeze Law Said Almost Ready

News Briefs

Charges Coming

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro said Wednesday that charges will be laid "in the fairly near future" against Quebec longshoremen who have defied a back to work law passed by Parliament. He told the Commons an injunction will be sought today in Montreal, adding the force of a court order to the special law passed two weeks ago.

Supervisors Get Less

TORONTO (CP) — A contract currently being voted on by letter carriers will give them more pay than their supervisors as of July 1, Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday.

Non-swimmer Drowns

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Paul Chan, 18, of Mississauga drowned Wednesday in the Credit River when his racing canoe capsized. He and Clare Boona, 15, were paddling the canoe in a supervised school physical education program. Police said the youths were not wearing life jackets and the Can youth was a non-swimmer.

No Jobs for Women

TORONTO (CP) — A borough of North York committee suggests that women be invited to try jobs such as loading garbage trucks and digging ditches has been rebuffed by the all-male union local which does the work. A meeting of 39 of the 750 members of the local unanimously rejected the proposal because they felt they might lose pay during the experiment.

Fat Proving Fatal

OTTAWA (CP) — Poor eating habits and lack of exercise are helping seven years of the life of half the Canadian population — the overweight half — a national nutrition seminar was told here Wednesday. Unless poor habits are changed, most people by the year 2000 will spend one quarter of their salaries on hospital bills, says Dr. Madeleine Blanchet of the Quebec government's social affairs department.

Report Disturbs Pepin

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU), told a news conference Wednesday that his union fears implementation of the Cliche Commission recommendations would destroy the trade union movement in Quebec.

Mr. Pepin said the report was correct in identifying certain rival QFL unions as the "causes" in Quebec's construction industry. But such recommendations as forcing unions to incorporate and surveillance of strike and contract votes sought to make them a state instrument.

In Quebec City, Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer said he plans to introduce soon two bills of the report.

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government may use long-promised legislation permitting it to freeze or roll back "excessive" prices in its efforts to get the public to accept voluntary wage and price restraints.

Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet says the legislation is "almost ready," but it is being held back until current consultations on wage and price restraint are completed.

Finance Minister John Turner's campaign for the restraint system to fight inflation has run into resistance from some labor leaders and politicians who say they fear the plan may be tough on wages but soft on prices, profits and rents.

Asked if there is a direct link between the bill's provisions and the restraint talks, Mr. Ouellet said: "There is or there could be. That depends upon the outcome of the consultation process."

Documents published this week show the government proposing maximum wage increases of 12 per cent a year. For those workers who had no public increases in pay last year the increase should be eight per cent.

Price rises would be limited to that needed to recover costs.

Part of Mr. Turner's over-all restraint program is a series of boards to monitor price and income increases. They could then publish reports on whether public support exists at large for controlling inflation were being followed.

Consumer affairs Department officials have previously indicated a new tribunal, probably with a civil servant as permanent chairman, would consider whether prices were excessive. They could then order price freezes or rollbacks.

In certain circumstances, companies might also be ordered to give refunds to consumers. This might be done by requiring the offending firm or industry to pay the amount that was overcharged to Ottawa, or by keeping prices pegged lower until consumers had been reimbursed.

Munro Pleased By CLC Response

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's labor leaders Wednesday received Labor Minister John Munro's wage-said-price restraint proposals as subject and set aside for further study during discussions on a program to control inflation.

The leaders, representing 1.7 million members in unions affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress, said they hope Ottawa will not let labor become the scapegoat in the battle against inflation nor let labor bear the brunt of restraints.

In Ottawa, Labor Minister John Munro said he was encouraged by the congress' response because he believed the union movement is giving serious thought to the government's attempts to find a consensus among business, labor and government.

Mr. Munro announced the methods of beating inflation, in his long-term statement to the House of Commons Wednesday, are not restrained" the statement said.

"The labor movement is willing to do its part in the fight against inflation but it will never consent to discriminatory treatment against workers, pensioners and those who have no means to protect themselves."

PM Says Talks To Continue

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will continue talks with labor leaders in an attempt to reach agreement on voluntary wage restraints, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said today.

But there will be no specific attempt to meet the nine conditions set by the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) for holding voluntary agreement on restraint, Mr. Trudeau said.

Saigon's Curtain Is Raised

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The new South Vietnamese government removed communications with the outside world Wednesday. Communications had been cut since Monday and some surrendered to the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in April 30.

A Saigon radio broadcast monitored in Bangkok said the Saigon general staff ordered most relay telegrams to any part of North Vietnam and that the messages could be sent anywhere in the world.

Associated Press reporters George Esper, Peter Arnett and Matt Franjola, who remained behind voluntarily, said the journalists were also told that telex were functioning and no restrictions were being placed on the movements of more than the foreign newspaper men.

Associated Press writer Daniel De Luce reported from Hai-phong that machinery was pouring into the North Vietnam-ese port from friendly countries to help rebuild the country.

In Laos, the two opposing sides in the coalition government signed an agreement to stop the clashes between the Vientiane and Pathet Lao forces that had disrupted the cessation there since mid-April, government sources said.

HILDA PUGH, president of the 15,000-member Canadian Kennel Club, was in Belleville Wednesday with some advice for local dog-owners. She said "parks are for people and that dog-owners should carry a plastic bag while walking their dogs so that the waste from the animal can be picked up." Mrs. Pugh, from Toronto, holds two of her purebred champion Chihuahuas. She was in the city to tape a television program at Loyalist College.

Dogs Getting Too Numerous Kennel Club Leader Warns

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The Canadian Kennel Club will have to develop a long-range view of "dogdom" if dog breeders are to survive, says its president Hilda Pugh.

Mrs. Pugh, in Belleville to tape a television program, said Wednesday that the recent moves in control dog populations will be legislated right out of existence. Mrs. Pugh, from Toronto, represents the 15,000-member Canadian Kennel Club which is sanctioned by the federal department of agriculture.

Mrs. Pugh said the country is in a dangerous mood with "backdoor" breeders who indiscriminately destroy purebred lines by close breeding. The national club is responsible for registering purebred dogs in this country.

She said the fault belongs with both the purebred and non purebred breeders who know too little about their dogs and are trying to make a fast dollar. The kennel club currently registers about 170 breeds in Canada.

Mrs. Pugh, who breeds Weimaraners, said there are too many dogs in the country and that the only answer is public education. She said any further legislation against dog owners will not help.

She said the government and the kennel clubs across the country have a responsibility to educate the public. Apparently, large dogs, such as Irish Setters, Afghans and Saint Bernards have become passe, Jones popular.

Mrs. Pugh said kennel clubs can encourage people to not get purebred breeds from the pound and the spread of the breed is reduced. She said the cocker spaniel breed was ruined in the 50s due to its popularity.

The Kennel Club president said parks should not be used by dogowners to let their dogs run free.

"This is alright if they clean up after the dog," she added. She added, however, that people who take a plastic bag along with them while walking the dog, to pick up any excrement.

Bitch's Life Not Bitter If She's Denied Litter

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

It's not necessary for a bitch to have a litter of pups before she is spayed, says Hilda Pugh, president of the 15,000-member Canadian Kennel Club.

Mrs. Pugh, who was in Belleville taping a television show Wednesday, said "it's nonsense for people to believe their bitch will be happier if she has a litter of pups before she is spayed."

She said this attitude contributes to a problem in this country of too many dogs.

She also said spaying does not make a bitch ever-ready, "it's the exercises and overfeeding that makes them fat," explained Mrs. Pugh.

Mrs. Pugh also dismissed the notion that children learn more about life by watching a bitch have a litter of pups. "If parents want their children to know about birth, then there are many educational films on the subject," said Mrs. Pugh.

She said the only answer to the dog population problem is for local kennel clubs, veterinarians and governments to educate the public.

Freedom Bridge Crossed

Three-week Trek Ends for Refugees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The last 358 foreigners trapped in Phnom Penh since the Khmer Rouge victory crossed the Mekong today at the end of their three-week ordeal.

The first to cross the small "Freedom Bridge" into the Thai town of Arranyaprathet was a month-old French baby carried by Thai Red Cross nurse. The infant was being fed intravenously. Its mother was dead.

The evacuees, surrounded by bags, were disheveled as they lined up to cross the bridge. Many were exhausted and said they had not changed their clothing on the trip.

Officials said the convoy of more than 20 trucks contained 230 French citizens, 200 Pakistanis and about 120 persons of other nationalities including four Americans.

Previous reports had said five U.S. citizens had remained behind in Phnom Penh after the first evacuation convoy brought out six foreigners Saturday.

Only about 250 foreigners had been expected in the second convoy from Phnom Penh. Ambassador Marc Bonnefous said more had been picked up during the three-week trek.

Bonnefous said all the evacuees but one were in good health. An elderly French evacuee who made the 200-mile plus trip in an ambulance.

During the journey from Phnom Penh to the Thai border the foreigners said the Khmer Rouge soldiers allowed them along the route gave them rice, water, coconut oil and oranges.

One old woman and the eight-month-old child of the Frenchwoman died along the way.

Red Cross doctors, Thai immigration officials and French diplomats were waiting to receive the group and take most of them to Bangkok.

Fuel McKerracher of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office here told members of St. Thomas' council of the 1975 budget Monday three witnesses were drawn to the northeast corner of the church at 3:40 a.m. seven minutes before the alarm was raised, attracted by a base in the area.

He said they saw a turbulence of black smoke issue from a partly-open door leading to the vestry office. The black smoke "would seem to me to indicate a petroleum product," he commented.

However, Mr. McKerracher emphasized investigators are awaiting confirmation of the assumption from the attorney general's laboratory of forensic sciences.

A quantity of liquid mixed with water was discovered near a stairwell in the basement. This and other samples were delivered to the laboratory in Toronto Wednesday following their collection in the past week, contrary to earlier reports the samples were sent last week, he said.

Mr. McKerracher added no evidence has been found pin the cause on electrical or heating units.

He said the fire pattern shows a spread from the basement through the Sunday School section and into the interior of the church where flames were fed by fresh oxygen provided by the open vestry door.

This oxygen feed wiped out any chance firefighters had of saving any part of the church by the time they arrived on the scene, he said, noting it has been estimated the fire was burning from two-and-a-half to three hours before discovery.

Mr. McKerracher said there might have been a secondary source of the blaze indicated by "an unusual burn pattern on the floor of the vestry".

It was in the vestry that a number of silver items used in communion services have not been accounted for. Police speculate their theft occurred sometime prior to the fire.

City School Drops Kindergarten

Despite a slight projected increase in school starters next September one city school is phasing out its kindergarten class.

King George Public School principal William Lott said Wednesday the class is being phased out because only four students have been enrolled. This compares to a class of 19 currently in kindergarten at King George.

Director of Education Eric Bissacres said there appears to be a slight increase of school starters across the county, however, he said some isolated areas have suffered major declines.

The core areas of Belleville tend to have declining kindergarten enrolment mainly because younger families are not moving into these areas," explained Mr. Bissacres, it is expected the four or five kindergarten students will attend either Prince of Wales or Parkdale public schools.

Mr. Lott said he had talked to the parents involved and that there was no apparent objection. According to projected enrolment figures from the Hastings County Board of Education elementary school enrolment will decline until 1980 when it will experience a dramatic decline. The board projects by 1981 the total enrolment will be 19,09? as compared to almost 23,000 this year.

Motorbike Strikes Boy

A three-year-old Corbyville boy remains in Belleville General Hospital today in satisfactory condition after being struck by a motorcycle Wednesday while crossing the Greenfield Road, half a mile south of the fifth concession of Thurlow.

A hospital spokesman said Neil White, 3, received abrasions to his face and today is in "satisfactory" condition.

The motorcycle was driven by Norman Sharma, 46, of RR 1, Corbyville.

Prince Edward Protests Gas Prices

PICTON — The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce will submit a brief concerning disparities in gas prices between the county and the rest of the province to the Ontario Chamber of Commerce this month, with hopes for province-wide support.

The decision followed a recent directors' meeting where chamber president Gordon Whitaker said few gasoline station operators in the Picton area have shown interest in discussing the situation with the chamber.

Donald Sutton, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce attributed this reluctance to fear. He said many station operators think they will be cut off by the oil companies if they participate in these meetings.

It was revealed Belleville's regular gasoline prices are ranging from 63.9 cents per gallon to 68.5, depending on whether the station is a self-serve outlet or a higher-priced family station.

In Prince Edward, prices average 71.9 cents per gallon for regular gas.

Mr. Sutton said most of Belleville's stations are owned by the oil companies and the owners accept the gas on consignment, receiving a set fee per gallon for filling a tank.

In Prince Edward, most service station operators are independents who buy the gas and charge relatively higher prices. They receive no oil company subsidies to permit them to charge lower prices.

Prince Edward Chamber director Gary Campbell observed: "So the only way a guy could be competitive is to turn his station over to them (the oil company) and let them run it their way."

Mr. Whittaker discussed the local situation noting there may be "over-control" that should be investigated by the government.

Chamber director Gordon Lloyd commented, "We suspect they are subsidizing company-owned stations to the detriment of privately-owned stations."

Macaulay House Gets 3-phase Master Plan

PICTON — A three-phase master plan for the restoration of The Macaulay House was released Wednesday by James Gooding, curator of the Prince Edward County Museum.

A long-term project, the restoration began this year and should be completed in 1988.

The Macaulay House is a former Anglican Church recently adjacent to Christ Church of St. Mary Magdalene now renovated as a county museum.

Built in the 1830s the rectory, with its rolling lawns was purchased by Prince Edward County council in 1971 but few improvements have been initiated until recently.

Mr. Gooding said Prince Edward County council has given approval in principle to a museum budget that allow $30,000 for capital expenditures in 1975.

The master management committee has spurred the restoration plans in principle and has agreed to call restoration architect Peter Stokes to head the project.

Mr. Stokes was described as outlined by Mr. Gooding during a press conference to reveal restoration plans.

The initial phase will involve three phases, the first finishing from 1975 to the 1977.

In this period a master interior use plan is to be completed and a 25-year property plan. A new roof as required will be added and chimneys repaired. Major structural repairs will be made and a new heating.

Brickwork will be repaired and repointed and the front verandah removed and reconstructed in this period. Exterior painting also will be done.

A) period will be acquired for immediate storage and the landscaping and landscaping with be completed.

1977 through 1978 phase two will be initiated, involving restoration of the cooking fireplace, bake oven and related masonry. Heating revisions will be made as required and a kitchenette installed.

In phase two, offices, a library and archives will take shape and there will be continuation of interior decorations to the master plan.

Phase three, final step in the restoration project, focuses on outbuildings and exterior features such as a smokehouse, privy, wellhead and possibly a summer house. It begins in 1979 and continues through 1988.

Cutters Docked at Trenton

TRENTON — Three Canadian Coast Guard cutters sit at their moorings at the government wharf in Trenton today preparing to sail Friday to take up summer stations on the Great Lakes.

The three ships, two 65-foot and one 85-foot cutter, recently left their Prescott winter home port.

Crews of the ships have been attending briefings over the past two days, at CFB Trenton on search and rescue operations.

One of the cutters, the 180-ton, steel-hulled Rapid, is the largest ship operated by the federal Department of Transport on the Great Lakes. It will take up patrol duty out of Goderich in Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

Students Visit Iowa Pen Pals

TRENTON — Twenty - nine grade five and six students from North Trenton Public School will start Saturday on a 1,600-mile bus journey to Webster City, Iowa, for a one-week stay to study the American town.

Murray Workman, school principal, said Wednesday the trip to the Midwestern town of about 9,000 people is one the school has been planning for over the past year.

Its intention is to show "similarities among different cultures" to the 10 to 12-year-old children who have been studying the Iowa town and comparing it to Trenton.

Mr. Workman said the trip is a culmination of a "Hands Across the Border" program geared to acquaint students with comparative social studies. It also develops their citizenship skills, he said.

The students have been studying both the Quinte area and the country surrounding Webster City in terms of political structure and agriculture. Trenton and the American town were "very similar in size and make-up," Mr. Workman said.

The 29 students are all members of a single class at the school.

Each will be staying in the home of the Webster City student with whom the Trenton student has been corresponding over the past year.

Most Hospital Pledges Returned by Cyclists

TRENTON — All the big pledges from participants in last month's Trenton Memorial Hospital Bike-a-thon have now been submitted, according to co-ordinator Mona Ellis.

Mrs. Ellis said Wednesday that 96 of the 298 people who braved wet roads and winds pushing up to 15 miles an hour have submitted money raised during the third annual hospital bike-a-thon.

In all, she said, $18,000 had been pledged during the event. The funds will go towards payment for a gastroscope and labroscope, together valued at $12,000.

This year's bike-a-thon was the most successful to date. Participation was up from 298 in 1974 and money raised increased by $2,000.

She said about 200 people still hadn't submitted their pledges and encouraged them to call bike-a-thon organizers. "We'd like to have this wound up fairly soon."

Those people that haven't submitted their pledges will also not be eligible for prizes the bike-a-thon organizers plan to award this Saturday, at 10:30 a.m. at the hospital's visitors' entrance.

All who completed the bike-a-thon's shortened 24-kilometre ride and submitted pledges are eligible, by draw, to win a bicycle or one of five pairs of jogging shoes. Other prizes will also be awarded.

A Nod to Rhodesia's Black Majority

Jamaica's Michael Manley Reflects Impatience of the Burgeoning Third World

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The Commonwealth heads of government conference just concluded in Kingston, Jamaica, a socially disrupted city with 25 per cent unemployed, a sad messages for us we have heard before. And we are hearing them again with increasing urgency.

The Third World, where most of mankind lives and where most of mankind suffers from racism, poverty and exploitation, will not wait for the rich countries to find the solutions.

The poor countries had their spokesmen at this conference and their own impatient style of forcing the agenda around — none other than host Prime Minister Michael Manley of Jamaica who once fought for another cause as a wartime member of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Prime Minister Manley, leader of a largely racially black island nation in the sun, has definitely out-of-order his colleague, Ian Smith of Rhodesia, Mr. Manley was to address the conference's first plenary session without consulting them.

Predictably, Mr. Manley was out of order and Bishop Muzorewa represents no government, though some day he could attend a future Commonwealth conference as Rhodesia's first black prime minister. That is, if there are future Commonwealth conferences.

But Mr. Manley's impatience was inevitable for another reason. In Jamaica itself beyond the comfortable hotel compounds where the leaders met, Manley himself is racing against time.

His backward country is a microcosm of the huge unsolved problems of most of the underdeveloped world.

And Mr. Manley's grand design for Jamaica, which he grimly labels "social democracy," is a classic Third World answer to slow response from rich nations.

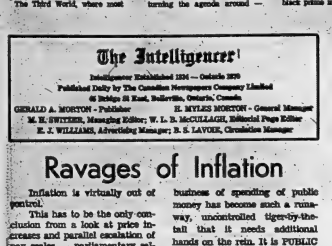
He is moving toward complete nationalization of the big foreign-owned (American and Canadian) bauxite extractive industries. He has formed a commodity cartel of the world's bauxite-producing nations with headquarters in Kingston, along the lines of OPEC, (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) in the oil industry.

And last week also in Kingston, he proposed a new Commonwealth specialists prize to meet annoyed meeting of Commonwealth finance ministers, it is proven to have had such influential men feel about Rhodesia.

And even if the Rhodesian racial crisis lingers to the next conference after five warnings from this one and the earlier monthly in Ottawa in August, 1973, the arrival of the so-called "new economic world order" is adding a further dimension to Third World demands.

In basic terms, it means new divisions and demands power made possible by the major hikes in commodities, beginning with oil in 1973.

The resources-rich countries have established or are about to establish commodity cartels. And the vital raw materials which once set many of the rules of international trade economic power has passed from them to the new countries.



Ravages of Inflation

Inflation is virtually out of control.

This has to be the only conclusion from a look at price increases and parallel escalation of pay scales — parliamentary salaries included — and now with the prospect of another cost-of-living oriented mail strike in the offing.

The evidence of inflation is all around, from the cost of food (although admittedly, it does seem to have stabilized a bit) to car insurance. A hike of as much as $20 on last year's premium, without so much as a single claim in that period, is not unusual. Small wonder that provincial opposition leaders are calling for an inquiry into these increases.

Government guidelines past, present, or pending appear equally ineffectual and the spiral continues ever-upward.

In education the trend is the same. Hastings county's 1975 budget has been set at $31.87 million, or an increase of 19.2 per cent. However, the average mill rate increase across the county is only 12.3 per cent and the board has yet to establish priorities.

The public, as well as the board, should be giving thought to spending at all levels, including county education, to where the priorities about to be established. While board members are also known as "trustees," the whole business of spending of public money has become such a runaway, uncontrolled tiger-by-the-tail that it needs additional hands on the rein. It is PUBLIC MONEY, after all, which is at stake.

The Ontario government, meanwhile, is showing some signs of urging more restraint in spending, as revealed by Loyalist College board chairman Will Williams. He reports Colleges and Universities minister James Auld as calling for more belt-tightening.

This could be very pertinent in the contemplation of such ventures as the Quinte Community Arts Centre, which could become a reality only with an operating deficit of upwards of $60,000 annually.

Society has come a long way from the days of balancing its books. In fact, deficit financing has become a way of life. But how long can it go on; someone pulls on television in recent days of the prospect of a crash — and soon, perhaps within months.

If that happens, whatever guidelines remain will not matter any more, and it will be the result of our cumulative extravagance in recent years, without regard for matching production in all spheres to keep costs down. Meanwhile, some spending restraint is essential, whatever ultimately is in store.

Image and Initiative

If there is an erroneous impression abroad with regard to the police, and a need to project one that affords the public a better idea of what police and their work are all about, then Lynda Smith is a charming and articulate proponent of this ideal.

Mrs. Smith is with the community services branch of the Belleville police department and part of her work is concerned with helping to change a misleading image many people have with regard to the officers of the law. She says police are regarded variously with distaste, awe, and admiration.

In any event, Belleville Rotarians, at a meeting this week symbolic of International Women's Year — Mrs. Ruth Burrows of the Volunteer Bureau also spoke — were left with the impression of an efficient force at the local level which presides over a relatively peaceful community.

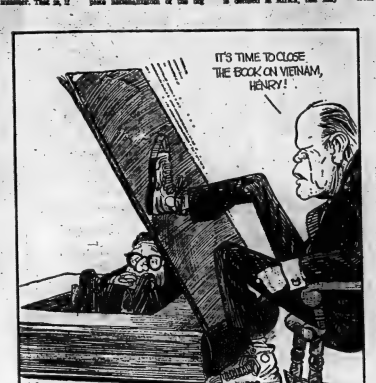
Indeed Belleville is the sort of community which is "smaller than London, but is a nice place to live" — this comment overheard in a restaurant from a woman who has come here from the western Ontario city.

Mrs. Burrows meanwhile had already outlined to the club some of the reasons for Belleville's reputation as a community that cares. She spoke of the new child development centre for normal, handicapped, and emotionally disturbed children. To be located at the corner of Bridge Street and Bleecker Avenue, and scheduled for opening in September, it will be on an integrated centre — the first of its kind in the province.

Although the centre is being made possible through a grant from the Ontario Community and Social Services Ministry, Mrs. Burrows is hoping financial support will also be forthcoming from service clubs, citizens, business and industry. As it is, the centre will draw on volunteer help in its operation, as the bureau does in its other community-oriented programs.

The Centre is an outgrowth of existing programs, such as the nursery for children of unwed mothers who attend classes at Bridge Street United, and of similar nursery programs in schools and others for handicapped children. On an integrated basis, the new Centre will be a fulfillment of existing and potential needs in the community and as such deserves the support of the public.

Again to quote:



Tax Dollar Beneficence Assists Indians, Students, Senior Citizens

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — How's about some of your federal tax money to teach young Indians to be young Indians?

Sounds rickickidockle?

Maybe it does, but there's the way it is with the federal Secretary of State's $4 million Student Summer Employment Program.

Like on page 25 of the department's report, and section of late July in which was spent to provide what is described as a "wide variety of jobs for approximately 2,000 students" had summer:

Le bande d'Abitibi environ, Kapuskasing. The objective of the Indian tribe's summer project was to teach Indian youth their traditional way of life . . . that is how he slept regularly, sleep outside without a tent . . . and how to cook . . . and food . . . canoe. A number of young Indians were able to learn these techniques thanks to a $5,300 grant."

If $4 million was spent on 2,000 students as the Secretary of State reports, then it follows that on the average each student got $2,000.

So on that basis, the going rate for a university degree in moose-calling or hunters is rapidly shooting, teachers should and canoe leading runs at $2,000 in the halls of Secretary of State learning.

There was another remarkable — or perhaps in this day and age, predictable — expenditure — course in sexual learning funded by the secretary of state (with your money) State Secretary.

It was sponsored by a group in Fort Frances, Ontario, and read like the Secretary's summary of the program, a report, of $4,284, provided "enabling five students to attend the Let's Get Basic" to various local groups in an attempt to improve communications between teens and adults. The play focussed on teen attitudes to such issues as drug use, sex and cheating."

How may little teens short-changed on that $4,284 as a cutting Lagger, for the State Secretary neglected to reveal what the play's script about sex and cheating in the under 20's set.

There was an Ottawa project on which the State Secretary went for $1,288, but, as we may not have yet hanging breakdown, something what came of it.

"Pollution Probe: Ottawa . . . $1,288 enabled one student to investigate why people do or do not become members of Pollution Probe. The student determined that the State Secretary doesn't tell whether structural changes or changes in home emphasis are required to attract more members."

The State Secretary, relatively, found many of the students to turn sensor citizens groups' problems in a paying proposition.

If you can imagine it — and you won't have to go that far because it is spelled out on Page 36 of the State Secretary's report — a grant of $4,400 was provided to four students "enabling them to direct a daycamp for underprivileged citizens of supervised outdoor activities."

What activities requiring activities by students!

Well such grabbers as "mushroom hunts and leaf-collecting," among other "programs" in the kids call this kind of thing.

These four students, each receiving $1,100 for their efforts, labored among the elderly at Grace Villa on Oak Ave. Incorporated at Ste. Bay, Quebec.

Now, in case you are yearning to travel and not getting very far out of town because you are too busy working and can't spare the time, or simply don't want to walk to work globe-trotting into your budget, you will be cheered to know the Secretary of Sate spent $8,250 to promote the joys of harnessed abroad among students.

The $8,250 went to four of them to make a film to provide "information on international understanding by sending young Canadians abroad and by bringing youth to make Third World to Canada."

Maybe you were a student and knew somebody who knows the Secretary of State?

Five of an unknown origin in the basement of the Post Office last this afternoon caused considerable work for the local fire brigade before the blaze was brought under control. The fire burned quite briskly in the waste paper and babes situated in the basement and not many minutes after the outbreak, the entire building was filled with smoke. The employees of the office fought to save money and mail and Fire Chief Scott Pontrem called off their beats to assist the firemen in control the blaze. All the firemen are using smoke masks due to the presence in quantity of the smoke. As yet, damages can not be estimated due to the smoke hindering vision.

Fuel Price Up—Or Shortage

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

There of natural gas are going to have to pay higher fuel bills next winter—if they are lucky.

But if they are unlucky, they could face a new energy shortage.

The Petroleum Administration Act, passed by the federal government recently, gives Ottawa the power to decide by how much prices in gas will go up—or even to hold the price where it is.

The government of Ontario, which consumes a big share of the gas produced in Western Canada, thinks Ottawa should make only modest increases.

But the government of Alberta, where much of the gas comes from, seems determined that the price ought to go substantially.

Its arbitration panel has authorized an increase of nearly 100 per cent in the price of gas sold by a big producer (Gulf Oil Canada Ltd.) to the major distributor, Consumers Gas Co. (Interlines Ltd.). Other producers expect similar favorable treatment from the Alberta government.

Here are some of the arguments being made against an increase in the price of natural gas:

—The Alberta-authorized increase of almost 100 per cent is unconscionable in the cost of producing gas.

—It will effect would be extremely inflationary, especially since gas is the basic fuel and essential raw material for the petrochemical and other big industries. Ontario officials say it would mean a $120 annual increase on the bills of an average family using gas for heating and cooking.

—Only about one-eighth of the increase would be retained by the gas producer, so the industries affected only by the gas would be seriously damaged.

—The price would be an incentive to discover and produce more gas.

And here are arguments in support of an increase:

—If producers may not given any financial incentive in the form of higher prices, the development of new gas supplies could stop. That's what happened in the United States, where for many years the price of gas was frozen at a low level to protect consumers.

—Under development efforts are rationalized, a shortage of gas for Eastern Canadian users is a distinct possibility during the next several years, if gas from new Arctic reserves become available in the heavily-populated areas of the country.

—Natural gas has long been under-priced in relation to oil and other sources of energy, and it has been used wastefully because it was too cheap.

—Gas-producing province, Ontario, is just as naturally entitled to resist a price increase. Economic evidence aside, it's good politics to do so.

But the case is now on the federal government. In all likelihood, Ottawa will use its new powers under the Oil and Petroleum Administration Act) to hold down the price multiplication planned by Alberta, and reject it with a series of modest price increases spread over a period of time to reduce the inflationary effect.

In the end, users will have to resign themselves to higher prices.

But, in a monopoly market with no readily available alternatives, consumers have more have a right to expect Ottawa to impose reasonable restraints on potential price gougers.

Chauffeurs for Bureaucrats

By DON O'HEARN

Recently it has come to light through questions in the house that the government owns cars and chauffeurs to the chairmen of the Ontario Securities Commission and the Ontario Liquor Licence Board.

Perhaps there are others.

The government seems to forget the incident of last year when Mitch Hepburn was an election with government cars and chauffeurs his main theme and the profligacy of governmental extravagance as his campaign example.

Then following his win, of course, he had the Conservation when he sold off all the government limousines.

The rationale offered by Consumer and Commercial Affairs Minister Sidney Handlestand for giving the chairman every driver was that it was "the only way" they'd get.

"They're worth $40,000 or more in salary.

It all depends which way you are looking!

At this writer's policy conference in Windsor Liberal leader Bob Nixon said he wouldn't feel bound by the actions of the meeting.

It was strictly advisory and he would fit preparing his own platform.

NDP leader Stephen Lewis criticized this pretty forcefully.

Not a few years ago, it was called, Mr. Lewis said just before the election the NDP premiers Schreyer and Barrett were said to have been bound by party policy decisions.

Mr. Lewis, when I asked him about this, said he had been different: that his position was that if he didn't agree with the decisions he would send them back.

Some difference?

The other day I received a sealed government envelope bearing in very large letters in the upper corner the word CONFIDENTIAL.

Wow, what was this—

It was the weekly sittings list of the Ontario Labour Relations Board.

A little hoopla showed that the Board wasn't going ultra-secret.

It seems that there is a surplus of all stationery agreed and it is using it up.

Crowe River Flooding Raises Questions from All Corners

By RUBY McCOY
Staff Correspondent

MARMORA — Who is responsible for the flooding in the Marmora area and why should the operation of the Crowe watershed be directed from Toronto instead of locally?

These were two questions directed at Bryan Boyce, resources manager of the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority, by concerned citizens and village councillors here at a recent meeting.

Mr. Boyce was to explain the authority's intention to map the Crowe Valley flood plain but was almost immediately involved in a discussion on who or what caused the flooding conditions at the junction of Crowe River and Beaver Creek.

Deputy-Reeve Grant Airhart pointed it was unfair to blame Lis cKeown, operator of the Marmora Dam, because all the logs were taken on that could have been.

He suggested the authority write the Marmora Herald, the village weekly newspaper which criticized Mr. McKeown for his dam operation in a recent article.

Mr. Airhart explained unlike logs in newer dams, the logs kept at the Marmora dam have to be put in and taken out by hand, a difficult task during high water.

Lack of communication between the dam operators in the system was blamed in the past as one of the obstacles in the proper operation of the control system. Mr. Boyce said he agreed the system needs a chairman and added he realized the Marmora dam was the critical point in the system as all waters are funneled through it.

He said an extra large amount of runoff from Beaver Creek contributed to the flooding problem this year. Reeve Jack Reynolds revived a former authority plan, which has been lying dormant, of constructing a dam on the creek since there is plenty of space to store the backup.

Criticism was raised that the whole system should be under the control of a local person instead of being directed from the chief engineer's office in Toronto.

Mr. Boyce noted, being newly-appointed in his position, he would require time to study the situation but added it would help if council and area residents would write the authority asking that closer control be placed on the water system. He said he would then take the problem to higher levels of government.

He said an engineering study will be done on the Marmora dam this year, probably in the fall. It will determine what is wrong with the present dam, where should a new one be built and the design of a new one.

Grant Gives Booth Boost

MARMORA — An opportunities for Youth (OFY) grant has made it possible for four area youths to set up a tourist information booth in this village, study the history of Marmora and publish a book within six months on their find ings.

The four people are Jim Airhart and Anita Weil of Marmora and Ardith McKinnon and Gar-net Pigden of Madoc. The latter two persons will be in charge of the history and book.

The booth will operate from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. from June 1 to August 30. Its location has not been determined.

Cost of the booth is $817.38 which is not covered in the OFY grant, Marmora and Lake Township have agreed to contribute $200 and this village will undertake the remaining cost.

Ski Trail Proposal Sent to Bernier

A proposal for creation of a major cross-country ski trail system circling through four northern Hastings County townships is being made to the provincial government.

The scheme is the offspring of the Ontario Hastings Recreational Trail (ORHT) whose spokesmen in Belleville say such a facility anticipates the sport's future popularity.

The plan which projects long-range development up to 10 years, has been sent in Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier.

It calls for a main route looping from east of Bancroft up to 30 hushland miles through adjacent townships. The system would include shorter side trails carving off the maine circuit.

Much of the development would be on Crown land once proposed for the York River Project — a scheme to create a cottage-tourist area centered on a man-made lake and pig con-boled three years ago after a disappointing economic cost benefits study.

Jim Staveley, ORHT president, says the scheme was inspired by the success of a cross-country ski loop developed off the trail last winter near Moira Lake. It prompted many inquiries about more facilities in future.

The proposal includes:

— Creation of a trail system though Dungannon, Mayo, Monteagle and Carlow townships. It would be centred on an unused gravel pit off Highway 500, eight miles east of Bancroft. The pit would provide a base for car parking and other facilities such as a chalet for one as a starting-base by the skiers.

— Shorter side trails — three to eight miles long — would provide facilities for novice skiers or those not wishing to tackle the longer route.

— Shelters would also be constructed along the circuits for use as emergency points and first aid stations.

Snowmobile safety patrols would also be required along the trails.

— Overnight accommodation should also be considered at trail in the McWhirter Lake area of Carlow Township, 15 miles northeast of Highway 28 base.

In its brief to Mr. Bernier the ORHT hopes from ministry backing for the scheme.

It says the proposal may "seem somewhat elaborate." However, in view of the mounting demand for cross-country ski facilities it is designed "to anticipate future growth in this winter sport.

There are no indications the pastime will "not continue to enjoy this upsurge in interest," says the brief.

Such a project would also increase the potential to be tapped by the winter tourist industry in the Bancroft area, says the ORHT.

Foxes Raising Rabies Fears

Foxes are raising fears of increased rabies in north Hastings County.

As a result, federal veterinary authorities in Belleville now are pondering organizing vaccination clinics for animals throughout the county this summer.

Dr. J. F. McCorquodale, Belleville area federal veterinarian says there has been an increase in incidents involving rabies — mainly blamed on an upswing in the fox population — particularly in the county's northern townships.

Requests have been received for immunization clinics and the proposal now has gone to regional federal authorities for consideration.

If approved, the clinics likely will be held in June.

One such request came from and was relayed last week to Hastings County council by the county's ARDA and Tourism committee. The committee recommended $800 be allocated to advertise such clinics and pay for a student to assist with reports.

Foxes are a rpime carrier of the disease and the Ontario natural resources believes their numbers now are on the increase, reported Dr. McCorquodale.

He said there had been an increase in foxes in Renfrew County — which borders Hastings' northern municipalities — and the problem was often a spillover as the fox population spread.

The veterinarian said some livestock — about two head of cattle and a horse — had been lost to rabies in recent months.

But there were increasing reports of foxes attacking dogs and showing signs of other "strange" behavior patterns.

The problem is a cyclic occurrence. The incidence of rabies inserts with the increase in foxes, then in turn declines as the animals are killed off by the disease, said Dr. McCorquodale.

The last clinics held for domestic animals in the county was in 1972.

D. C. R. Lesk, public health officer for Hastings — Prince Edward Counties, said his department in Belleville had not lately received any reports of rabid dogs or cats.

Canada Fast Day Mainly in Ontario

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Participation in Canada Fast Day on Wednesday seemed to be concentrated in Ontario, where the campaign to raise money for famine victims in Children Fund started.

Paul Mason, one of the students at Le Salle Secondary School in Kingston, Ont., who organized the fast, said 4,000 students were said to participate in school across Canada. Students were asked to give up lunch and use the money saved to help buy food for children in underdeveloped countries.

However, a Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press showed many schools did not receive the letter because of recent postal disruptions or there was little interest in the project.

John Bosco, teacher of the English and politics class at Le Salle which started the project, said the fast day would be considered successful if even 10 per cent of Cataraqui High school students participated.

Paul Mason, 18, said about 85 per cent of the 1,120 students and staff at Le Salle participated and donations exceeded $1,000.

Jarvis Collegiate in Toronto raised money for the project by selling bowls of rice and chicken for 50 cents.

Tom Jenkins, student organizer at Jarvis, said the food was served to show students what children in underdeveloped countries eat, "and only once a day at that."

Joe Kiddierman, district director of Junior Forest—which caters to most secondary school cafeterias in the Metropolitan Toronto area—said participation in the fast was "spotty."

"In fact, a kid may have contributing money to the hungry day, then going and buying their lunches as normal," he said.

Students at Salisbury College, a private boys' school in Ottawa, participated in the fast, but a spokesman for the Ottawa board of education said none of its schools held fasts.

"Activities such as these are curtailed until the end of the school year due to the examinations timetable the students now have," the spokesman said.

Grain Stabilization Period Said Too Long

OTTAWA (CP) — Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board, rejected renewed opposition demands Wednesday for changes in a bill that would give legislative approval to the country's two-price wheat system.

Jack Horner (PC—Crow 2 s) said the bill, that would set a fixed price for domestically-used wheat — would "lock grain farmers in" for a seven-year period without provision for rising production costs.

The proposed legislation is retroactive to 1974 and would run until the end of 1980, fixing the price that millers pay for wheat at $3.25 a bushel.

The government would add a $1.35-a-bushel subsidy, giving farmers a net $5 price for domestically-consumed wheat. Export prices are currently above $6 a bushel.

Mr. Horner urged the government to shorten the cut-off date to the end of 1977 and then have it reinstated for another three years if the cost of production doesn't go up.

But Mr. Lang said many farmers are satisfied with the proposal. Moreover, rising production costs had been considered during consultations and when the government agreed to grant a clause calling for an annual review of the price farmers receive.

Trial Adjourned

HAMILTON (CP) — The Hamilton Harbor Commission dredge-operated kind was adjourned Wednesday to next month after three days of the complicated legal wrangling.

The Ontario Supreme Court trial of Kenneth Elliott, 41, and Reginald Fisher, 41, on charges of bribery and conspiracy to contract kickbacks, began on Monday.

Quebec Construction Firms Facing Post-Games Bust

MONTREAL (CP) — After the 1976 Olympic Games, the Quebec construction industry may fall into a depression like that current activities boom, says the president of one of Canada's biggest construction companies.

Henri Gaudrin, president of A. Janin and Co. Ltd., compares Quebec's current building boom with the period preceding Expo 67. In the years immediately following Canada's centennial, the workmen's hammer was relatively silent in Quebec.

He forecast the building depression will be especially profound because of problems created by the current boom. Problems which were already apparent would intensify.

The Cliche commission, a provincial government inquiry into labor violence, revealed recent but did not identify the causes or solutions of this discontent, he said.

The lengthy inquiry, headed by Judge Robert Cliche, unearthed evidence of widespread corruption by labor, management and government officials involved in Quebec's construction industry.

Government officials involved in Quebec's construction industry.

Mr. Gaudrin blamed inflation and its resulting erosion of workers' buying power for the labor violence, which with the destruction of a campsite of the massive James Bay hydroelectric power project.

Out-of-living escalation results in "workers taking all the ways, good or bad, legal or not, to preserve their buying power."

At the same time, contractors "are ready to pay for having peace on the worksites to complete sooner the contracts while they are becoming more unprofitable."

Meanwhile, the government "allows the situation to continue until the physical violence augurs public opinion."

All these excesses will eventually have to be paid for, he said. The bubble of the building boom would then burst.

Currently, it is impossible to estimate accurately the costs of a project because the cost of materials and productivity of the workers are always changing in a detrimental fashion, Mr. Gaudrin said.

Many projects started during the last two years had as much as doubled in cost.

Ongoing projects usually identified with Quebec's building boom include the James Bay project, Olympic installations, Montreal subway extensions and Place Desjardins, a 125 million downtown project housing shops, offices and apartments.

All these projects have huge manpower requirements. Mr. Gaudrin said when these projects are completed it is doubtful that other projects will be waiting to absorb a huge crop of unemployed.

Mr. Gaudrin's company, Janin, one of the bigger employers in the Canadian construction industry, employs 1,300 full-time staff and as many as 6,000 workers during peak periods.

The company, founded in 1888, is to only responsible for giving modern Montreal the look it now wears. Through Janin and its various subsidiaries, Montreal has sprouted such recent landmarks as Place Victoria, the stock exchange tower; Chateau Champlain, one of Montreal's more elegant hotels; and Place Ville Marie, a towering office and shopping development.

Older landmarks include Canadian National Railways Central Station, Simpson's department store, Montreal City Hall and Mercier Bridge, crossing the St. Lawrence River.

Charladies Volunteer For Supersonic Test

FAIRFORD England (CP) — A group of British charlady's has joined the supersonic club along with artisans and other workers who might never be able to afford a flight in a fast seagrs aboard a Concorde jet liner.

The four office cleaners, together with installers, from British Aircraft Corp. factories were among 11 people the excitement of flying at 1,300 miles an hour were 16-year-old Fred Ilas and his wife Jean. Mrs. Ilas admitted: "We will probably never be able to fly in Concorde when it is in actual service as we were really thrilled to get the chance now."

Others on the 35-hour supersonic dash to the Bay of Biscay coast had included BAC executives and fitters who had helped to build the plane.

Speech Pathologist Helps Young and Old Communicate

Lilly Cheng helps young people speak.

By SHARON AIRHART

Lilly Cheng says you've probably going to run into half a dozen people in your life time who have a serious handicap. They can't coommunicate by talking quite as well as you can.

Perhaps they stutter. Or slur their speech because of a brain injury or stroke. Perhaps there's child in your neighbourhood — or in your house — who can't articulate properly.

It's important, Mrs. Cheng says, that you know how to react.

A speech pathologist at Belleville General Hospital, she recommends that you relax, look at the speaker and wait patiently.

"You can help him through a very difficult experience that way," Mrs. Cheng says.

At BGH, Mrs. Cheng works daily with persons from 18 months of age to 80, helping them communicate verbally. Formerly a linguist, she became interested in the acquisition of language while at Michigan State University in the United States. Then she heard Ontario School for the Deaf supervisor Dr. J. O. Derbyshire speak and decided to move to this area.

"I was amazed that an area the size of Belleville and Trenton was without a speech therapist. So I came."

In her language laboratory, Mrs. Cheng might deal with the toddler whose language is delayed — in other words, a child who does not speak. He might have a hearing loss which needs diagnosis (its first symptom might be lack of speech) or be mentally retarded or have suffered a brain injury. Or his lack of speech may be a functional disorder — whatever the reason, he doesn't speak.

Or she may deal with the child who has an articulation problem — the one who says wabbit or telphone for rabbit or telephone, substituting or omitting sounds.

For the stutterers — most of her clients are teen-agers — Mrs. Cheng seeks to improve their speech performance with behaviour modification techniques.

All of her efforts, she points out, however, depend on reaching the people who need her help, particularly children.

"Speech and language readiness is the first thing you need to learn," she says.

"A good control of symbols is necessary to think."

For that reason, she urges early assessment of speech problems so that the young child can be educated and trained even before nursery school.

"Parents should always be aware of language behaviour," she says, adding that there are indicators of average development which can be measured.

"Watch how your young child reacts to other children and the way he plays. Notice the way he indicates his wants — he should be encouraged to ask for what he wants."

Mrs. Cheng says the average 18-month-old child uses 50 words; the average two-year-old 200 words. The three-year-old should use 1,000 words and speak in sentences.

For more information, a display about speech and hearing — May is speech and hearing month — will be at the Quinte Mall until Saturday.

Parliamentary- Wives Want Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — The wives of some MPs and diplomats say they should get money—or at least a little recognition—for toiling on "behalf of their husbands.

Several wives of parliamentarians and diplomats told a seminar here Wednesday that it is time they went on the government payroll for their tasks as hostesses, secretaries and managers for their husbands.

They said a husbands election to the Commons or posting to a foreign country upsets families, cuts short the independent careers of many women and forces wives into unpaid jobs as public servants.

But others said women should be content to do what they can to support their husbands and not push for more independence.

The seminar, sponsored by the Parliamentary Wives' Association, showed sharply different views between younger and older women on whether the public is getting "two for the price of one": when MPs are elected or diplomats are sent abroad.

Laurelie Waits, wife of a diplomat, said she must give up her government policy analyst's job to follow her husband to a posting at the Canadian embassy in Washington.

Such moves are fine for the husband, Mrs. Waits said, "but what about our responsibilities towards ourselves and our own development?" She said the government should consider some form of compensation for wives who interrupt their own careers in favor of their husbands'.

Maureen McTeer, wife of MP Joe Clark (PC—Rocky Mountain), said MPs should not be criticized for hiring their wives at government expense to work in their offices.

But Evelyn Monro, wife of Donald Monro, a former diplomat who now is Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, said women should consider it a privilege to support their husband's careers.

What's the Point Of Mother's Day?

It all started as a nice idea.

When her mother died in early May, 1906, Anna Jarvis resented the fact that nobody because they had such an ideal relationship. During the next few years she enlisted in memorial services, and persuaded first the city of Philadelphia, and then the state of Pennsylvania, to eventually the entire nation, to join her in the annual tribute to motherhood.

Miss Jarvis's well-meant efforts have swollen in 70 years to a monstrous, and incredibly American, occasion. Although reverence for motherhood is an essential part of many other countries and cultures, the flashy celebrationmight" pressured around Mother's Day into a superficial and commercial bash.

While all of us are influenced by the media as we are, can't most people tell a token card if our mothers are alive? Just how many mothers, if they shrug away the importance of a Mother's Day card, can avoid being hurt if their children don't "remember them" the second Sunday in May?

If a woman's been a "good mother", then she deserves honor and recognition every day of the year. But what if she wasn't a perfect mom? How many women, after all, are naturally great in the role? It tempts to become the all-knowing mother.

In fact, there are probably lots of mothers who are sad lovable mothers, but are comfortable people in other ways.

And haven't you ever heard, or said yourself, "You know, I do wasn't my mother, I'd probably like her," as if being a modern child's friend were unpardonable conditions?

If you are a mother with grown-up or grown children, have you never sighed inwardly "If only they knew that under all this I'm just me"?

So many of the qualities that make motherhood most pleasant in a human relationship — warmth, possessiveness, nagging and guarding kids, but "all for their own good"... It's very hard sometimes when you're a child, to see beneath those characteristics to view the person beneath.

What do you know about your mother, for instance? (Or how much do your children know about you?)

What are her dreams, her secret thoughts and her memories of life before the children born? What do you think about politics, ambition, success or responsibility, completely apart from her mother-eye view on these issues?

What would you two talk about if you were meeting for the very first time?

What would you be like outside the sometimes strengthening and sometimes-strangling ties of giver and taker, taker and giver?

For What's-Her-Name's sake in celebrating Mother's Day just because of the fact of birth and the job of child care?

And, if you discover, or already know, that you don't like or respect or enjoy your mother as a person . . . is it swishy phoney to go through the motions of dear Anna Jarvis's sincere nicetism?

Slow Security Checks Better Than Danger

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in response to "Irked at La Guardia", who, as a frequent traveler, being a flight attendant, is irked.

A few years ago I had the unfortunate experience of being hijacked. I was the very terrifying thing that has ever happened to me. We were completely at the mercy of a psychiatric patient. If the check system had been in effect at that time it would have saved the passengers and eight crew members (not to mention their families) a great deal of agony.

I'd like to say to "Irked," if the security check system irritates you a few minutes as you check your baggage in cargo? Anyone who has been on a plane for 14 hours without food, water and working toilets will spent a night in Cuba, will agree with me. It's no fun. I guess we don't knock the system until we have been grabbed in the abruptness of surprise.

Dear R.J. Ames, friend. A's another frequent traveller. I'm delighted the airlines are checking hand luggage. I admit, however, that I'm partial to airlines that use X-ray equipment that scrutinizes clogging around in purses and tote bags.

Dear Ann Landers: For the past seven months I have been dating an owned father. Perry is 22-yrs-old and Jim 31. His baby is six months old and he is crazy about her. Jim was engaged to marry the mother but they couldn't get along and the engagement was broken off. He still sees her because he is so wild about the baby.

Perry's parents have been on his back a lot since the baby was born. They want him to marry the girl and work out their differences later. This is their only grandchild and they are crazy about the little girl, too.

Everything was fine until two months ago when I had to leave town to take care of my sisters children. She had surgery and I offered to help out. When I returned to town, Perry had his feelings toward me had changed and we could never go back to where we were. I love the guy and want things back to normal. I'm sure when I was away the baby's mother got to him and this is where the trouble started.

Will you please tell me how to get Perry to marry me? I know he loves me and not the mother of his child. He has told me so a dozen times.—Perry's Girl Girl.

Dear Girl: Sorry, but you're fighting a losing battle. Frankly if you lose this one you win.

JUST ARRIVED!
We've no red carpet to roll out; no brass band to serenade you. But we can help you with menus and locations of stores, and recommend reliable babysitting, shopping information and all the other things you'll want to know about your new home town.
A Welcome Wagon hostess will visit at your convenience to provide all this and gifts as well.
It's all yours—free—for a telephone call to Welcome Wagon at 962-2169
Welcome Wagon

An unwilling groom makes a very poor husband, very much the former going back to the other woman in order to see his child. This would be the source of never-ending arguments between you two. My advice is to write off Perry NOW and save yourself a lot of heartache.

Dear Ann Landers: We've come to think of you as a friend of the family. Our teen-age daughters are a delight.

One daughter is a college freshman, the other a junior. Both are intelligent and heart-to-heart. No immoral behavior to worried with or be shunned by intelligent people.

Is her horrible grammar going to be a serious problem or can I isolate and disapprove each every time I hear "Me and Jane was walkin' through the park" I shudder.—Worried

Dear Worried: A daughter is not a daughter-in-law. Regard special tutoring, or a crash course in grammar. Any good grade student in English could use the money and your daughter would be the first to know.

We owe you a vote of thanks for helping them form good values.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you had a letter in your column from a secretary who never dreamed of calling her boss (chairman of the board of a major fuel company) by his first name. I hope that square dame saw the results of a national survey regarding wife's service recently.

It revealed that 91 per cent of the men bosses questioned said they preferred to be called by their first names.

Age difference between employers and employees were not a major factor. Ninety-six per cent who objected to first names were business lawyers.

How do you like them apples?—Gotcha

Dear G: The apples are fine. It's the survey I question. I don't know who those 500 bosses were, but I did a little survey of my own and the findings were as follows: 80 per cent of the bosses preferred to be called "Mr." or "Dr." "Mrs." or "Miss" (P.S. Not one said "Ma.")

Leaders Consider Others

One of the characteristics of greatness is the care a person takes in dealing with people. After all, a person of good intelligence realizes that progress is only made through working together with others.

This applies to employers as well as other people. An open door policy is the thing; but only if employee hesitates to walk through just open door and the employer is the one who emerges from their sanctums and circulates with amazed looks on their good fellowship.

A man who is a leader, a good one, will know that he holds status when he asks that "something special" which boils down to consideration of those who are working with him, in minor matters.

Dear Doris: "Disgusted" complained that her husband was domineering. I'd like to hear my experience.

When my husband told me there was not enough money to buy extra clothes for the children and then later wanted to buy something for himself, I said, "How can you? You told me you had no money!" I got my money and he got what he wanted.

I would buy all school supplies with the money and nothing was ever said about the grocery bill.

If I was told I could have $100 for clothing for the children, I found that if I made an order for $82 I never saw the other $8. If the order came to $180 nothing was said, but I would, often order two pairs of shoes (for example) and would return one pair and keep the money.

Cheating, lying, yes; but easier than having to beg for money.

"Disgusted" will just have to accept the fact that her husband is a selfish person and that maybe something in his past life has caused him to be that way. He knows sometimes because he cannot dominate them and he comes home to dominate us. When he kept trying to force an opinion on me I just said that that was his opinion and that mine was different.

He would criticize people and I would say to him, "If you run someone down it is because you feel that he is better than you and you want to pull him down to your level."

A Once Disgusted.

Dear Once: You are getting around the situation, to some extent, rather than facing it head on, aren't you? I like the part of your letter where you state your own opinion and then help your husband to think more clearly and recognize his is individual. I don't like the part about clouding — sounds too much like a peace-at-any-price attitude.

Tropical Fish Special

Every week I do this column. I always learn something. This week, when I phoned the Tropical Garden Pet Shop, 161 Front St., I learned about "community fish". Community fish are fish which are able to live together in the same aquarium, which makes them preferable to those of you who are just starting aquariums, or are interested in maintaining variety and color in your tanks. It was almost like getting a lesson in aquarium keeping as Cheryl Sherwood, owner of the Tropical Garden, at my rate, zoology aside. The Tropical Garden is offering a special price on such well-adjusted species — 3 for $1. And that's while the supply lasts. So if you want a happy, well-balanced neighborhood in your tank visit Tropical Garden and ask Cheryl about the Tropical Garden. A mere $1 or so, is a small price to pay for marine bliss, Right?

It's Getting Down To It

A few more brawls, penalties and goals, with a little television from the,referees, and the Stanley Cup Finals will be a reality. But they won't be a reality on your TV set, if your set is not in good operating order. The people to get that set in good order and promptly are the service staff at Superior TV, 183 Canniffon Rd. Superior prides itself on getting to your house within 24 hours of your plea for help. All you need do is to call 962-8516 and a competent and fast Superior repairman will be there as soon as possible. After all, he wouldn't like you to miss all that sportsmanship and competitiveness which includes the Stanley Cup playoffs. He won't be able to do anything about which teams are going to make it, but he can make sure that you see everything in vivid living colour — not in those pastures of dull black and white (or black and blue). Superior TV isn't called that for nothing you know.

Sprucing Up the Vehicle

And the vehicle in this case happens to be your own recreational vehicle — camper or trailer which requires some quality attention at some real vacation-type prices. And where are you going to get such carpeting? At Sidney Ina's Carpet Division of course, at the rear of Pinnacle St. Or your here cooking is going to require some carpeting, or maybe the old stuff is a little too old and scruffy, even for roughing it. Sidney Ina can help you there too. Because of their large, of quality carpet which Sidney Ina purchases, they can sell it to you for prices that would cause us all to say Ina'ver. Visit Sidney Ina or, if an evening appointment is more convenient, just call 962-0744 and a rep. will be arranged. Just because your camping out, or at the cottage doesn't mean you can't go in style — or that it has to be expensive style.

Gaining Those Extra Days

Belleview Glass and Mirror, 264 Pinnacle St. has a great idea for saving you golfing and fishing days this season. Do it all at once. And by "it", we mean taking off and putting on those weather storm windows. Why not do it all at once, with some help from Belleview Glass and Mirror? In one effort, you can have screens or steel storm windows and screens installed. So some fall, you don't need to panic. The job will be already done, by your forsaken right now. And don't think that those abandoned and shed doors and windows don't do a good job of keeping those flies and mosquitoes out. They certainly do — and for better than you and your half-a-job putting on those bothersome wooden ones. All you have to do is wait or call Belleview Glass at 962-9731. And goodbye labor and mosquitoes and hello golf course!

Taste Of What's To Come

Vader's Car Sales, 21 College St., just around the corner from their former location on Victoria Road, has, in their Datsun truck with a Cardinal camper, a taste of what's to come. Vader's are open on holiday Monday, and in the line of recreational vehicles which Vaders will soon be carrying. The particular Cardinal unit sleeps six . . . And another Vader feature is well worth mentioning, now that holiday time is fast approaching, is a reputable used car from a fine selection on hand at Vader's. And Vader's specialize in small cars and their used car selection at the moment contains many models of compact and sub-compact varieties. You can't have a good vacation if you're worried about the reliability of the car you're driving. Get rid of the worry before it starts and see Vader's now!

Some wigs take the form of pony tails or cascades and come in human hair, or that miracle wig fibre, Kurx. With a little wig magic, who will know that you spent all day at the pool or beach? And a special PS from Studio 221. Watch for the special insert in next Saturday's Intelligencer telling you how you'll profit shopping downtown during the Downtown Spring Shopping Festivities.

Boats, View And Great Food

That's when you'll get when you visit The Inn On The Bay Tavern in Picton any day of the week — a great view of the lovely Prince Edward Harbour, with its interesting selection of craft, and some great dining. Or if you're sailors you can remember to get yourselves up to the Inn On The Bay when you go sailing by in Picton harbour, a great favorite for local boating enthusiasts. Inn On The Bay likes sailors, and they like tourists, and they like local people. In fact, each and everyone receives the heartiest of welcomes when they visit the Inn On The Bay. So you don't have to have a boat to get there. A car or a bicycle will do. Just go through Picton to the top of the hill and watch for the large sign on your left. You really can't miss it. Nor should you!

Alberta Agency Obtains Results

EDMONTON (CP) — In its two years of operation the Alberta Export Agency has fostered more than $42 million in sales and lifted Alberta to a position of relative prominence in world trade circles, says Bruce Mathew, the agency's director of finance and administration.

"Two years ago I could have walked into an office in Beirut, Buenos Aires or Tokyo and announced I was from Alberta without my host having any conceivable idea where that was or what we represented.

"The situation is vastly different today."

Bear gall bladders have been sent to the Far East for pharmaceutical products, processed meats to Japan, cattle to Argentina and farm machinery to Italy with the help of the agency, which falls under the provincial government's newly organized department of business development and tourism.

"We're moving sizable quantities of potato granules to Japan and elsewhere from a plant down at Vauxhall," said Harry Hargrave, the agency's marketing commissioner.

"This market just opened up in the last two years. And were finding we've developed a product the Japanese like. The granules make better French fried potatoes than frozen, they tell us."

The agency, which used about 11 per cent less than its operating budget of $825,000 during the last fiscal year, offers financial assistance for the development and promotion of Alberta products on world markets.

It also sponsors trade missions to and from Europe, South America, the Pacific Rim, the Middle East and Africa.

"There's no way you can initiate these kinds of deals through mail order," said Mr. Hargrave, brother of Medicine Hat member of Parliament Bert Hargrave.

"You have to meet people face to face and as you get to know them and establish confidence in them you start to do business."

The agency, which sponsored 67 individual trade missions to 43 countries and brought in about 45 foreign missions from May, 1973, to December, 1974, maintains offices in London, Tokyo, Los Angeles, Ottawa and Toronto.

But it relies most heavily on "a highly-knowledgeable mobile force headquartered in Alberta and available to travel to the various markets as required," said Mr. Mathew. The Alberta staff, including clerical workers, numbers about 25.

The agency has authority to trade directly but, as it is committed to supporting the private sector, uses that authority only in unusual circumstances.

For example, it became involved in the bee industry last year when the California supplier of Alberta's bees raised his prices dramatically. The export agency bought $50,000 worth of Merideen bees at a lower price, sold them to Alberta beekeepers, bought back the queens and sold them back to Mexico. But the Alberta Beekeepers Association will perform that function this year.

The agency also assists in developing joint ventures with foreign interests, such as Alberta Japanese rapeseed crushing plants at Lloydminster and Fort Saskatchewan, Alta.

"This expands the economic base, provides more employment in Alberta and means the processing of more Alberta goods here at home," said Mr. Hargrave. "And we're automatically assured a (foreign) market for the product when the industry gets on stream."

Trade missions often receive inquiries abroad about engineering and technical expertise, which are referred to private Alberta consultants, he said.

South and Central American countries, in particular, have requested assistance in such areas as livestock production, meat processing and irrigation systems.

"Our know-how in the petrochemical industry is also in demand. We're getting to the position where we're providing the service the Texans provided us to when we initially got involved in oil in Alberta."

Among the financial assistance programs offered by the agency to Alberta farmers and businessmen are marketing grants, guaranteed loans, market promotion assistance and joint financing of new market or product concepts.

Marketing grants generally are limited to transportation costs to and from the potential consuming country. If the marketing effort is successful, the government expects to be reimbursed two per cent of resulting export sales.

The government will guarantee loans, at an interest rate of one per cent above the prime rate, for such purposes as financing purchases of raw materials to be processed in Alberta or for stockpiling products or animals pending export. Guaranteed funds also be used for the development of export markets. Funds may be provided on an interest-free basis, generally up to $50,000, towards the financing of new market or product concepts. The agency would expect a percentage of the profit should the venture be successful.

Caribou Chop Suey Novel Dish

ST. ALBERT, Alta. (CP) — Mixing ethnic dishes has long been popular among amateur culinary enthusiasts but a combination of Eskimo and Chinese must be some sort of first.

Diane Arbeeke found herself with a chunk of leftover caribou, a gift from a friend in Yellowknife, and decided, since the meat tends to be on the dry side, to make caribou chop suey.

The dish is a kind of Oriental-Arctic cultural mix which, when served over noodles—to add the European touch—with home-made red wine (Okanagan, 1974) and preceded by over proof rum from the Northwest Territories, is sure to please any palate.

Condominium Interest Reported Dying Down

TORONTO (CP) — Michael Warren, Ontario's deputy minister of housing, says the number of applications to convert rental apartments in the province into condominiums is decreasing.

Officials in other provinces report a similar trend, citing rent controls and difficulties in obtaining mortgage financing as contributing factors.

Mr. Warren said many landlords are finding it increasingly difficult to sell old apartments.

Bob McLeod, vice-president of Greenwin Development Ltd. of Toronto, said most mortgage lenders have decided to avoid giving loans to buy condominiums, particularly converted units.

"They say it's too much money in one location," Mr. McLeod said. "They are taking townhouses in preference.

"A lot of people think you can do a condominium conversion standing on your head. But there's a great financial risk."

Fred King, a salesman with LaPage Westcourt Realties Ltd. of Montreal, said he expects conversions to take the form of tenants in a rental building collectively purchasing their building from its owners.

Mr. King said he is afraid the Quebec government will move to prevent conversions, already taking place at a slow pace in the province, to keep an adequate stock of rental apartments.

In Alberta conversions are continuing at a rapid clip. But W. J. Masterson, general manager of Carman Realty Ltd. of Edmonton, said apartments converted to condominiums represent only a small portion of the total rental stock.

Prof. Darryl Baxter of the commerce faculty, University of British Columbia, Vancouver, said the rate of conversion in B.C. has declined.

"It's the rent-control program we have here. A lot of people would like to get out of the rental business."

Prof. Baxter said tough provincial regulations and B.C.'s Landlord and Tenant Act have prevented a wholesale disposal of rental buildings.

"Even if an owner can get permission to go ahead, he must provide three months' notice to a tenant and $300 in moving expenses."

Fausto Rosso, president of Swiss-controlled Fidfam (Ontario) Ltd. of Toronto, said his real estate development company is converting rental buildings into condominiums by selling suites to foreign investors.

The units are not occupied by the owners but are rented out to Canadians by Fidfam.

"The advantage is that you don't touch the tenant in conversions," Mr. Rosso said. "We're in the middle of a battle with the borough of Scarborough, trying to show it literally doesn't affect the tenant. ..."

Art Exhibit On Tour

OTTAWA (CP) — Nearly 300 objects of decorative arts covering the Victorian design period in England between 1838 and 1876, now are on loan in Canada. The organizer of the exhibit is Simon Jervis, assistant keeper of furniture and woodwork at the Victoria and Albert Museum in London. After being shown in Ottawa until April 27, the exhibit will move on to Quebec City.

Untouchables Given Right to Carry Guns

BOMBAY (CP) — Poor peasants belonging to the Harijan or untouchable caste now will be able to carry guns for self-defence.

Harijans in many rural areas, particularly Bihar, Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh and states in north India, have complained of "atrocities" by landlords and members of the higher castes.

Recently, hundreds of Harijan homes were set on fire in Gwalior County of Madhya Pradesh. A judicial commission is inquiring into the outrages stirred by Harijan politicians to higher caste Hindus.

Though the practice of untouchability has been outlawed by the Indian Parliament as a criminal offence, Harijans in some remote villages continue to suffer discrimination.

Often, as happened in Bihar last year, policemen, who generally belong to the higher castes, have been accused of failing to burning and looting Harijan peasant homes.

In a dramatic move to give more protection to Harijans, Madhya Pradesh Chief Minister P. C. Sethi announced that the government itself will distribute guns to them free of charge.

According to one estimate, the government may have to distribute more than 10,000 guns to Harijan families in Madhya Pradesh alone.

Other Indian states where atrocities on Harijans have been reported are watching the Madhya Pradesh experiment in protecting the lives and property of desperately poor caste.

"Some say Harijans politicians fear that placing guns in the hands of Harijans may lead to more rural lawlessness. They suspect members of the higher castes to buy guns in the black market.

Commons Begins Magazine Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons began debate today on proposed legislation aimed primarily at removing tax advantages held by Time Canada Ltd. and Reader's Digest.

The bill, to eliminate tax deductions for advertising in Canadian editions of the two United States magazines and on some U.S. border television stations, is expected to run into stiff opposition.

"We would be supporting the bill as it stands," Gordon Fairweather (PC—Fundy Royal) said in an interview Wednesday. He said he will outline the Progressive Conservative position, and the changes sought during a Commons speech today.

U.S. broadcasters, publishers of Time and Reader's Digest, and the publishers of three medical journals and four foreign-owned western newspapers also affected by the bill have said they will fight in continue doing business here.

State Secretary Hugh Faulkner, who introduced the bill three weeks ago, said he will seek to have it referred to committee where arguments from those concerned can be heard. The bill is a tax measure and normally would be dealt with only in the Commons, denying publishers and broadcasters a chance to make submissions.

Manning Would Pay More For MPs With Experience

OTTAWA (CP) — Pay raises for MPs should be based on their ability to get re-elected, Senator Ernest Manning (SC—Alberta) said Wednesday as the Senate gave approval in principle to proposed salary legislation.

"Parliament is one of the few fields where experience is not rewarded," Senator Manning said.

"A graduated indemnity would encourage more MPs to stay for more than one term."

The first term was a learning one and it was only in subsequent parliaments that an MP could put his knowledge to work effectively.

Senator Manning, Alberta premier for 25 years, attacked the federal New Democrats for their opposition to the pay bill in the Commons. He said their counterparts in British Columbia had brought in large increases for legislature members.

No Prospect for Early Settlement of Roadworkers' Strike

The strike of Hastings County roadworkers entered its third day of inactivity today.

Both county and union spokesmen today indicated no immediate developments aimed at breaking the deadlock over wages and working schedules.

It is the first labor county-wide involving county government since it was organized 135 years ago.

Phil Gauthier, area officer of Local 793, International Union of Operating Engineers, said the union would have to await a county initiative to reopen talks.

"We have no choice," he said. "... Our positions are crystal clear. Unless we get settlements we have no place to go."

Talks, which began last February before the road workers' contract ran out in March, unsuccessfully went to conciliation then reached an impasse Monday at mediation discussions. The session ended with negotiations being broken off.

"We have gone to all the places we can go — and now we're out on the street," said Mr. Gauthier.

Workers claim they first need $1.21 an hour to give them parity with average wage scales for municipal workers in the Belleville — Peterborough region. On top of the catch-up adjustment they want a 54-cent wage increase and the starting minimum for overtime reduced from 55 to 45 hours.

Warden William McCrea says the wage demands amount to more than a 40 per cent increase over a one-year agreement.

This would cost the county roads budget — approved only last week — $108,000 or about $3,150 per man, not counting overtime costs, said the warden.

Membership in the road-workers unit of the Local involves between 25 and a summer peak of 30.

Legal Aid Stays

The legal assistance project launched several years ago by law students is in Belleville to stay.

Not only that, it's expanding — both in demand and resources.

The program — Queen's (Belleville) Legal Aid — next Monday goes into its summer schedule — and steps up its availability to those needing its free services.

"It's a stabilized operation now in Belleville," says Ken Clarke, new project director. "Not only that, it's into an expanding phase."

Indicative of the claim is the increased caseload handled by the young advisers — 421 Queen's University law students.

The Belleville operation, run from an office in the United Community Services building on William St. — and making no-cost legal advice only a phone call away — is twin to a Kingston project.

The director Wednesday had no separate statistics for the Belleville program.

But both legal aid projects — in Kingston and Belleville — handled 1,500 calls and cases last year.

This compared with 1,300 in 1973, says Ken, 27 and entering his third year of legal studies and who worked with the Belleville scheme last year before his appointment as director for 1975.

As such, he heads up work teams of fellow students which has had to be slightly increased — to six, from five last year. It also is seeking an extra day to its office hours.

The Belleville project was launched three summers ago and is funded by federal opportunities For Youth grants and the province's Attorney General's department.

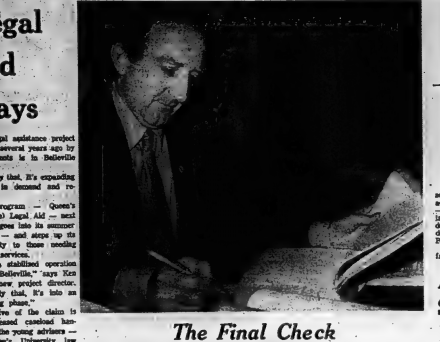
Its team is available to handle all the legal problems resulting from citizen involvement with the law.

Besides keeping an assistant to duty defence counsels at provincial and family courts, the group also offers legal advice on a broad spectrum of non-from welfare to workers' compensation.

This year too the law students are branching more publicly into the community.

They're making themselves available as speakers to any community group during the summer.

The summer schedule for the program — abbreviated in winter during university studies — sees the legal aid office open Monday Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Its telephone number is 965-6531.



The Final Check

City manager Wilbur Purcell makes last-minute check of most important document of city hall's year . . . the 1975 budget. The estimates were despatched to city councillors Wednesday night who will pour over its statistics before going into session Friday to strike a new mill rate.

St. Thomas' Council Refuses To Consider 'Absorption'

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

St. Thomas' Anglican Church officials have taken alternatives to restoration of the gutted 130-year-old structure and one is no drastic it will not even be studied, says Harold Carruthers, chairman of the church's property committee.

He told a meeting of the church council of the vestry Wednesday the one proposal involves a phase-out of the parish and absorption by other city Anglican churches "which we are not going to even consider".

The other two alternatives would mean demolition of the walls and tower and construction of either a new, contemporary church or the building of a multiple purpose complex which would see the disposition of the parish hall and rectory on East Bridge St., he said.

"We are not sure, but there is a possibility we could restore that church, commented Mr. Carruthers, pointing to approval of an application by the Ontario Heritage Foundation now in the works.

He noted the walls and tower, in danger of collapse at any time, have to be shored before workmen can enter to clear out the interior. "You can't do anything with the walls the way they are now," he said.

Mr. Carruthers explained consulting engineers have urged a quick decision by the church, either in order that work can begin before the walls further deteriorate. The north wall has a noticeable lean and large cracks have formed in the buttresses.

He said it is hoped to insure as many members of the congregation as possible in the restoration of the interior. "There's a lot to be done, believe me," he commented.

The council decided to approve the expansion of the property committee to include two members with expertise in various areas concerning reconstruction.

Licence Needed For Pits

On May 1, 1975, the Townships of Percy, Seymour and Rawdon were designated under the Pits and Quarries Control Act, 1971.

Operating pits and quarries have six months to be licensed. No new pits or quaries shall be opened without a licence.

Contravening any provision of the Act or the Regulations may result in a fine not exceeding $5,000 for each day on which the offence occurs or continues.

For information of the licensing procedure and regulations, you may obtain it from the Ministry of Natural Resources in Tweed.

Phone (613) 354-3380.

Vestry Office Door Likely Thieves' Exit

The vestry office door of St. Thomas' Anglican Church may have been used as an exit and not an entrance by unknown thief or thieves who made off with a quantity of silver prize to the early morning fire which gutted the 130-year-old sanctuary April 30, says a representative of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office here.

Paul McKerracher told a meeting of St. Thomas' council of the vestry Wednesday no evidence has been found to indicate the door was forced.

Police said last week it was believed that door was the least of entry but Mr. McKerracher pointed out marks have been found around a door leading into the basement from the outside.

He said the basement door has an inside panic bar which was found in locked position. This door might have been kicked in, the police said and the vestry door, used as the exit, he added.

Mr. McKerracher said the church caretaker has reported he lock all doors to the building at 5 p.m.

He also said it is believed more than one person might have been involved. He said some metal object - recovered from the debris were found removed from their locations.

Bemis Predicts Industry Park Will Be Filled in Four Years

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Work begins this summer on servicing and preparing 250 acres of city industrial land — the only major tract of land left in Belleville for industrial expansion, says industrial commissioner Fred Bemis.

The land, comprised of farmers' fields, is owned by the city and lies in the northeast quadrant of Belleville. It is bordered to the south by Canadian National and to the east in part by the city's existing industrial park and Highway 401.

"Securing land for industrial development is a major chore for the commission," said Mr. Bemis. "At best, this 300 acres will last for the next four years."

Within two years, there will be no more available land in the city's north east industrial park — the only other major industrial development area, he said.

This summer, the last of the land in that park will be turned into a 31-acre cul-de-sac. The end product of the cul-de-sac will be a subdivision of half a dozen small industries.

Authority Sells Land For Road

The executive of the Moira River Conservation Authority has approved sale of a 10.2-acre parcel of land on the northeast corner of the 250-acre Potter property to the Belleville Suburban Roads Commission.

The property is required for construction of approach ramps to an overpass over the CN tracks at Wallbridge Road.

Selling price was the authority is approximately $23,000, with the Suburban Roads commission cover legal expenses in the transaction.

Also, on May 24, in conjunction with the chattels on the Potter property, the buyers will have the right for sale. The successful buyer will have seven days in which to remove the cabins from the property.

Resources manager John Madden said development of the Potter property would be held in abeyance until a master plan for the whole area had been agreed upon. Work is under way on the plan, he said.

Turkey Out For Stroll

A Napanee area turkey may have run afoul of spring sooner than expected early this morning.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville were alerted to a passing motorist that a turkey was seen loose in the centre median of Highway 401 just east of the service centre at Napanee at about 4 a.m.

Provincial police at Napanee were advised not to word on the gobbler's safety was known by press time.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Wednesday, May 7, 12:31 p.m. — truck fire at 79 Byron St. started by incinerator being loaded for trip to the dump, 100 gallons of water used, minor damage to 1957 Chevrolet stake body.

The innovation was first tried in Belleville last year and was sold out to eight companies virtually before grand preparation was completed.

Mr. Bemis would give no corporate names but said "six new firms, have shown an interest in locating in the new cul-de-sac," located directly across Bell Blvd. from the pilot park idea.

"The first try met with unusual success — we expect the

City Firm Gets Jobs

From The Ottawa Bureau Of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Two federal contracts totalling $85,000 have been awarded to Ruskay Electric, of 371 Coleman St., Belleville, Supply and Services Canada announced this week.

The firm will provide the Department of National Defence and the Canadian Penitentiary services with electrical materials and supplies.

The two were among 362 tenders awarded contracts, each worth $10,000 or more, awarded to Canadian companies during the week ended April 25. Total value of these contracts was $48,413,367.

new park will be sold within two year," said Mr. Bemis.

The city has been fortunate in the past year to far exceed its industrial growth average for the province.

Compared with the provincial average of one industry for each municipality during 1976, Belleville claimed a total of 14.

"We're not giving anything away," said Mr. Bemis answering why Belleville was attractive land.

"We can't retrieve the money we spend during the sale of each piece of land," he said. "We are careful that the taxpayer is not losing money by an industry locating here."

On the other side of the coin, it's not financial profit we want through the sale of the land either," he said.

"We're looking for the long term municipal profit of adding to the tax base and provision of jobs for city residents," he said.

Staples Go Wrong Way

The Quinte District Labor Council was to buy a new stapler, following criticism from the Belleville Post Office.

It seems when council secretary Daisy LeRue staples the letters closed, the staples ends turn out, not in.

Letter sorters are not allowed to handle mail which may cause grievance to their hands, a union spokesman told the council.

The council voted to purchase a new stapler.

German Craftsmen Making City Crest

German craftsmen are now fashioning large carved, wooden replicas of Belleville's crest in craftsmen's shops in the city's June Friendship flight to Germany.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said Wednesday, city hall received an "urgent" call last week for a photograph of the city's coat of arms so that replicas could be made for mounting at each entrance to the German city.

A Boeing 707 full of Bellevillians will arrive in the city June 9 to foster sister city relations with the 2 - billion - to original twinning of the cities through the Canadian Armed Forces connection between Lahr and Trenton.

"We don't have an official coat of arms so we sent them a copy of the seal," said the mayor.

"I don't know if Lahr intends letting us bring one of the wooden carvings back to Belleville," said Mayor Jeffrey.

The city crest is divided in four section depicting the logging industry, a lion for the city's United Empire Loyalist beginnings, a sheaf of wheat symbolizing the rural nature of the region and a frak tree representing fruit industry in Prince Edward County.

Lahr Gets Slide Show

Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey will take a slide show of Belleville to Germany this June as part of the activities connected with the Belleville-Lahr Friendship Flight.

Mayor Jeffrey said she has contacted the Belleville Camera Club for a collection of slides showing highlights of Belleville.

"I want to show the people in Lahr what Belleville looks like," said the mayor.

Interpreter Started Young

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Louise said she learned early she started to use sign language at the age of seven months — the time when she was deaf but because her parents were hearing impaired.

By the time she started school Louise could use normal speech as well as communicate by the use of sign language which she learned from her parents, who both became deaf through childhood diseases.

Today, she is an interpreter at the Teachers' Education Centre at Sir James Whitney School (OSD) and is the only certified professional interpreter in Ontario, and one of four in Canada.

Born in Sarnia Louise took her early school education there and after graduating from high school decided against a teaching career to work with the mentally retarded. Both Louise, and her husband, George, came to this area in 1972 to join the staff of Prince Edward Heights, a residential facility for the mentally retarded at Picton.

Louise and her younger sister and sister did not grow up in a sensitive environment. She said her parents made every effort to provide a normal home. "The family dog would attract my mother's attention when I was crying in the crib," said Louise, who for a long period of her childhood was ashamed of sign language because she would get teased.

The teachers Education Centre currently has student-teacher enrolment of about 48 of which three of these students are deaf teachers. Louise acts as their interpreter during lectures.

"I interpret about five hours a day," explained Louise, "and then I'm available for tutoring after classes which is something I rarely do." Louise joined the centre last October after working with the mentally retarded at Picton for three years.

Louise said she interpreted for her parents during most of her childhood but never really became interested in the deaf until she went to work at a summer camp for the hearing impaired. "I learned my lesson that year," said Louise, who has since developed a keen insight into the problems of the deaf.

In the past few months she has been co-ordinating a committee to plan activities for Speech and Hearing Month. The committee has arranged for a three-day exhibition in the Quinte Mall enabling the work being done with hearing impaired people.

As for the future Louise said she can see this type of interpreting field opening up into government and university work.

A Rare Skill

Louise Ford (left) uses sign language to talk to her mother Betty Tigwell. Louise is an interpreter at the Teacher Education Centre at Sir James Whitney School (OSD). Both her parents were deaf and she learned sign language from them. Mrs. Ford is the only certified professional interpreter in Ontario.

Postal Code Under Fire

Walter Yateman, president of the inside postal workers' union in Belleville, distributed envelopes at the Quinte District Labor Council meeting pre-printed with a slogan urging the user to refrain from using postal codes in mailing addresses. "We're not against people using the postal service but we want the right to negotiate the affects of technological change on our workers," he said. Taking a pack of the special envelopes is council president Doug Sword.

Flyers Do Everything But Sweep Series

Somebody Up There Likes Islanders

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — Denis Potvin of New York Islanders figures his team had a little extra help on its side Wednesday night.

"The good Lord helped us out a little bit and I hope we make sure we thank him for it," said Potvin, grateful that the Islanders were still alive in the National Hockey League playoffs.

The Islanders, indeed, had a lot to thankful for in scoring a 4-3 overtime victory that kept Dryden's goal, preventing Philadelphia Flyers' from completing a four-game sweep and their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals.

For instance:

—Bill Harris was awarded a penalty shot, only the sixth in NHL playoff history, late in the first period. The Flyer left winger shot into high, enabling goalie Glenn Resch to get a piece of it and make a save-catching save.

—Bang Leach of the Flyers appeared to have broken a 3-3 tie for scoring in the last second of play. Dave Newell quickly signaled "no goal" because the third period already had ended. The green light flicked for a second or two and the buzzer had sounded just before the goal, the officials ruled.

The entire Flyer team was in a brief uproar, believing they'd won the series in four consecutive victories. Philadelphia leads the series 3-1, with the fifth game tonight in Philadelphia.

"After that buzzer sounded, I thought we'd won it," Potvin said Potvin. "We really got a break."

Resch himself thought he had won the game.

"I don't know whether it was a goal or not," he said. "I picked up the loose puck and heard it the buzzer but my back was to the net.

"I was upset. I thought I had blown it."

Resch said he had skated away from the net thinking he had scored.

"I just shot it and it went in," he said. "Then I had to go."

"I was maybe three or four feet away from him (Resch). It went in between his legs. I didn't think the clock ran out."

The Islanders won because they checked, and skated with the Flyers most of the time and got the breaks. They had their first lead of the series when they piled up a 3-0 advantage in the first 25½ minutes of the game.

But New York tired on occasion and the Flyers jumped on every mistake they could, coming back to tie the score on Rick MacLeish's sixth and seventh goals of the playoff and a goal by Ross Lonsberry.

By the end of regulation time, the Flyers had a 36-28 edge in shots.

But the Islanders needed just two shots in overtime to win.

Drouin was alone when he took a pass from Bernie Parent at 1:53 to end Philadelphia's unbeaten string at 21 games going back to March 9 in the regular season.

"It was me and the Flyers," said Drouin. "If I had missed it I would have shot myself."

It was captain Ed Westfall, who had scored New York's first goal, who started the play that led the Islanders back into the series.

He carried the puck over the blueline himself, then flipped a pass to Drouin that bounced over his stick. J. P. Parise picked up the loose puck and passed it to Drouin, who was by then alone in front of the net.

"I noticed Bernie Parent was more on the lefthand side of the net, so I had to go to my backhand, which I did," said Drouin.

The 10-foot backhander rose over Parent's outstretched right leg.

Coach Al Arbour of the Islanders said there was "no doubt" in his mind that the puck was over when Leach scored.

"I don't think there was too much argument about that, but the Flyers argued," he said.

Islander general manager Bill Torrey said the timekeeper caused the confusion by turning off the green light indicating the end of the period too quickly.

He said a videotape of the scene confirmed that the green light flashed before Leach scored.

After Westfall's power-play goal early in the first period, defenceman Gerry Hart made it 2-0 when he shot a 25-foot after taking a pass from Andre St. Laurent behind the net early in the second period.

Rajah Stewart gave the Islanders a three-goal lead on another power play but Lonsberry and MacLeish quickly tied to one goal, scoring before the period ended.

At 4:48 of the third period, MacLeish pulled Resch out of the net on a breakaway and flipped a wrist shot into a wide-open net.

Barber got his penalty shot at 12:34 of the first period after the Islanders' Billy Harris, trying to catch him on a breakaway, pulled him down from behind.

Resch said that Barber almost had him beat on the penalty shot.

"I just kinda went with his deke and threw my legs out and he had one but he didn't shoot the puck up," he said. "It just hit my pad.

"If he had got the puck up three or four feet, he would have scored."

Arbour said his club will have to be at its best tonight.

"We can't make some of the mistakes that we made. We'll gave them the goals that they did get."

Calder Cup to Indians

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Sparked by first-period power-play goals by Paul Shakes and Bob Pufferoski, Springfield Indians defeated New Haven Nighthawks 4-0 Wednesday to win the American Hockey League championship.

The Indians, who finished fourth in the AHL North during the regular season, won their fifth Calder Cup by defeating the Nighthawks 4-1 in the best-of-seven championship series.

Capitalizing on New Haven penalties, Springfield scored twice within four minutes in the opening period to nail down the victory. Shakes scored while New Haven was shorthanded at 7:51, and Pufferoski made it 3-0 after taking a pass from Pete Haraszyn and cutting in on New Haven goalie Sam Clegg.

The Indians added it 3-0 in the second period as Phil Hoene stole the puck from a Nighthawk defenceman for his 13th playoff goal, one short of the AHL record.

Sabres Save Energy for Ice

MONTREAL (CP) — Larry Carriere, a member of the young Buffalo Sabres, could be a rarity in the National Hockey League, being one of the few players to move directly to the NHL from Canadian college hockey.

The 23-year-old Montreal native played with Loyola Warriors for four seasons before being drafted by the Sabres with Jim Schoenfeld in 1972. Carriere was used in playoffs only as a winner at Loyola and he thinks he will be on the winning side tonight when the Sabres meet Montreal Canadiens in the fifth game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final.

"I believe we can win. . . . We've got momentum and we're playing the way we can," he said.

"We tried the question stuff before each of the two games in Montreal. We did a lot of talking off the ice, but we didn't do anything once we got onto the ice.

"We got mentally prepared for Tuesday's game in a different way and decided we would do our thing on the ice rather than in the dressing room."

At one stage during his young hockey career, Carriere had the choice between college hockey and the juniors and elected to go to Loyola, one of the better athletic schools in Canada.

He played on two Quebec championship teams under coach Dave Draper, now with the Hamilton of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series.

"I respect him," Carriere said of his ex-coach. "He helped me a lot. He's a great man and a great hockey coach."

Carriere and his team-mates know they will be in for a battle tonight as they attempt to finish the series. None of the Sabres is keen on playing a seventh game with Buffalo Sunday.

Canadiens coach Scotty Bowman said Wednesday he is sure his club will play a good deal better than they did in Buffalo Tuesday night—a game dominated by the Sabres and won 5-4 by Buffalo on Rene Robert's goal at 3:36 of overtime.

"Fundamentally, we made too many mistakes," Bowman said. "We had three or four breakaways and we didn't get good shots.

"I think we'll come back tomorrow, I hope so."

4-goal Third Carries Bruins Past Marlies

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Coach Ernie McLean wasn't surprised at the way his Peterborough Bruins added insult to last-bit and foreclosed Toronto Marlboros in Wednesday night's Memorial Cup hockey game.

"That is the way we always play," McLean said moments after the Bruins, champions of the Western Canada Hockey League, scored four goals in the final period to defeat the Marlboros 6-3 in the third game of the first round of the Canadian major junior championship.

The win gives the Bruins a two-game to one lead in the best-of-seven series. The next game is scheduled for Toronto Saturday night, and a 7-6 Monday night loss to the Bruins.

Wednesday's game was supposed to feature the hard-hitting often-brutal tactics of the Bruins and the free-wheeling Toronto attack. The reverse was almost true.

The New Westminster penalty-killing unit continually kept the Marlboros on their power plays, directing the play and allowing Toronto few shots on goalie Gord Laxton.

And when the Marlboros did manage to get a shot away at Laxton—29 in all—the Bruins goaltender handled them easily.

McLean sees penalty killing as the key to his team's win.

"Toronto is supposed to have the best power play in the East," McLean said. "But we've got a fine bunch of penalty killers out there."

The Bruins had to kill off seven minor penalties assessed by QMJHL referee Marcelle Vaillancourt, Toronto had five minor penalties called in the first fight-free game of the tournament.

New Westminster took a 2-0 first-period lead on goals by Brian Shury and Clayton Fachal. Mark Napier scored the only goal of the second period and Lynn Jorgenson scored at 1:54 of the third to tie the game.

Steve Clippingdale, put the Bruins ahead 3-2 at 5:06 of the final period and Mike Sharp, Fred Berry and Richard Shinske added insurance goals later in the period.

Toronto goaltender Gary Carr appeared unsteady at times, stopping 17 of 23 shots directed his way.

Laxton was forced to make several outstanding saves during the game, including a breakaway skate save on Napier when the Marlboros were shorthanded near the end of the second period.

Laxton said after the game he doesn't care which team he plays in the final—"we beat them both" — but rates Sherbrooke's as the tougher team.

The victory gave the Goaldiggers and coach Ted Garvin, formerly with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, the series 4-3.

Garvin guided Port Huron to the Turner Cup—emblematic of the IHL playoff title—two years ago.

Don Westbrooke, Ian MacPhee, Jim McVabe, Dennis Craig and Michael Lauredeau scored the other Toledo goals.

Garvin Leads Toledo To IHL Championship

SAGINAW, Mich. (CP) — A day over Saginaw Gears in the third-period power-play goal by Jari Kudrnavs gave Toledo Goaldiggers a 4-3 win Wednesday night and deciding game of the International Hockey League playoffs.

Mortgage the Farm? Not If Habs Produce

Canadiens, you see me.

I'm beginning to wonder why I bother with you.

You get more in contact with French Indech and his bronze, anyway.

Remember, it was the same old French vice had such an impressive six shooter everyone around the rink who counted went at the final record with Toronto and Leafs before bidding Buffalo into a contender.

To think, I worried about missing most of Tuesday's game because of other commitments.

Could have saved myself the anxiety.

Except for Ken Dryden, most of you should have stayed at home in the Forum.

After all, that's precisely where you left your game.

How can you people put it all together for two games at home and mysteriously lose your touch on Buffalo ice?

Admit it.

You were terrible, Tuesday. At least you were while I was watching.

You were fortunate the game was so scoreless.

What happened to the forechecking?

Where was the defence?

Praying for the gate?

(That's a common complaint when things happen in sports.)

Hey man, you're costing me. Atonement is the word for the day.

You go on a two-game winning streak.

Then, all will be forgiven.

And I won't have to mortgage the farm.

Olympics Held to 4-4 Tie by Moira

After three consecutive exhibition victories, Belleville Olympics suffered a minor setback Wednesday night as they battled to a 4-4 deadlock with Moira Secondary School.

"We didn't play very well," said Kevin Kirby, team representative, "but that's not taking anything away from Moira because they played an exceptional game."

Moira is preparing for the Ontario Federation of Schools Athletic Association championship to be held in Newmarket at the end of the month. The Trojans qualified for the event by winning Central Ontario last fall.

The Olympics, on the other hand, are preparing for the Bay of Quinte Soccer League opening game next Thursday, followed by their first game of the regular season in the Premier Soccer League a short time later.

Tommy Britton tallied twice to lead Moira's attack and Roger Sprague and Ralph Kellers booted singles.

Paudic Kirwin, Thomas Maxwell, John O'Neill and Robbie Foster were the marksmen for the Olympics.

The Olympics play a Pre-League exhibition contest against the Bala-Canadians at Keech's Island Sunday at the Belleville Fairgrounds at 3 p.m.

Cleo Colling presents Mike Taylor with the Ken Colling Memorial Cup after Wednesday's running of the Ken Colling Road Race. Taylor, a Trenton High School student, knocked 20.2 seconds off the former record to finish first in the four-mile race. Taylor has been running long distance for Trenton High for the past five years.

80 Compete in Ken Colling Road Race

Trenton's Mike Taylor Smashes Record

"If they're going to break any records, this is the day to do it," said Brian MacKenzie organizer of this year's Ken Colling Road Race. His predictions were right on target. The former record for the four-mile run, set by Peyton's Paul Cory in 1970, was 21:48.5. That mark went down by a devastating 20 seconds as Trenton's Mike Taylor sprinted across the finish line.

"It was a good day," said Taylor. "The weather was just right for running a long distance race."

The 21 degree celsius temperature (70 fahrenheit) is considered ideal for long distance running. That coupled with a very slight breeze made things even more ideal.

Taylor, a 17-year-old Grade 12 student at Trenton High School, finished the course officially in 21:28.3. Going into the event however, he was considered a long shot to win.

The two favorites, Dave Peckham and John Sheppard, finished second and fourth respectively.

Peckham, an East Northumberland Secondary School student, repeated his finish of last year. This time he completed the course in 21:33. Another Brighton student, Bill O'Sullivan finished at 22:54 to take third place and Sheppard, a Quinte representative came across the line in 22:01. Fifth spot went to Terry MacKellar of Trenton with a time of 22:36.

The next five runners came in rather closely together. Sixth and seventh went to Richard Burrowes and John Guthrie, both from BCI. Eighth was Peter Vennezes from Trenton, ninth went to Bob Peister from Brighton and tenth was taken by Carrie Richards, from Bayside.

Who cares
if CAN-AM* spells value?
You should!

IF YOU UNDERSTAND THAT: CAN-AM* firmly believes in spending money to give you engineering excellence.
A no-nonsense rotary-valve engine doesn't come cheap — especially if it's only 10 inches wide — when its unique induction system permits precise inlet timing for high horsepower over a broad power band.
A rugged transmission featuring quick-in-gear shifting. No chassis is worth its weight in high tensile steel unless it boasts extreme rigidity with a large diameter tapered backbone, perfect triangulation and the engine forming an integral part of the frame.
All the smoothest torque and power curves in the world mean nothing if your motorcycle doesn't handle. CAN-AM* gives it to you — long-travel rear suspension — adjustable steering head — improved chain geometry by using the swing-arm pivot bolt as the rear engine mount.
An injection system is vital to feed undiluted oil directly to critical crankshaft bearing and provide lubrication to the rotary valve and cylinder wall.
Making use of virtually indestructible, high density polyethylene for fenders and fuel tank is safe and functional.

INDEX OF PERFORMANCE: Beat the "co" habit! — Learn about performance. — Divide the weight of your motorcycle by its usable horsepower. — The resulting power to weight ratio indicates how many pounds each horsepower has to carry.

That's what INDEX OF PERFORMANCE is all about. That's why CAN-AM* SPELLS VALUE! can-am motorcycles by bombardier

Bayside Girl Finishes Tenth

Richards Lets Them Know Females Take It Seriously

Of the 80 competitors in this year's edition of the Ken Colling Road Race, 74 were male. At least 69 of those boys walked away from the finish line with their egos slightly deflated. For that matter, all 74 should have felt a blow to their pride.

While Mike Taylor won the 20th running of the four-mile event in record time, smashing a mark set by Paul Cory five years ago, he had to take a back seat to a young lady from Bayside Secondary School who finished 10th.

This is the first year the event has been opened to females and not were entered.

Carrie Richards, a recent addition to the Bay of Quinte area, was the surprise of the day.

"When I went out I was just aiming for the top 30 so I could get a crest," she said, "I never thought I'd finish this well."

"Everything was perfect though," she added, "the temperature was right, there was no wind, there wasn't anything to hinder any of the runners."

Carrie's finish was a surprise to everyone. What is even more surprising though is that she has only been running for the past couple of years. And she is only 16 years old.

Her family moved to Bayside from New Brunswick in August. Last fall she represented the Marlikmen at the Junior Olympics in Edmonton.

"I've competed against boys in a few other events," said Carrie, "but I've never done this well."

Some considered Carrie's 10th place finish a fluke. The highest any of the other girls finished was 34th. But Carrie takes her running seriously. She averages 6-8 miles a day on the road and has practised all winter.

Her official time in the Ken Colling wasn't registered (only the top five times are kept), but unofficially she did it in under 24 minutes — about the six minute a mile on the average.

With the Central Ontario Secondary School Athletic Association track and field championships coming up, Carrie intends to work on her short distance running.

"I'm going to compete in the 800 and 1,500 metre," she said, "if they had a girls' 3,000 metre I'd like to run it, but they don't have one for girls."

In any event, people are going to find out soon that Carrie Richards is no fluke runner.

Scott's Double Stymies Lolich

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mickey Lolich of Detroit Tigers threw the pitch where he wanted—low and inside.

George Scott of Milwaukee Brewers hit it where he wanted—low and inside third base.

The seventh-inning blow put Scott on second and scored Gorman Brewers to break a 4-4 tie Wednesday night and Milwaukee went on to beat the Tigers 7-5 in an American League baseball game.

In Wednesday's other American League games, Oakland A's scored nine runs in the seventh inning, the last four on Sal Bando's grand-slam homer, and topped California Angels 9-1, Kansas City Royals' slipped Texas Rangers 6-5, Baltimore Orioles downed New York Yankees 4-3, Boston Red Sox blanked Cleveland Indians 4-0 and Chicago White Sox outed Minnesota Twins 7-5 with three runs in the ninth inning.

Darrell Porter opened the Brewers' seventh with a triple off the previously unbeaten Lolich. One out later, walks to Don Money and Hosken Powell loaded the bases.

Bobby Mitchell struck out but Scott laced his double down the third-base line on a 3-2 pitch—a low, inside slider.

"To be honest," Scott said, "I think it was the type of pitch I would make an out on nine out of every 10 times.

"I wanted to hit the ball hard. It was a belt of a pitch, down and inside. I was lucky to get my bat on it. You go out there and he'll say he got that pitch exactly where he wanted it. The pitch was so good I don't think I could hit it again."

Despite his misfortune Wednesday, Lolich said he would rather pitch to hitters like Scott.

"It would have been a ball but most of my slider strikeouts are on balls," he said. "Scotty's a big, free swinger.

"I'd rather pitch to those guys. Usually a big swinger takes a big cut at that slider and they miss."

Phillies Are Building a Powerhouse

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Now that Dick Allen's back, how can Philadelphia Phillies miss?

Manager Danny Ozark was wondering the same thing Wednesday night, after the Phillies downed St. Louis Cardinals 4-1 in a National League baseball game.

"I felt awfully good about a lot of things tonight," acknowledged Ozark, who earlier in the day flew to Philadelphia to attend a news conference with Allen.

"But I could hardly wait to get back here to see (Garry) Maddox in the outfield," said Ozark.

Soothing to Ozark were the arrival of the first Maddox who was acquired early in the week from San Francisco, the trade for Allen from Atlanta and Tug McGraw's tight relief pitching.

In Wednesday's other National League games, Cincinnati Reds pounded San Diego Padres 10-2, Chicago Cubs trounced Montreal Expos 7-0, Los Angeles Dodgers downed Houston Astros 3-1, San Francisco Giants beat Atlanta Braves 4-3 and Pittsburgh Pirates tripped New York Mets 6-1.

"Garry's not hitting right now, but he'll get his stroke," Ozark predicted after Maddox, who played centre field, went 1-for-4 at bat.

"I said before that Allen would hit third, but that could change," Ozark noted. "If Garry begins to hit, he may bat third with (Greg) Luzinski fourth and Allen fifth. We'll have to wait and see."

McGraw, appearing Wednesday in his 400th game since returning to action April 24 following minor back surgery, entered with Lou Brock and Ted Simmons on base for the Cardinals in the seventh inning.

He got Bake McBride to fly out to end a threat, then set St. Louis down in order in the eighth and ninth to record his fifth save.

In the absence of Allen, who was scheduled to join the team on Monday, Mike Schmidt hit his fifth home run to power the Phils' attack.

IN MEMORIAM

REVELL — In loving memory of our dear father Ted who left us two years ago today.
Two years have gone by dear father,
But your heart still cries for you.
The hardest part is still to come,
To everyone I'm sure.
The pain will not subside,
But I'm learning that every day,
I don't weep the longer.
Time has within the years
—Always remembered by daughter Cheryl.

REVELL — In loving memory of our dear husband Ted who left us two years ago today, May 8, 1980.
Two years have gone by, dear husband,
Two long years,
Two important sentences,
Which fill the heart with many tears.
Yet I am with you in all I say,
And you are with Lillian.

REVELL — In loving memory of my dear father (Ted) Revell who left us two years ago today.
We miss his love and cheerful ways,
But God has called him home to rest.
In memory we see him the same,
And in our hearts we will cherish him always.
—Sadly missed by daughter Vera and son-in-law Bud.

SEED — In loving memory of a dear father Jasper Seed who left us two years ago today, May 8, 1981.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweet, tender, fond and true.
There's not a day, dear father,
That we don't think of you.
—Sadly missed by Vera, son-in-law Glenn and grandchildren Lorrie and Jeffrey.

Victors Executed Foes in Street but Were Kind to Evacuees

BANGKOK (AP) — Foreign- and forced marches of people left in the kindness of the victors evacuated from Cambodia from the cities after the Khmer Rouge victors which crushed the fall of Communists in the streets Reuge took over. But they also 20 evacuees to survive a two week ordeal inside the chaotic country.

Their accounts have been published until now in the interest of the safety of other foreigners who did not come out of Cambodia in the first overland convoy that reached Thailand. The others reached Thailand early today.

The refugees said there were a few hours of relief, almost elation, as the Communist-led Khmer Rouge rebels swept into Phnom Penh April 17.

But this was followed abruptly by alarm in the city, the entrapment of the foreigners inside the French embassy with little food, foul water and uncertainty about their fate.

And finally came the three-day truck odyssey through a war-ravaged landscape in fluid and safety.

One old widow said it was only a few hours after Phnom Penh fell that Khmer Rouge soldiers were firing warning shots into the air throughout the city.

"They gave us short notice to move out of Phnom Penh," she said. "Those who attempted to resist were executed on the spot."

A French doctor said the Khmer Rouge ordered all the city's hospital vacated, even of the very sick and dying.

Peering over the wall of the French embassy compound at night, the doctor said, he saw patients being wheeled out of the nearby Calmette Hospital. Others hobbled out with canes and some carried their own disabled fellow patients.

The city of more than two million persons was reported by refugees to have been ill-armed with cooking pots, mattresses and personal gear as the noncombatants as well as expensive cameras and electrical appliances.

The Khmer Rouge looted houses, and everything they didn't want was thrown away," the old widow said.

"They said we had to leave the city because the Americans were going to bomb it," she said. "They said the Americans would also bomb the city, but this was a protest."

One Cambodian woman with a French passport was forced to join the procession out of Phnom Penh, carrying her eight-month old daughter in her arms.

The columns of refugees trudged out of the city, said to move on for some undefined indefinite destination, many and some of their belongings along the way.

The French Cambodian mother said she watched north Khmer Rouge soldiers execute a man and decomposed bodies left in the bushes along Highway 5, the route of refugees fleeing in the weeks before Phnom Penh collapsed.

She said she managed to sneak away from the main body of evacuees about 20 miles north of the city and made her way back along trails, taking her way through guard posts.

"I told them I was a French citizen and was looking for my husband who also was French," she said. "Finally I had to tell them my husband is pure Cambodian, but he left France when the Khmer Rouge took over. He never returned."

The Khmer Rouge started her to approach the French embassy, she said, but the gate was shut. The embassy compound was full.

She shouted to the people inside for help, they told her to climb over the fence. I passed my baby over to them. I was so scared because I was not sure I could make it."

The woman reached the embassy three days after the fall of Phnom Penh. Her husband was promised with more than 1,000 Cambodians, mostly French-passport holders, Western diplomats and reporters, employees of various international agencies and several hundred Cambodians.

The embassy had food and medicine. Water had to be brought in from a stagnant pond just outside the compound. Sanitation conditions deteriorated illegally by the inhabitants several evacuees said.

The Australian former Cambodian government official said the Khmer Rouge soon had the embassy surrounded the compound looked "rough at first," but were "because nice, giving us rice, cooking pots, sugar and salt. Anything you wanted and they gave you."

"It's not like Hitler. Mostly we cooked rice soup and had one meal a day," the woman said. "Only a few times did the Khmer Rouge soldiers take anything from us. But in general they people got sick on it."

She said several other Cambodian-born French nationals joined her and most of them left from the Khmer Rouge while the embassy was still open.

As it was, on April 30, the last group crossed the Thai border on Highway 5 which runs across Thailand and Cambodia.

Most of the evacuees landed in Bangkok's former French colony, was home for a few months before the fall of Phnom Penh and 200 lived there on the road. But one old man died of a heart attack and another old man and the eight-month-old child of the Frenchwoman died along the way.

The company will dredge by 350,000 cubic yards of waste. It had previously dumped it in Canso Strait and dump it into the ocean.

Police Shows on TV Los Angeles Headache

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The letters come from lawenforcement officers around the country, and always with the same gripe.

How can the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) allow those television shows to get away with such liberties in portraying policemen?

The LAPD gets asked because most of the police series are filmed on its turf and because the department itself is the setting for so many of them—Adam-12, Police Story, Hill Street Blues, Code Red, Christie Love and Columbo.

Insults and unbelievable acts that in what most policemen worry about when they watch their profession depicted on the small screen. They are wasting their time telling it to LAPD, though. The department's hands are as well, hamstrung.

With one or two exceptions, it has little say in how policemen are depicted, even when they supposedly work for LAPD.

"We give technical advice when we're asked," explained Det. Tom Cooke, the department's assistant press officer who coordinates calls from TV and movie writers and producers.

"They'll call us and say, 'This is the show we've been do such-and-such.'

"We tell them how it's done legally and lawfully, and that's it. But sometimes they take the advice it up to them."

Cooke isn't concerned himself by the performance. Most have their own technical advisers to assist the actors and directors in portraying police operations.

In some cases the advisers are active-duty police officers. In others they are retired officers.

By why do Cooke and other policemen feel that police shows still misinform the public about what a citizen's rights are and the way law enforcement officers really work?

"Because what it comes to is showbusiness between realism and melodrama, melodrama almost always wins.

"I don't think we want to do a documentary on the police forces either," said Executive Producer Stephen J. Cannell, one of the executive producers of the Rockford and S.W.A.T.

"If you don't take dramatic license with these shows, they either become so pro-police or so anti-police that they're not interesting.

"After all, what we're here for is entertainment, drama. If you read the police files, I think you'd be surprised at how dull they are."

Capt. Jesse A. Brewer said he understands the need for dramatic license but regrets the effect it can have. He is a ranking officer of the LAPD's metropolitan division, of which the department's specially trained and tactical squad (SWAT) is a part.

After seeing the first episode of Spelling's S.W.A.T., the officer said:

"I was not very happy with what I saw. I feel it will lead to create a false image. This department's is going to suffer.

"We try to do everything by the law. In that footprint there were no constraints whatsoever. People are going to relate that program to us."

Richard Hickock, the technical adviser on S.W.A.T., is a former member of LAPD's special weapons and tactical squad. And Hickock is the first to admit the series is far from perfect technically.

"Police officers should realize it's all make-believe Hollywood and it's entertainment only," said Hickock.

"We're not making this show for police officers. In no way is it going to be technically correct, because if they did it technically correct down the line, they'd have almost five shows before they exhausted the game."

By far the most realistic police show is Police Story, the only series that steers clear of the "supercop, happy-go-lucky" syndrome, presenting instead a low-key portrait of the job's daily frustrations.

Police Story producers listen to their technical advisor—who is a different officer each week, recruited from the LAPD on his own time or as an expert in whatever field is being explored.

If a director refuses to heed the advice of the officer, the adviser need only call the producer's office for support. He usually will win.

Jack Webb, whose Mark VII productions produces Adam-12, has no desire to shed the unappealing side of police work.

He said law enforcement needs a public relations boost and identification. That's why Adam-12, like Webb's Dragnet before it, is filmed with full cooperation from LAPD.

The department gives Webb and his associates all the technical and story help they need and, in return, the department has full script control.

"We are censors on this show," Cooke acknowledged. "We can change character situations as well as technical points."

Adam-12 consequently is always told from the police point of view. The officers nearly always are even in the best possible light, acting with the best of intentions and

Tommy Mason Makes a Comeback

Tommy Mason got his first piano from an order house and jokes that he learned to play by the instructions that came in the packing crate. In 1938 he put his musical skills to work by forming the Commodores. Wednesday night, he returned to the Commodores bandstand in Quinte Secondary School for the first time since he left his place stool in 1955. Blowing Dixie with the band founder is present-day leader Jim Cathcart on saxophone, Dutch Turner on clarinet and clarinet Jack Mosely. Mr. Turner was member of the band in 1938 playing banjo.

Commodores Reunited with Leader

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

In 1938, Tommy Mason took an idea and turned it into the Commodores — a five-man dance band that in his words was louder than it was good.

Now 47 years later, Mr. Mason is reuniting a gift shop in the recreation community of Bucktorn north of Peterborough but the band is still drawing code and his musical audiences are re-living the sound of the big band era.

The Commodores played at Quinte Secondary School Wednesday night as the final act in a school music presentation.

But the show stopper of the evening came when Tommy Mason made a surprise entrance onto the stage to work with the band he left in 1955.

"Back then, when we first started, no one knew how to read music," said Mr. Mason, following the performance. "The important thing was to be able to play loud and long."

Larry Brown, a saxaphonist and one of the oldest members of the present band, remembers playing Old Home Week in Trenton around 1938 when the band started at sunset and played its last tune at sunrise.

"I can remember driving back from Marmora in the snow with a candle on the dash board to melt the ice from the window," said Mr. Mason. "There were the days when band members got $3 a night and the leader got $2."

It was the enterprise of the band that gave Belleville the first Jitney Dance Pavilion, located at the fairgrounds.

"You could come in for free but it cost 10 cents to dance to three tunes," said Mr. Mason. "We'de play three or four nights a week."

The band numbers 14 now and still works busily in the Quinte area. Perhaps more at the go are two or three smaller combos, composed of Commodore bandsmen.

"On the music sounds about the same but I think it might have been better when we didn't have the sheet music and we spent more time talking in the breaks to send them happy," said Mr. Mason.

Comparing the modern communication barrier in the evening, he said, "usually speaking a parent coming to a thing like this expects to hear kids play out of tune or kids who are just learning to play.

"I thought tonight was incredible. I didn't hear one kid play flat or lose his beat," said Mr. Mason, "It was just incredible."

Original Angry Young Man Can't Match Early Success

LONDON, (Reuter)—A season at John Osborne plays at the Greenwich Theatre outside London has left it open then mark on the chart of the 45-year-old playwright's career.

It is nearly 20 years since Look Back in Anger, hailed as the voice of rebellious youth, earned him the now-hackneyed label of the original angry young man.

Osborne kept his reputation of leading post-war British playwright, through the ups and down of critical approval, while writing bad-tempered plays with his love-hate relationship with England and outbursts of scathing contempt for the critics.

For one time there has been a feeling in the critical world that Osborne has just produced a major work since Inadmissible Evidence, the 1964 play in which Nicol Williamson scored a hit as a middle-aged solicitor whose professional and private life are on the point of disintegrating.

The two new plays at Greenwich do nothing to alter this opinion, especially as the season opened with a revival of a major Osborne success of 1957, The Entertainer, Osborne Miss Wall ably played the part that was memorably created by Sir Laurence Olivier.

The first of the two new plays, The End Of Me Old Cigar—the name of an old music-hall song—perhaps was suggested by past public scandals.

The scene is a grand country house run by a self-made tilted lady as a brothel for VIPs. The purpose is not profit but the assertion of male supremacy with the help hidden microphones and camera lenses working for men's lib.

Their weapon is an array of hidden microphones and cameras recording their amorous encounters. The public relevation of these will pave the way for the girls by discrediting men in high places.

The first act consists mostly of a verbose briefing of the women by the mistress of the house. This allows the author to hit at more favorite targets with witty diatribes.

The pairing off with clients, who include a member of Parliament, a press mogul and a pop star, follows, but after this buildup, the bubble is pricked by the disappearance a," all the incriminating evidence.

In between, the play switches to a bedroom scene featuring Osborne's wife playing the cause by falling in love with her partner.

Most of Act Two is a protracted love duet which grows in scabrousness and sentimentality.

No amount of good acting could turn The End of Me Old Cigar into anything but a self-indulgent exercise of dubious taste.

The second new play, an adaptation of The Picture of Dorian Gray, at least has the strong melodramatic plot of Oscar Wilde's tale of the Adonis who sold his soul to the devil to keep his youth and beauty.

Whatver chords Wilde's novel may have struck in Osborne's mind, the outcome is merely a workmanlike dramatization that comes up against the stumbling block of the casting of Dorian. Though pleasant looking and competent, young Michael Kitchen could hardly suggest the fatal fascination of the character.

Even if allowances are made for the shortcomings of the Greenwich production, the play comes across as little better than an academic exercise.

Further critical judgment of Osborne's evolution must wait until the success when a new play, Watch It Come Down, will be premiered by the National Theatre Company at the Old Vic Theatre.

Adrenal Function Easily Corrected

By G. C. THEVERSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosleon an: Can you please explain the term "low adrenal function?" Can it be detected by some test? Can it be corrected or improved with medication?—Mrs. R. S. A.

Yes to both questions.

It is also called Addison's disease (after Dr. Thomas Addison, the English physician who described it in 1849)—the gland (one of two) producing cortisone hormones for the body's needs, as in maintaining proper blood pressure.

Before the discovery of cortisone drugs in the Cushing era, it most always fatal. Today, with available drugs, most cases of disease need not necessarily be terminal. Diagnosis is rather easy, both by chemical tests and classic symptoms—a brownish pigmentation of the skin and mucous linings, a blood drop and a tired look. Or sudden level is reset to be low and the potassium level high.

Treatment is by hydrocortisone, which helps replace the hormones not produced in adequate amounts by the gland. And intake is increased also. Salt therapy is combined for life.

Dear Dr. Theoleson: My husband has severe cramps in his left leg and calves, especially in the daytime of the skin here. There come on both in the daytime and at night when he is relaxing or sleeping.

He is ill, not overweight, but he does work night to 10 hours a day on his feet. I've read that a thing on his feet. I've read that a thing on his feet. I've read that a thing

Municipalities Do Not Want Small Inexpensive Houses

EDMONTON (CP) — Contrary to the low-cost, inexpensive homes being built for buyers with moderate incomes, he said, municipalities don't want them. They say the president of Alberta's largest real estate firm.

Garry Hanson, president of Hanson Real Estate, Edmonton, told the convention in Calgary, of which Hanson is a part, that municipalities do not license but municipal inspectors subject against them.

"There are many municipal councils in Canada that don't want small houses," said the 37-year-old Hanson. Mr. Hanson, 42, who trained as a chartered accountant and was vice-president to the late Stanley Hudson, added was of the Drab's founder.

"There's the increase that we've had in the cost of land, the cost of services and the cost of building, and what are the increases in standards that the municipalities are insisting upon.

Labrador Eskimos Organized

OTTAWA (CP) — Still Eskimos representing the 1,500 Eskimos of the northern Labrador coast. President of the Labrador Inuit Association, formed during the bureaucratic lockdown, he needs be the cap of negotiations.

He said his first meeting with a federal-provincial committee was unsuccessful.

"I was a spectator. Everything was prepared before I got to the meeting and all I had wanted from me was a yes or no. It would have taken them a few days to look through the briefs alone, but we couldn't get it," he said.

His mandate this difficulty during a recent Ottawa meeting with Northern Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan, who presided by by the Eskimos were.

Mr. Buchanan was a heavy-equipment operator before he was elected to the province's legislature. Now 61, he remembers travelling with a bulldozer from Hopedale to Davis Bay at the age of 17 to look for work.

He recalls that the 140-mile trip, hard in days, half of it spent riding out bad weather. He worked for seven months at a lobster and that got hired a upscale heavy equipment.

Ottawa's annual contribution to Labrador Eskimos was recently increased to 4.5 million from 1.5 million. Mr. Buchanan can cite of a number of things to do with the increased funds.

He said housing on the north Labrador coast is poor and adds about 35 young couples a year are forced to share housing. Unemployment is also growing and was putting in a new housing, it not enough to catch up.

He is also concerned with the emotional situation in the area saying there is no regular doctor on the coast and medical visits are infrequent. Instead of patients must be evacuated by air to hospitals in the south, he said.

Four communications costs prevented the medical situation, Buchanan said, adding that he is considering.

In a meeting with inhabitants' company officials, Mr. Edmonds complained that poor reception made it necessary to repeat messages on the radio-telephone and consumers were left in the dark.

Mr. Edmonds traced the beginning of the Labrador Inuit Association to the election in 1967, when Charlie Watt, president of the Northern Quebec Inuit Association, came to Nain to be reasonable to address a meeting.

That meeting convinced the Eskimos that an organization would improve their lives. A founding convention was held in October, 1973, and Mr. Edmonds became the group's second president in June, 1974.

"In other words most of them don't want small houses.

"I think they (people in the industry) have a right to that because it's a market they would like to be into . . . but it's very difficult. Even the government is encouraging more ownership but the municipalities, in dealing with the basic tax structure under which they operate, they can't afford to have those lower-cost houses. They need a larger tax base."

Buyer reluctance was another problem.

"If you have a lot that has to be in it but there is a cost attached to that and you can't build a 1,200-square-foot house on that lot. The ratios get all out of line. I think people are perhaps going to have to lower their standards a little. They're not going to be able to afford a 1,200-square-foot house to start."

Mr. Holmes said he was made president because of his over-all experience in the company, although he is not a salesman. He admits that, as a chartered accountant, he had to learn how to manage people by experience. He joined Medicus in 1968.

Mr. Holmes said real estate is business everybody is interested in.

Glass Sprayed On PEI Auto Adds to Safety

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — People would follow cars for miles wondering what it was, they could not see coming for half a mile."

That is the words of Bill Hayhoe of Mills Cross, P.E.I., describing what initial reaction of motorists in his province to the sight of a car on the highway that has been spray-painted with millions of tiny glass beads, reflecting film in a road sign.

"They're used to it now," said Mr. Hayhoe—as used to it, in fact, that he has been having trouble keeping up with demands to treat other vehicles in the same way.

School boards in the province have expressed interest in getting school buses treated with the beads and the provincial transport department is considering it for some of its vehicles next winter.

Mr. Hayhoe said he has approached the Four Seasons government and it also is interested in the idea.

A 20-year-old high school dropout, originally from Edmonton, Mr. Hayhoe said he gave up painting landscapes and animals and became a car painter. The idea of coating vehicles with the glass beads came in a flash while he was driving across Prince Edward Island.

He said a highways department crew cleaned a stretch of road behind the pavers and the beads were invisible. He told the material, which has the consistency of heavy sugar, and got the idea for coating a car with it.

He used a friend's shop to paint a truck and spray it with the glass beads, obtained from a filtration co., manufacturer who supplies it to governments for use on highway markings and signs.

The bulb gives the signs a reflective quality without glare in the daytime but useful for use at night.

Later, Mr. Hayhoe applied the glass beads to two other vehicles he owns, using up to 25 pounds of material on each. There are three grades of material, ranging in price from five cents to $1 a pound.

When he trade one cars for other people, he charges $20 to $25, depending on the labor and materials.

Mr. Hayhoe, who has put-tered his idea, said a do-it-yourselfer can treat a car for $10 plus material costs.

Businessmen Appear Inarticulate

VANCOUVER (CP) — Businessmen are unpopular because they are not telling their story to the public, says Frank Belcher of Trail, B.C., past president of the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce.

"To make matters worse, businessmen as a group seem to be singularly inarticulate," he told a meeting of the Vancouver branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

"Not getting their story to the public inevitably results in votes being cast in favor of any political party ready to act in a positive way towards business, and the places the whole problem in a political context."

Mr. Belcher said that barrage of financial reporting is not being emphasis by business on the public's need to know is essential to the survival of an economic system incorporating the principles of free enterprise to any significant extent.

He said the complex process

Melton is subject to increasing government regulation, with land developments taking two years to get approval, stiffer educational qualifications being imposed on salesmen and rent control always in the offing, but Mr. Holmes said there is a place for government entry into the industry.

"The attitude of a lot of politicians is that they are going to be involved in housing. They're talking it more as a basic need. Going in and assisting people in the country by providing the financing would seem to me the most effective and efficient way for them to become involved.

"With that there comes some controls. They're going to want to have a say in how their funds are directed. They're going to want to see them directed to the building of lower cost houses but that's not an inhibiting factor."

Here Are Stories Told in Right Words

By PAT USHER
The Canadian Press

The test of a good story is whether it is true to life. Ernest Buckler meets that test in The Rebellion of Young David and Other Stories. Each of the 14 tales is about persons in their relations with other people.

Each individual behaves as you would expect him or her to behave. Each incident strikes the reader as exactly right. And each is told in beautiful absorbing style and with vivid imagery.

One story is about an author whose first book has just been acclaimed by the critics. He ponders the difficulty of getting his ideas onto paper "because there were a million ways to tell every one of them, and only one way for each of them was right."

Let it be said of Buckler that in these stories he has found the right way. It is as if none of them could be told in any other words. Buckler is 68 and has been writing since 1926. He is the author of four books, three of them novels, magazine articles, short stories and radio plays. He was born in Dalhousie West, N.S., was educated at Dalhousie University and University of Toronto and lives and works on the family farm near Annapolis Royal, N.S.

The Rebellion of Young David and Other Stories, by Ernest Buckler; 138 pages; $7.95; McClelland and Stewart.

Viking raids and feasts are the dominating themes in Egils Saga, translated and edited by Christine Fell. It is the story of a Viking warrior of the 10th century who fought and caroused in Norway and Iceland with forays around the Baltic and a period of service in King Athelstan of England.

Egil is a cruel and mean character with ugly features. But he is also a poet whose verses commemorate many of the major incidents in his life.

The translator says in an introduction it is difficult to tell whether Egils Saga is fact, fiction or a mixture of both. Although the material belongs to the 10th century it was not written in its present form until the 13th century. Similarity it is not known whether it is the work of a single author or a number of authors or whether it was originally a matter of oral tradition.

Whatever its origins, the saga is an engrossing tale about figures depicted on a heroic scale and involved frequently in impressive feats of arms. It is translated and edited by Christine Fell of the departments of English at University of Nottingham. The poems are translated by John Lucas, also at University of Nottingham.

Egils Saga, translated and edited by Christine Fell; 331 pages; $12.50; University of Toronto Press.

TORONTO (CP) — Bell Canada is using an experimental suitcase-size computer to read a gas, water and hydro meters in a section of North York.

Sometime between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. in the morning, the Bell computer dials through the telephone lines in the small boxes and receives a reading that it describes as accurate.

Unions Forecast

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — All university faculty associations in Ontario likely will become unions in a year unless the provincial government gives universities more money, the chairman of the Ontario Council of University faculty associations (OCUFA) said Wednesday.

"The reasons for unionization are mostly financial," Prof. Norma Bowen, chairman, said in an interview. "Unionization will give us more clout in getting money from the province because we could withdraw our services province-wide."

Firm Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Hoover Co. Ltd. of Hamilton, Ont., was charged Wednesday with 16 counts under the federal Combines Investigation Act, a federal prosecutor said.

Patrick Duffy said in Toronto that the appliance manufacturing firm was charged after a two-year investigation by the federal corporate and consumer affairs department. The company is to appear in Hamilton court May 23 to face the resale price maintenance charges.

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — A campaign against permanent-press labels waged by Progressive Conservative William Davis and his government is nothing but a political ploy, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Wednesday.

He told the Welland South Liberal Association that the government could do much to restore confidence in consumer labels if it wanted to, instead of taking positive action, it is backing the banner of permanent press and law and order.

Gillespie Replied

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie said Wednesday the government "will do its utmost" to ensure that equipment sold off by Mississippi International Ltd. stays in Canada.

However, he told Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo Cambridge) in the Commons that if the company repays money it owes the federal government "it would have the right to dispose of the equipment as it sees fit."

MONTREAL (CP) — A Canadian Forces 707 plane with 133 Vietnamese refugees, the first of some 3,000 to be admitted into Canada, arrived in Montreal at 8:15 EDT this morning from Honolulu's.

The refugees, many smiling, some crying, and hobnobbing a number of small children, were whisked to buses provided by the department of immigration, which were to take them to downtown Montreal for customs and immigration processing as well as medical checkups.

Can't Buy Homes

NEW YORK (AP) — A prominent American b k'er says the average family no longer can afford to buy the average single-family home.

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says that because of an economic slowdown in Canada, some Canadian and foreign airlines are uncertain whether they will be able to fill seats offered this year for advance booking charters from Canada to overseas destinations.

Trent University Hunts for Bodies

TORONTO (CP) — The association registrar of Trent University in Peterborough, Ont., said Wednesday that Ontario universities are so concerned about getting students that admission programs have become basis for persons without regard for academic standards.

"I go out in my sailing van full of posters and brochures and I expect to come back with lots of cargo, or at least the promise of cargo," Gordon Pollock said at a conference of university admission officers and high school counsellors at York University.

Admission programs are included to get persons who can be counted when the province gives universities money for each person enrolled, Mr. Pollock said.

Union Curbs Introduced

Quebec Ignores Labor's Protests

QUEBEC (CP) — Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer introduced legislation today putting four of the province's construction union locals under Quebec government trusteeship.

The government also introduced legislation prohibiting persons with criminal records from holding union positions for a period of five years from the date of conviction.

The legislation would make it illegal for anyone to encourage or support a strike or work slowdown while a labor contract is in force. It would be up to the individual to prove that he had nothing to do with an illegal act.

Employers convicted of bribing union officials would be subject to fines from $200 to $10,000. Union members convicted of accepting or trying to receive such funds from employers would be subject to similar fines.

More than 400 workers rallied in front of the Quebec national assembly building today protesting the legislation.

Most of the demonstrators were members of construction unions affiliated with the Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL), three of whose unions faced trusteeship.

But an estimated 100 were longshoremen, whose strike has paralyzed Quebec's major ports despite federal legislation designed to end it.

QFL president Laberge, QFL president, and Fernand Daoust, QFL secretary-general, crossed iron rail barricades set up outside the legislature and told the demonstrators they would try to meet Premier Robert Bourassa and Cournoyer to try to withdraw the legislation.

But the two union leaders, however, succeeded in meeting Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer in his national assembly office, then immediately proceeded to introduce the Bills they had come to protest.

About 20 police officers kept an eye on the crowd, but there were no incidents as the workers gathered, coming by bus from Montreal and other points in the province.

Mr. Laberge and Mr. Daoust told the gathering they would demand that their grievances be heard by a committee of the legislature.

The demonstration marked another step in the growing clash between Quebec labor and the government over proposals to curb union abuses put forward in the Cliche commission report tabled earlier this week by Premier Bourassa.

Mr. Bourassa has said the government "has no intention of giving in to blackmail" by some of the unions.

The fiery Mr. Laberge promised, on the other hand, that the QFL will "fight like dogs" against the trusteeship over its construction affiliates.

He has said such government action would trample on workers' rights and "emasculate" the union.

Police Strike In Montreal Is Prevented

MONTREAL (CP) — A tentative agreement preventing a Montreal Urban Community police strike was reached Thursday between the city and the police brotherhood.

Both the public security council and the 5,307-member brotherhood said they were confident the proposed contract settlement terms would bring to an end six months of negotiations, which began when Urban and Montreal police departments were partially integrated in 1973.

Riverside Rescue

Firemen and police Friday were called to rescue two men from this car after it crashed over bank of Moira River in Belleville's downtown. Both men were unharmed in incident that occurred near rear of Belvedere Hotel.

Lakehead Grain Cars Plundered

THUNDER BAY (CP) — The theft of wheat, oats and barley by turning into a lucrative sideline for some area residents, officials of Canada's two national railways said Thursday.

[illegible] inspector, said there have been instances of people—sometimes groups with trucks—punching holes in the interior paper walls of grain cars and making off with sizable amounts of grain.

The railways have been aware of minor thefts from unloaded boxcars for years "but we are concerned because the thieves now are starting to punch holes in sealer walls."

Mr. McKay said that after a hole has been punched in the sealer and taken six or a dozen bags of grain, the spill continues.

"It is not unusual that where you get a hole punched in the wall you can lose 15,000 pounds of grain."

No More VE Days For France

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing announced Thursday that France will never again celebrate the anniversary of VE-Day, the 1945 Allied victory in Europe, and hopes to replace it with an annual celebration marking European unity.

The president made the announcement after attending ceremonies to mark the 30th anniversary of VE-Day on May 8, 1945, when Nazi Germany surrendered unconditionally to Allied forces.

The Allied victory was recalled with celebrations in most of Europe, especially in the Soviet bloc countries. West Germany reaffirmed its policy of peace and renunciation of the use of force.

In a letter to the nine-nation European Council, Giscard d'Estaing said: "... it is our common aspiration that it should be the last of the wars which in vain long drenched the soil of our continent with blood ... To show our determination to organize our peaceful future together, it and the French government have decided never again to commemorate this anniversary which thus will be the 30th and the last."

To replace VE-Day, the president said, the countries of Europe should jointly choose a date "which will mark in all our countries the foundation of

News Briefs

Restraints Said Unfair

TORONTO (CP) — Policy statements endorsed by delegates of the United Steel Workers of America called federal wage restraint proposals unfair Thursday and favored wage increases to compensate for increased productivity and losses to inflation. The country's largest industrial union, 187,500 members, is involved in bargaining this year in the steel and mining industries.

Price Index Rise Small But Sharp Increase Ahead

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index was up a record two-tenths of one per cent in April, the fourth straight month of relatively low monthly increases, Statistics Canada said today.

The report is based on a survey done a month ago and Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, said today she is more concerned about what has happened since.

"The real story is in meats," she said. Wholesale beef prices have gone from 37 cents a pound to about 52 and there has been a large increase in pork prices. "This means a sharply increase is expected in the food price index when May figures are announced, she said. The May survey was being done this week and results are due out in June.

A cut in the Ontario sales tax—to five per cent from seven—was part of the reason price rises were moderate in April, Statistics Canada said. Higher gasoline costs accounted for about 40 per cent of the increase in the index in April. The Toronto Transit Commission's recent cut in railway fares to three rides for a dollar.

Food accounted for about one-third of the April increase and increases in government services, mainly for milk was a major factor. Statistics Canada said. Higher dairy prices caused most of the increases in the food price index. Higher prices for fresh fruits, cereals and bakery products were partly offset by lower beef and sugar prices.

Clothing prices dropped on average by one-tenth of one per cent in April while costs for shelter went up by three-tenths of one per cent.

Fee Increase Urged

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Bette Stephenson, president of the 27,000 member Canadian Medical Association, Thursday urged doctors to seek a "sizeable increase" in 1976 fees. She told a meeting of the Ontario Medical Association that fee increases are "warranted and needed."

Turner Prepares For Labor Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner prepared Thursday for renewed talks with labor leaders, saying time is running out for a major price or a voluntary wage and price restraint program.

He refused to say whether the government will use mandatory controls in the absence of a voluntary restraint agreement. But he said he wants a decision before his new budget, expected by early June.

"Time is running out," he told reporters. "Our position is continuing to erode and we need a national response soon."

The new talks with labor, scheduled next week, were called after the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) issued a series of tough conditions Wednesday as its price for co-operating with the government.

The CLC demanded a fairer system of income distribution and measures to hold down rents, interest rates, dividends and land speculation.

Mr. Turner, who released details Thursday of initial federal restraint proposals, said some CLC demands fall outside the jurisdiction. But he indicated that Ottawa will offer a "substantial response" next week, when it meets again with labor and business.

Mr. Turner said Thursday that the federal budget will occur unless wage settlements and production costs are brought into line with those of Canada's trading partners. Costs have been rising twice as fast in Canada as in the United States.

Mr. Turner also plans to meet a group of labor leaders next week with business representatives.

Postmen Won't Accept Curbs

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers will not accept wage restraints as matter what the Canadian Labor Congress agrees to, Jean Desmeules, CUPW president, says.

Lawyer Prepares For Labor Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner prepared Thursday for renewed talks with labor leaders, saying time is running out for a major price or a voluntary wage and price restraint program.

He refused to say whether the government will use mandatory controls in the absence of a voluntary restraint agreement. But he said he wants a decision before his new budget, expected by early June.

"Time is running out," he told reporters. "Our position is continuing to erode and we need a national response soon."

The new talks with labor, scheduled next week, were called after the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) issued a series of tough conditions Wednesday as its price for co-operating with the government.

The CLC demanded a fairer system of income distribution and measures to hold down rents, interest rates, dividends and land speculation.

Mr. Turner, who released details Thursday of initial federal restraint proposals, said some CLC demands fall outside the jurisdiction. But he indicated that Ottawa will offer a "substantial response" next week, when it meets again with labor and business.

Mr. Turner said Thursday that the federal budget will occur unless wage settlements and production costs are brought into line with those of Canada's trading partners. Costs have been rising twice as fast in Canada as in the United States.

Mr. Turner also plans to meet a group of labor leaders next week with business representatives.

Postmen Won't Accept Curbs

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers will not accept wage restraints as matter what the Canadian Labor Congress agrees to, Jean Desmeules, CUPW president, says.

Olympic Work At Standstill

MONTREAL (CP) — Construction on work sites for the 1976 Olympics was at a standstill today as 400 construction workers affiliated with the Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) arrived in Quebec City by bus to demonstrate before the Quebec national assembly.

The construction workers, who walked off the job Thursday, are protesting against recommendations of the Cliche commission report which includes a proposal that four Montreal locals affiliated with the QFL be put under government trusteeship.

Contractors in charge of construction at the Olympic site, Desaudy-Duracasse, said in a brief statement the events of Thursday forced closure of the Olympic site today.

QFL president Louis Laberge said "The games will be held in the 1976 Games in 1977" if the workers' protest for reconsideration of the report was aggravated.

He told a news conference after a walkout Thursday by more than 1,000 men halted most major construction sites in Montreal that the Cliche report was a "threat" to workers, and if implemented through legislation, could lead to a "takeover" of the Quebec labor movement.

Jerome Choquette, Quebec minister of justice, warned he may order Quebec Provincial Police into Montreal if there is violence, and said he has instructed police "not to be intimidated by anyone."

Earlier this week, Premier Robert Bourassa said the government is "ready to declare war against the unions, if necessary" to rectify labor strife in the province.

But Bourassa promised Thursday to force striking construction unions into submission and said a bill to impose a trusteeship on four Montreal union locals, as recommended in the Cliche report, will be tabled today in the national assembly.

1927 BGH Grad Retires

They Built Hospital Around Win Donaldson

By SHARON ADLHART
Staff Reporter

More than 100 persons gathered Thursday night to honor Winnifred Donaldson, head nurse of the post-partum maternity ward at Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Donaldson, who retired Thursday on her 65th birthday, began nurses' training at Belleville Hospital in 1927.

"One of the housekeepers said to me the other day, that she guessed I'd seen a lot of changes in 48 years," Mrs. Donaldson told the nurses, doctors and friends who attended the dinner at Education Hall. "In fact, she said, they built the hospital around me."

After completing training in 1930, she worked in Toronto as a children's nanny and private duty nurse.

"In those days, only student nurses worked in the hospitals and with the Depression, you just didn't go out and find a job.

"If someone wanted a registered nurse you went out in full regalia. But if they wanted a practical nurse, you left your bib and cap at home and went and cooked and cleaned and nursed, too.

"I hope we don't see days quite like that again; but I don't think R did me any harm either."

At the party, which was organized by the maternity ward, master of ceremonies Jr. J. R. Brebner said her co-workers were "overjoyed to be able to pay tribute to Mrs. Donaldson at the time of her retirement but nostalgic at the loss of a colorful and dedicated staff member."

Dr. Brent Cronk told the group that in the early days of the hospital Mrs. Donaldson was the instrument that cured patients if they were curable and comforted them if they were not "the 'in' or 'out nurse' who ran the hospital among them Mrs. Donaldson.

Hospital administrator Phillip Rickard, director of nursing Carrie Marshall, and obstetrics-gynecology and non-obstetrics Dorothy Trotter also spoke and a presentation of gifts, including a "memory" book of photographs and documents, was made by Dr. Robert Aikens.

Old Church Made Centre for Elderly

FRENCHMAN BUTTE, Sask. (CP) — As people get on in by years, they like a little company and a group of pensioners in this farming community 135 miles northwest of Prince Albert have put in several months hard labor of hard work this winter to fill that need.

Vera Jarvis, who says she would be angry if anyone asked her age but admits to being more than a little proud of a committee to restore a small church which will be used as a community centre for the elderly and will also be made available to other community groups as a meeting place.

"You can't miss it," she said in a telephone interview.

"It's right as you come down the hill into town. It's the first thing you see."

The 32-year-old Roman Catholic church, about the size of a small bungalow with a steeple, was never fully finished by its small congregation and fell into disuse because there weren't enough people to support it, she said.

It was sold to a group of Anglican church women.

The church tended to be cold and drafty until about 15 pensioners took down partitions, lowered the ceiling, installed new windows, put down a carpeted floor and reinstalled the kitchen with the help of a professional carpenter, who Mrs. Jarvis said agrees most of his time and effort for nothing.

The group worked steadily from December onwards and still has a bit left to do, especially to furnish the place and outfit it with game tables and a carpet bowling area.

The work was made possible by the money for equipment is to get into town for the activities from the federal government.

The local pensioners' club has ties and Mrs. Jarvis said she was "sitting with committee had planned to remove the oldest member about 88, four girls who were still nearly the simple when the weather blew them from area farms and four young town-goers, they sent better but is considering nursing homes. The group is spread out in the were having such a good time."

Firemen Blame Vandals For 2 of 3 Alarms

TRENTON — Vandals are blamed for two of three minor outbreaks local firemen were called out to deal with last night.

Fire burning at an overhead door of a building on Bay St., formerly occupied by Trenton Machine Tools needed particular attention before it was extinguished. An investigator with the department is working on the possibility of arson in the incident.

No serious damage resulted from a smokey chimney fire at Doug Darrington's home at 198 Reid St. The trouble was traced to a bird's nest in the flue which caught fire when the fireplace was lighted to add warmth to the premises.

Smoke from a bonfire set in Centennial Park created considerable concern for park users.

visitors until a fire truck arrived on the scene with a tank full of water to douse the source.

Impaired Driving Charge Follows Dunk in River

A 18-year-old Belleville man has been charged with impaired driving and with having more than 80 milligrams of alcohol in his blood following an incident in the downtown area Thursday.

A city police spokesman identified the man as Leon Fabros Vasco of 69 Murray St.

Police said the driver of the Buick was westbound across a lot at the rear of the Belvedere Hotel and it ran into a ditch, overturned, careened off a couple of trees and ended up about 15 feet in to the Moira River.

Both occupants of the car, including a passenger identified by police as Jack McKay, 44, of the Belvedere Hotel, were uninjured.

The accident occurred at about noon and the car was removed about an hour later. Police said both occupants refused to let the car until police investigators arrived to remove them. The car was not damaged.

Police said Vasco's first appearance in criminal division court on the charge will be May 30. The investigating officer was Constable Tom Burkitt.

Japanese Bones Will Be Exhumed

ROSEBAY (CP) — A large number of Japanese have arrived in India to collect the remains of their countrymen who died in the Second World War during the final stages of the South East Asia campaign.

The bones will also pay homage to the memory of Indian soldiers who were killed in the same area fighting the British forces.

Heading the Japanese team is Gen. J. Fujiwara who played a key role in the Japanese attempt to capture northeast India during the final stages of the Indian National Army of Subhas Chandra Bose, a former president of the Indian Congress Party.

The team includes 13 Japanese war veterans and the son of a high Japanese officer who died in the fighting.

Now trusted by the Indian government as a national hero, Gen. Fujiwara was played a key role in the fighting. Recalled to Japan to be handed over to the relatives of the dead."

The Indian government is also helping Japanese as state guests.

"The gesture will bring India and Japan closer," said General Fujiwara.

Clean Sweep Returns

FRANKFORD — After a three-year break, Operation Clean Sweep will again be swept into the public consciousness this year as the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority revives an old program aimed at cleaning the shorelines of the Trent River.

The one-day massive clean-up campaign will be held in May, on a date still to be set by the authority.

Cy Macdonald, water control board chairman, said, Wednesday the clean-up campaign was discontinued the past three years because of high water levels on the Trent River.

Water had risen beyond the normal river bed, said Mr. Macdonald. It made access to the river shallows, where boats collects, difficult.

In the two previous years the clean-up campaign was run - 1970 and 1971 - in May. This year August was chosen because the river water level that late in the summer has stabilized and shallows are exposed.

Operation Clean Sweep is an authority - sponsored, but volunteer operated campaign to clean the shores of the Trent River along its 30-mile length between Rice Lake and Trenton.

The river is divided into 19 regions, each under a single co-ordinator, and is combed by crews of volunteers who remove anything and everything that does not belong in the cans from the river.

The only garbage left untouched by volunteers is that requiring a winch to be moved, said Mr. Macdonald. All refuse pulled from the river is taken to the nearest municipal garbage dump by trucks made available by the volunteer work force.

The task is substantial, he said. In 1970, about 130 tons of refuse was pulled from the river. The following year, it was 70 tons. He scrubbed the number tonnage in 1971 to the clean-up campaign of the previous year.

Mr. Macdonald said an extensive publicity campaign will be mounted about four weeks before the day of the clean-up in an effort to bring out as many people as are available for the work.

He said in the two previous years of the program thousands came out to help. He hopes the same will occur this year.

Planting Program Massive

More than five million seedling trees will be planted in eastern Ontario this spring in a program to turn 5,100 acres of idle and unsuitable for agriculture, into reforested forest.

Administered by the provincial ministry of natural resources, the program will have rehabilitated about 28,000 in done on private land in the past six years when completed in early June.

During that period, both to take advantage of the spring growing season of seedlings, 250 men and women are employed as well as hundreds of volunteers.

Quinte-area Scouts, Cubs and Beavers for example, planted nearly 30,000 trees on the property of John Gaine near Read on Saturday.

More than half the planting is done on private land. Owners pay approximately a cost a tree and enter into an agreement with the province to maintain the new plantation for at least 15 years.

New Service Directory Keeps Trenton Informed

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A directory of services available to Trenton residents is now available in a limited edition of 100 copies to groups and newcomers to town.

Collation of the 78-page booklet was completed by the town recreation department early this week and distribution has now begun.

Sharon Gaudaur, assistant director of recreation, said Thursday the directory will be distributed to town service clubs, the Chamber of Commerce, town hall, and a variety of town boards and committees.

The booklet lists organizations and clubs that provide a service in Trenton and the Quinte Area, it is broken down into 41 categories, among them health, recreation, farming interests, women's clubs.

Mrs. Gaudaur said "Where there isn't a Trenton organization covering that specific activity, those groups in Belleville have been included."

Originally, the Trenton Chamber of Commerce worked on the booklet before it was taken over by the recreation department. It was based in part on the recreation pamphlet produced by United Community Services in Belleville.

It was prompted by repeated requests to the town hall, the Chamber, and the town recreation department from people wanting contacts for various groups in Trenton.

"Up until this book, there wasn't a central source of information," said Mrs. Gaudaur. "We also found that people coming into town wanted to know about various groups."

The directory will be sold at $1 a copy to only those who really make the use of it. The limited edition prerequisite was deliberate.

Most of the work on the directory was done during non-work hours by Mr. Gaudaur.

Director Dean Gottas estimated about $1,000 of voluntary effort was put into creation of the edition.

He said it will be sold only to those individual who have a valid reason for its use, or who will use it continuously.

People who only need several names for groups that prompt their interest can get the contact people without buying the book, said Mrs. Gaudaur.

No Definite Plans Yet For Gutted Gilbert

TRENTON — No definite plans have been made by the new owners for use of the century-old Gilbert Hotel.

Murray Page, a Toronto lawyer representing co-owners Quinte Realty Ltd. of Trenton, and Temple Advertising Ltd. of Toronto, said Thursday that there are no definite plans until we know what the insurance proceedings will be."

Speculation over the use of the hotel, gutted by an early morning fire earlier this year, has been overstated in Trenton since it was announced the hotel had been sold in January.

Mr. Page said the Toronto and Trenton co-owners had plans to refurbish the building and restore its operation as a hotel However, the fire ended such plans.

He predicted definite plans would likely be made in the next six months.

Gerald Weaver, owner of Quinte Realty Ltd., and co-owner of the hotel and its 7,000-square-foot downtown site, confirmed Thursday no definite plans existed for the hotel.

"We have many plans for it, but there are no hotelplans," said Mr. Weaver. He declined to comment on speculation that the site would be razed and a new three-storey building would be constructed house a financial institution or offices for medical or business professional people.

"We've got something jelled, the news of the redevelopment will be announced," he said.

The three-story brick building changed hands May 1. No price was given. Thursday agreed to reveal the sale price.

The hotel was owned by the present owners of the Quinte Hotel, Abraham and Earl Sieloberg. The brothers bought the hotel in 1968 for $130,000 and it has subsequently been valued at $340,000.

The building opposite the Trenton municipal building, contains 43 living units, a large kitchen, plus various rooms and lounges. Since the March 11 blaze, later ruled out as the work of an arsonist, it has been unoccupied.

$8,000 Crash at Glenora Ferry

GLENORA — A three vehicle collision causing an estimated $8,000 damage at Glenora Ferry shortly before midnight Thursday has sent four persons to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital.

Injured were drivers of the vehicles, Steven Leonard, 28, of Picton, who was treated for bruises and released, John Gendron, 51, RR1, Picton, admitted with head injuries, James McGillahan, 40, of RR3, Milford, also with head injuries. Also injured was Terry Clarke, 24, of Kemptville, who was admitted with a head and back injuries.

A police spokesman said the collision occurred when the Leonard vehicle, a 1974 model car, eastbound on Highway 33 went onto the shoulder of the highway, bounced back across the road and collided head on with the Gendron vehicle, a station wagon, as it was driving off the ferry.

The Leonard car then spun around and struck the front of the McGillahan vehicle with its rear end.

Described by police as a 'fender bender', the Leonard car caused an estimated $2,000 damage to each of the other two vehicles involved.

Regions Don't Threaten Museums

PICTON — Prince Edward County has an opportunity to demonstrate that regional government poses no threat to museums says James Gooding, curator of the Prince Edward County Museum in Picton.

Mr. Gooding, speaking to Picton Rotarians, expressed concern expressed throughout Ontario have been conquered for their efforts to retain local identity in the face of regionalization.

He said under regional government townships and communities have lost their boundaries and museum workers fear that their work to preserve community heritages will be lost.

"In Prince Edward we have the opportunity to prove that regionalization, as far as museums are concerned, need not be a bad thing," he commented.

"We can think in terms of greater scope and retain our identity."

Mr. Gooding said Prince Edward County council has shown "tremendous initiative" with the county museum and the development of the Macaulay House skating rink.

Much also has been done to establish smaller county museums in other municipalities.

The curator said as a boy growing up in Toronto he visited the Royal Ontario Museum he enjoyed Saturday classes there and the activities of a junior field naturalists' association.

"It gave me an opportunity to work in a museum and to me in touch with things that I did and a part of natural history," he added.

Mr. Gooding suggested educational opportunities could be developed at the Prince Edward County Museum.

He will provide the space if anyone in the community wants to run courses, he said. Sessi) in educational things," he said.

Mr. Gooding briefly outlined summer plans for the county museum including a special display on Queen Victoria to be exhibited from May 19 to 24.

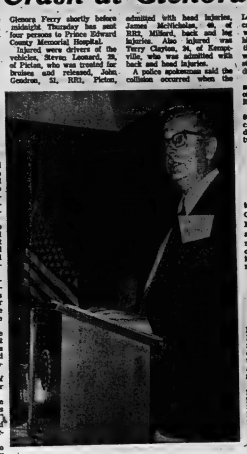
He said the exhibit probably will be unique in Canada and will focus on the role of the woman.

"She was just a tremendous person," noted the curator.

A display of arrow and will be on view at the museum, probably in late June.

Mr. Gooding said most of it will date in medieval times although some will be shown up to the time of Jacques Cartier. The arrows will be loaned in part by collectors and in part by the Royal Ontario Museum.

No Threat



James Gooding, curator of the Prince Edward County Museum, says regional government need not pose a threat to museums where emphasis is on preservation of local identity. Although Prince Edward still operates under a two-tier system of government, museum workers offered support when should a switch to a one-tier system take place.

The Abortion Debate

The great abortion controversy continues, and in any renewed discussion of the subject, it is appropriate to start with the equally controversial topic of sex education.

Ontario health minister Thomas Wells was right when he said recently that while not questioning the sincerity of those who believed the topic one for the home, "I think we have our heads in the sand if we stand back and blithely say to ourselves that the schools have no role to play."

The minister had announced a new high school curriculum for health and physical education that would place increased emphasis on the study of human sexuality. At the same time he encouraged more dialogue on the subject between parents and their teenagers.

Consider in this vein what has been described as "a pathetic set of myths" in the lives of teenagers, with regard to sex, disclosed in a recent conference on the topic at York University.

Dr. Martin Wolfish, associate professor of Toronto, reported to it as Rosalind Gabe said with regard to birth control, the teenagers offering such bizarre explanations as: "It couldn't happen to me," "I trusted my boyfriend; I kept my eyes open all the time . . . it doesn't happen to nice girls . . . nice girls don't use it" and "It's the man's job," while regard use of a male contraceptive as an insult . . . "except to keep away VD — it's for dirty girls."

Such is the extent of the problem in this "anything goes" society, that so many youngsters simply don't know the full facts, or do not grasp the consequences of their actions at the sexual level.

What are these consequences? The overriding one, according to Dr. Wolfish, is that a generation of emotionally starved people — the offspring of unmarried teenagers who decide to keep their babies instead of placing them for adoption — may result.

As for abortion, Protestant clergymen, in a recent letter to The Montreal Gazette, supported Justice Minister Lang's efforts to uphold the existing abortion laws. But the medical profession, which bears the brunt of the problems associated with the "new morality," is between the devil and the deep blue sea.

In a statement to The Ottawa Journal's Karin Moser, Canadian Medical Association communications director Doug Geekie, said: "The CMA is sick to the teeth of having to decide on which grounds other than medical ones, the public or the representative government wants to sanction a therapeutic abortion."

Then there are the Planned Parenthood people, such as Mary Mills, executive director of the organization in Ottawa, who said in a recent letter that "prevention is the key," adding: "Hopefully, all those opposed to abortion are in favor of safe, effective birth control."

Certainly all concerned must face facts and accept the prevailing behavioral patterns of society. The natural functions of men and women are unalterable; at the same time, if social mores are changing in a manner that threatens the moral and emotional structure, then society is correct in sanctioning such measures as sex education in schools and/or measures of birth control.

If all this seems like pie in the sky, it is nevertheless a plan of action which, if implemented, could help lift housing out of much-needed accommodation.

Houses are being built; but the supply is far from meeting the demand. Again, the cost of those that are being built is often beyond the reach of many — a situation compounded by inflation as well as scarcity of mortgage money.

Indeed, Mayor Newman sees a relationship between "the very harsh housing market," the uncertainties of the economic situation and the desire of people to have children.

He says the province's very low birth rate — lower even, he claims, than during the Depression — reflects disillusionment and uncertainty about the future.

An election is anticipated this year, and undoubtedly housing will be one of the issues. That being so, it should not be surprising if the Government tries to inject new life into this sagging and important facet of the social and economic scene.

Housing in Doldrums

With housing starts down throughout Hastings county, this is a time to reflect once again on this lately maligned industry and of Government policy.

There has seldom been a time in the past decade that housing has not been the target of complaint and hand-wringing, both as to supply and quality.

One of the latest to rail against the situation is Whitby Mayor Dan Newman who has charged that the industry is facing considerable chaos due to an "incomprehensible maze of government agencies" and the welter of unrelated initiatives and programs."

Mr. Newman wants the province to cut through the tangle with a comprehensive strategy setting out a population distribution pattern for the province. This would be followed by an outline of required servicing for areas where population would be directed.

Beyond that again, the Mayor envisages an industrial strategy to produce a balanced economic base to offset the accelerated housing program.

Royal Commission Probe

The provincial royal commission established to investigate violence in the media, and particularly television, has been given further balance and authority with the addition of Toronto newspaper columnist Scott Young and provincial family court judge Lucian Beaulieu. They will join former federal cabinet minister Judy LaMarsh in the study.

Of the two new members, perhaps Mr. Young is the best known. Anyone familiar with his work know Mr. Young as a family man who has travelled widely and who writes with insight and compassion. And with equal facility whether he is dealing with human frailty in general or with such topical subjects as hockey.

Together with Judge Beaulieu, he undoubtedly will bring to bear, along with Miss LaMarsh, wide experience of the human condition and a keen perception of cause and effect where the dramatising of violence through the media is concerned.

A Poor Mix

To the presumably harmless "coffee . . . tea . . . or milk" syndrome, add now the possibly dangerous "coffee . . . tea . . . or milk" syndrome, add now the possibly dangerous "coffee . . . tea . . . or milk" syndrome, add now the possibly dangerous from a health standpoint, "coffee . . . cheese . . . and bacon" element.

British scientists are saying a constituent of coffee might be responsible for converting preservatives in cheese, corned beef, ham and other pork products into cancer-causing agents.

It makes as if a fatalistic attitude toward life is increasingly necessary today.

Labor's Obstacles to Voluntary Wage-price Restraints

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Just back from Europe, Finance Minister John Turner is soon going to display what will be a near-hopeless scheme for wage and price restraints.

The plan has reached the stage at which he has tentatively suggested an 18 per cent "ceiling" limit on wage increases.

But there has been nothing tentative about organized labor's immediate reaction of the suggestion.

That's hardly surprising. The labor movement has never given the government any reason to think it would agree to voluntary guidelines or restraints on wage increases.

On the contrary, Big Labor has forcefully rejected them time and again.

The fact that Messrs. Trudeau and Turner are considering to pursue a program of voluntary restraint (which failed in Canada in 1976, and is currently failing in Britain now) seems to mean only one thing—that the leaders can't think of anything else to do about inflation.

Inflation has been with us, to a degree, for the past 30 years. For some lucky groups—unionized industrial workers and strongly organized labor—it has been the best thing that ever happened.

(One simple example: Professional hockey players have multiplied their pitiful pre-war prices, while players have multiplied their salaries.)

But in the 1970s, inflation has been hitting hard at segments of a human tragedy far comparable to Canada's relatively low unemployment. Retired workers have no bargaining power.

It is fast becoming a tragedy for the national economy as well. Canada is a resource nation (that is, economic growth has been stimulated in the past by resource development), our export trade is in a strong, healthy balance (probably high (the official figures have been strangely delayed) and our industrial plant is

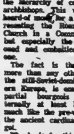
Mindszenty's Death Is a Reminder Of 1956 in Rejuvenated Hungary



By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The death of the intrepid and very old Roman Catholic Cardinal Mindszenty at 83 is a personal reminder as well as historical events in his native Hungary, of the radical shift in events in that country since the "freedom fighters' revolution at last 88.

The tough and clever Hungarian conservative cardinal continued to be the symbol of resistance in Hungary, (given the fact it has been rejuvenated since 1956), which became more and more out of touch with reality.

Even Pope Vatican was largely enough concerned with his determinedly negative views to take him at Primate of Hungary within the hierarchy of cardinals and archbishops. This was an unheard-of step for a prelate representing the Roman Catholic Church in Communist state, but especially in Hungary, proud and embattled Hungarian nat.

The fact is that Hungary, more than any country in the still-Soviet-dominated Eastern Europe, is emerging as a partial Russian satellite, externally at least looking very much like the pre-war Hungary the ancient cardinal never forgave.

The basis for this is rejection by the Hungarian Communist regime of the neo-stalin, rigid and inefficient centrally-planned economy. In its place came the so-called NEM, "new economic mechanism" — or, in other terms means the introduction of the limited measure economy of the capitalistic world.

Hungary is a relatively small country, smaller since 1945 than during centuries of her past and industrial. Money. And possibly the imposition of the monetary economy is easier to bring about than in a more geographically ample Poland, or a politically more Stalinist East Germany.

Budapest today is a city of smart shops, chic fashions, generous restaurants and with Hungarian of style and money-making skills which have their own places in the country.

This compares to a drab and broken-down Prague, and victim to the harsh Communism manifestly unpopular even in the USSR, or to Warsaw in which the hatred of Communism is still rekindling 39 years after the Germans flattened it.

The reasons for Hungarian resistance related to the memories of the NEM, establishing a realistic price policy for consumer and expendable goods as well as to the style and approach of Hungarian is general.

They could not be put down by familiar tanks and armies as in 1956, though they had the political backing, and have the Hungarian Socialist Workers' Party (Communist Party, Marxist Party) who have largely held back and watched the change.

At the same time Hungary's party, the ailing Janos Kadar who took over after the bloodbath of 1956 has been a recent visit of United Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev, that "the old one (dictator) is the predictable dictator able, will persist."

Comrade Brezhnev, may perhaps be the moment of home replied that Kadar and Hungary were doing a good job, or words to that effect, the Soviet Union is a partner of the Hungarian Communists.

Certainly the Hungarian people want more consumer, less space rocketry and capital goods production.

The Hungarian model, cautiously introduced, may not be the ideal Communist system, but it is not only being watched in the Soviet bloc, but copied and most avidly by the once coldly ideological East Germans.

Allan Grossman Honored

By DON O'HEARN

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — It is most unlikely that Allan Grossman will make the history books of Ontario, at least in any major way.

But he deserves his place in the record of the province as one of those backbenchers who seldom get much recognition but who are so important in the functioning of the legislature and government.

They did more to Mr. Grossman the other night here in Toronto.

The fact of the honor was not particularly surprising — it is now part of a very obvious PC post-sell or election program.

Earlier, as I have noted here across the province.

Their local politicians are having colonialist dinners, usually the party and every old cabinet minister showed up, and for one night good old Joe who agrees to sit sitting silent for the visiting has his spot in the sun.

He is king for a day—or a night — and gets a chance to bigmouth constituency may have been in or not to get vote when the party wide ball rolls.

In the case of Mr. Grossman, however, the honor of lying for a night was well deserved.

He is a hard-working backbencher who has been one of the best elected representatives around here.

And he has been around for a long time.

His first elected in 1955 — after a term as a Toronto alderman—and has been a cabinet minister since 1963.

In that time he has headed a number of departments of government, including the longest cabinet board, the ministry of correctional services and the ministries of trade and development.

Currently he is the provincial secretary for natural resources.

His outstanding service would have been when he was in correctional services.

He was remarkable in it for many developments, including the day-work program whereby people could earn up regular jobs and report back to be locked up at night.

The move in this direction was a humane and understanding step which reflected Allan Grossman's most notable qualities.

A man who grew up the hard way in the east end of Toronto became a successful insurance man, he has never forgotten his early days and has always had an mind for the little man who wasn't getting the breaks.

Bancroft Game Club Fights Algonquin Plan

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — The Bancroft Fish and Game Club along with the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters and the Pembroke Outdoor Sportsmens Club have decided not to sit down and quietly wait for the Algonquin Master plan to become a reality so they're waging a determined war on the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources.

One of the spokesmen for the local club, John Strult, has been angry about the Algonquin Plan for a year.

The plan would eventually eliminate the use of outboard motors in the park entirely with the exception of Opeongo Lake. Limitations would also be placed on carts used to convey boats over portages and on the use of bicycles in the park.

According to Mr. Strult, the hunters and fishermen of Ontario are simply being forgotten about because of the demands being made by canoeists and naturalists.

"I can't see anything wrong with making a decision to limit the motors to five horsepower," said Mr. Strult. "You're talking about a awful lot of people who want them. There are about 300,000 fishermen who use the park each year."

Government figures indicate that approximately two million people used the park during 1974 and 79 per cent were canoeists, 16 per cent were fishermen and five per cent were campers.

"This is a very serious thing to local people," said Mr. Strult, as he commented on the number of people who had voiced their objections to the plan.

"You can increase taxes and things like that and people will complain a bit but when you take away something like this they will get very angry."

The local club also feels that there is no evidence that the use of a small motor in the park would damage the environment.

Mr. Strult, who owns and operates the Bancroft Sport Centre, is concerned that there will be very few parks left to the serious angler.

"Where else can we go to fish," he queried. "They've restricted Silent Lake Park, Quetico Park, Polar Bear and Killarney Parks."

The local club has set up another meeting on the Algonquin issue for Thursday, May 15.

At this meeting in Bancroft Public School, Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins and riding Liberal candidate David Holmes will take part in a discussion on the controversial issue.

Mr. Strult indicated that he had had correspondence from Premier William Davis indicating that the plan is again under review.

"Im sure that a decision can be made so that all groups can fairly share the park," said Mr. Strult.

Some Good And Bad News

MARMORA — The auditors' report showing a profit of $4,186 from 1974 operations is welcome news for Marmora and Lake Townships council.

However, the good news is tempered by reports from Reeve Ritchie Wells that the Hastings County demand for 1975 will be $58,147 compared to $54,848 last year. The large increase is due partly to the, $7.56 million budget approved by county council last week. The budget for the county last year was $5.7 million.

An increase in the Hastings County board of education budget to $31.87 million — a 13.8 per cent increase over last year — is also a contributing factor in what is expected to be an increased mill rate for the townships.

Their share of the education budget is expected to be $121,915 — an increase of $24,081. It does not include the demands by the separate school board which is also expected to jump to $30,000 from last year.

The auditors will meet with the council May 16 at 10 a.m. to discuss the proposed 1975 budget.

Mileage Approved

MARMORA — Marmora and Lake Township council has authorized payment of 16 cents per mile for persons carrying out township business. Reeve Ritchie Wells noted Hastings County pays over the same amount and he said is reasonable in light of today's inflationary prices.

Opposes Plan

The Bancroft Fish and Game Club and local MPP John Strult have been adament in their criticism of the proposed Algonquin Master plan announced by the provincial Ministry of Natural Resources.

Senior Citizens Ambitious In Operation of Own Park

BANCROFT — One of the most ambitious projects that the Bancroft Senior Citizens Club has attempted is the landscaping, maintenance and operation of the club's own park in the North end of the village.

The park is located on reclaimed land on the York River and was given to the seniors group by the village.

Although the land still belongs to the village, the Bancroft Senior Citizens have used their own funds to build a New Horizon grant to grass the land and to plant flowers and trees.

The group is delighted with the park property and according to club president Reg Hathorwick, have great ambitions for a lawn bowling green, groups of shrubs and a series of pathways.

Unfortunately during the winter and early spring a certain amount of damage was done to the work in the park by snowmobiles and children.

"We have planted willows all along the lagoon and they've all been broken or smashed," said Bancroft Deputy-reeve Andrey Donnelly.

"The snowmobiles running over and over the park and kids roaring around and bikes have really done a lot of damage," said Mr. Hathorwick.

Plans are now underway by the Bancroft Senior Citizens to get farm fencing along the river and lagoon side of the park and to put another fence along the highway side.

Bancroft village council has agreed to push and grade and is to mark the parking area.

However, according to Deputy-reeve Donnelly, there isn't much room in going by-law by-law to make the work effective if it's going to be destroyed by other people.

The landscaping for the park was laid out by the Royal Botanical Gardens in Hamilton and a storage house and washrooms will soon be installed for the use of park club members.

The Bancroft Cardiff Electric Club have donated two new picnic tables to be used in the park.

Apsley Woman Directs Liberal Campaign

A housewife has been named campaign manager for the Liberal provincial election bid in Hastings — Peterborough riding.

She is Mona Caldwell, of Apsley, who will head the party's campaign organization for candidate David Hobson.

Meantime, says Jim Watson, president of the Liberal riding association, the Liberals are in "the process of establishing the rest of the campaign team."

Mrs. Caldwell is a neighbor of the Hobson family in Camden township where the candidate has a beef farm. He also is a teacher at North Hastings High School in Bancroft.

The 39-year-old Mr. Hobson was named at a convention in mid-April.

His campaign program to date includes a visit to the riding May 31 by Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon.

The Progressive Conservatives in the newly-formed riding — which amalgamates 19 townships from the former Peterborough constituency into Hastings — will hold their nomination convention at Madoc May 21.

To date, Charles Ward, MPP for Hastings from 1967 to the only declared candidate.

The Herald-Tyrold party also has named a contestant — Nancy Arnold, a Wooler Beach mother of five and weekly newspaper reporter.

Fred Hawley, RR3, Stirling, is a candidate in the 1974 Hastings federal election, has been appointed Mrs. Arnold's campaign manager.

No Censorship

Digest and Time Is Only Tax Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Status Secretary Hugh Faulkner told parliament Thursday to wipe out exemption of corporate taxes from the government's move to end tax privileges for advertisers in the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest.

"It is no way inquire anyone small business," he said in his brief policy of political parties. He said, in effect, the Commons legislation would be aimed at the proposed tax law amendment.

Scattered cries of "censorship" from Progressive Conservative benches during Mr. Faulkner's speech prompted Tory Heward Grafftey (PC—Papineau) to declare that the Liberals had introduced the issue "in order to divert attention from the real issue."

He noted that Time is wholly owned by its U.S. parent while Reader's Digest has less than 25 per cent of its shares in Canadian hands.

"Even if they had 75-per-cent Canadian ownership, they would not be eligible for the tax," Grafftey said. "The only key to control of editorial content is ownership."

It was doubtful the Canadian editions of Reader's Digest could take advantage and even if they could the tax law could be circumvented by the Canadian publishing industry.

Mr. Faulkner said that only nearly 25 per cent of the Canadian circulation of Reader's Digest is being revenue freed by this measure will go to Canadian industry.

Mr. Faulkner said the government is not attempting to censor publications.

If the difference in outlook is 25 per cent or less, the publication is considered foreign. Between 45 and 55 per cent special consideration is given on an individual basis.

He emphasized that the attempt to channel more advertising money into Canadian periodicals would not guarantee a successful publication or even a profitable one. That would depend on the quality of such a publication.

The proposed tax changes would bring Time, a foreign-owned publication, but would not affect Maclean's, a Canadian publication. Maclean's is entitled a licence is granted for a third Vancouver station.

The situation of the world view of Canadian readers is influenced by American periodicals was exposed by the government.

Teen-agers Leave Home For Clothes

TORONTO (CP) — The stability of society and social services should be put more firmly in distributing allowances to her teenage families to encourage their break-up, Elie Martin (NDP—Sudbury East) said Thursday.

He was speaking before the social development committee to which approved the ministry's estimates of $444,376,000 for financial assistance programs such as Family Benefits and General Welfare Assistance.

The NDP critic of the ministry said that the family benefits could support to natural parents should be equal to support given foster parents.

Foster parents receive $125 each a month for the care of a teen-ager while under Family Benefits the natural parents get $71.

Some teen-age girls are leaving home to find jobs to get the clothing allowance, he said.

Monetary problems are at the bottom of most family breakups and there should be more flexibility to provide for such, he said.

"Don't you find this monetary incentive to Family Benefits?" he asked Dana Irwin, minister of community and social services.

Mr. Martel also suggested that the ministry investigate setting up a program to provide expectant mothers with the necessary nutrition during their pregnancies.

A similar program in Montreal has a $125 allowance for this purpose.

Mr. Irvin in the unborn babies for mothers not to get the proper nutrition and would prevent a possible deformities or illness at the child, he said.

Mr. Martel also suggested that all single parents, not just husband-less families, receive an allowance for homemaking services.

Bail Allowed

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Arthur Stone of the Ontario Appeal Court ruled Thursday that Fred Smilkov, 18, of Mississauga, Ont., will remain free on his own recognizance and $200 bail. Arthur Maloney, the youth's lawyer said.

Smilkov was convicted of manslaughter in June, 1974, in the death of Dennis Colby, 19, also of Mississauga. Ont., who died after a fight with Smilkov Feb. 8, 1973.

On Tuesday, the Ontario Appeal Court dismissed Smilkov's appeal in a majority decision.

He is appealing this decision.

Meat and Milk Often Contaminated

OTTAWA (CP) — A fairly number of meat and milk products are contaminated by pesticides, a health department official admitted Thursday.

Dr. A. R. Morrison, director general of the department's health protection branch, was answering questions in the Commons agriculture committee.

He said such contamination is known to occur but is difficult to trace where the poisons originate because of the complexities of the manufacturing system.

Gus Mitges (PC—Grey-Simcoe) was raised the question. He said he thinks Canadian farmers face little likelihood of prosecution, there is probably a lot of contaminated meat and milk.

Dr. Morrison said that most national standards are now known to break down into maximum amounts of residue. There was, however, concern about a few that might be dangerous.

Gutter Talk Is Film Norm

TORONTO (CP)—Violence in film continues to be the major source of concern, D. L. Sims, director of the film branch of the ministry of consumer and commercial relations, told the censorship review board Thursday.

"Gutter language and profanity seem to be the accepted norm today in film," Mr. Sims said in his report for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1975. "Sex continues to be treated in a demeaning manner."

He said that contamination occurs when farmers do not use the pesticides exactly as their close manufacturers and ship their products without waiting a suitable time after the last administration of medicines.

Bob Rintoul (PC—Kootenay West) said farmers might be deterred from shipping animals for slaughter if the health department did spot checks on the stockyards from time to time.

They could simply use an old test from a regular basis perhaps once a day or once a week at each stockyard—and last it.

Intentions of Air Canada Not Clear to Travel Agency

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal travel agency official said Thursday he is unsure whether an Air Canada plan to establish a country-wide string of travel agencies is still alive.

Raymond Turbet, secretary-treasurer of McGregor Travel Ltd., told the Air Canada inquiry he was informed by one travel agency which had a deal for a nationwide travel agency that the project is dead.

But R. Y. McGregor, president of McGregor Travel Ltd., Mr. Turbet's boss, had been told by Yves Menard, former Air Canada vice-president, that the deal would probably go through.

Mr. Turbet said he considered a $100,000 payment by Air Canada to Mr. McGregor for "consultation" as an investment in McGregor Travel and a first step in setting up a national agency.

Mr. Justice Willard Estey, presiding over the inquiry, suggested Air Canada was getting a poor bargain if it was paying $100,000 for a 1.5-per-cent interest in a national agency.

"It looks like someone paid 20 times too much for a 1.5-per-cent interest," he said.

Mr. Justice Estey of the Supreme Court of Ontario is investigating the $100,000 payment as well as the financial control Air Canada exercises in Canada.

The hearing adjourned Thursday until next Monday. Mr. Justice Estey said he had a previous commitment in Toronto then.

Air Canada is not allowed under the Air Canada Act to own a travel agency.

Mr. Menard approving the payment to Mr. McGregor said the money was for his consulting services in influencing provincial, Middle Eastern and Latin American governments for Air Canada.

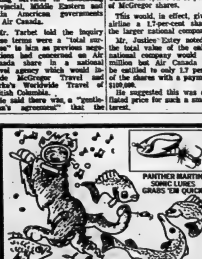
Mr. Turbet told the inquiry these terms were a "total surprise" to him. He said the United Nations had concerned on Air Canada there is a travel agency which would include McGregor Travel and Burke's Wholesale Travel in Toronto, British Columbia.

He said Burke was a "gentleman's agreement" that the $100,000 payment would give Air Canada an option on 16 per cent of McGregor's shares.

This would, in effect, give the airline a 1.7-per-cent share in the larger national company.

Mr. Justice Estey noted that Air Canada's plan to build the national company would be $2 million in debt and that it would be satisfied to only 1.7 per cent of the shares with a payment of $100,000.

He suggested this was an inflated price for such a small interest.



Years of Peril End

Vietnam Buses Safe Once Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Long distance buses and trains are beginning service in South Vietnam where for years flying was the only safe way to travel.

South Vietnam's Liberation Radio, broadcasting from Bangkok, Thailand, said buses are running the 1,900-mile coastal route between Hanoi and Saigon for the first time since the war began and declared it a "great victory." The Hanoi transportation department is putting on more.

Ships plying the coastal route between Hanoi and Saigon now make the voyage in less than half the time, the broadcast said.

Meanwhile, the Youth and Students Federation of Saigon appealed for more volunteers to provide security for the city, to take part in revolutionary cultural programs and to clean up the streets, a broadcast reported.

A Phnom Penh radio broadcast said Cambodia's ties with the armed forces and civilians in Cambodia are working closely specifically to rebuild destroyed areas. Roads are cleared and clean up the wreckage of war.

New York Times correspondent Sydney Schanberg, in an article published today, related how he saw after the fall of Phnom Penh on April 17.

He described a fenced march by perhaps half or more of Cambodia's seven million people into the interior of Cambodia — a march that many will not survive.

"Two million people in stunned silence—walking, cycling, pushing motorcycles, driving oxcarts and overloaded trucks—took the highway toward Battambang, mostly forced by shootin the capital.

Ontario Welfare Increased

TORONTO (CP) — Welfare benefits have been increased by $26.1 million in added last year, Dennis Timbrell, minister of community and social services, announced Thursday.

Mr. Brunelle told the legislature that family benefits effective May 1, will affect 38,000 family benefit recipients and 10,000 persons receiving general welfare assistance now.

If a married man with a wife with three children between the ages of 7 and 12 will get an additional $45 a month for a total of $425. Under the federal family allowance benefit, the family's gross income will be $488.24.

Alby included in the increase is a back-to-school allowance of $25 for each child between 6 and 12 years and $50 for children over 13.

Mr. Brunelle said the province, instead of municipalities, will pay for all welfare housing aids for families receiving family benefits or the Guaranteed Annual Income supplement.

Paraplegics of mothers who have part-time work will be encouraged over a three-month period to find instead of monthly and they also will be given work expenses and transportation.

Cash benefits for mothers will be phased out gradually over a three-month period while the province develops day care, homemaking, dental and Ontario Hospital Insurance Plan coverage during that period.

Allan Grossman, (L-Nipissing) said the increase should be greater since family benefits and general welfare assistance are always behind the cost of living.

He said he does not know how much money is involved but it is in favor of the thousands of dollars.

Published reports say the figure in question may be more than $500,000.

Ontario Owns Lodge In Mercury Country

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario government officials said Thursday a northern Ontario tourist resort has cost taxpayers $1.5 million in the last three years but the government, which owns it, says does not know how much more it will cost before the resort can be respond.

NDP and Liberal members of the legislature raised the issue and chief shareholder of Mirabel Lodge Ltd. has a conflict of interest when he first acquired the $700,000 provincial government loan.

Mirabel, located near Kenora is northwest Ontario, was purchased late last fall, almost a year after the government purchased it, "because its operations were found to be good," said Fred Pilgrem, deputy of minister of industry and tourism.

He told the legislature's public accounts committee the government bought the 77-room Mirabel lodge with its tourist and outdoor swimming pools, golf course and dining and bar rooms—in January, 1974, for but under $1 million to protect $700,000 in loans to the operators for $530,000.

Mr. Pilgrem said he "wouldn't like to forecast" how much it might be possible to reopen the resort or how much money would have to be spent before the operation might be financially solvent.

"I'm not certain Mirabel Lodge, operating on its own, will ever be successful enough to pay off the mortgage," he said.

The first government loan was to Mr. Carey, former owner of the lodge, for $300,000 in 1971.

Mr. Carey was a member of the board of the Northern Ontario Development Corp. (NODC) when he applied to the corporation for the loan to winterize and improve the resort. Jack Lane (NDP—Thunder Bay) told the committee.

J. H. Joyce, chairman of the Northern Ontario Development Corp. (NODC) which paid a total of $530,000 for the resort to Mirabel, said Mr. Carey resigned his position as a director at the NODC director three weeks before the first $300,000 loan was approved Dec. 8, 1971.

Mr. Joyce said the resignation was requested and the loan paid out by NOC rather than Mr. Carey "to avoid any question of a conflict of interest."

J. S. Stewart, NOC director, defended the action as a "perfectly proper way of doing business."

After advancing a further loan of $250,000 to Mirabil Lodge Ltd. in March, 1973, for swimming pool work, and $200,000 more in March, 1974, for operating assistance, the province took over the lodge in cash, the corporation's mortgage to protect its investments, Mr. Pilgrem said.

The province was in danger of being forfeited to Frank Grisenthwaite, a Kenora public relations and former owner.

The province's pollution scare in the English River system, where Mirabel is located, and the resulting decrease in tourist business led Mr. Grisewald to sell the resort to Mr. Carey for $1,250,000 mortgage and an unknown amount of cash, the committee was told.

Mr. Joyce said that the only money he was aware that Mr. Carey had invested was a $35,000 personal loan.

Now It Has Crime and Vice

Tel Aviv Meets Pioneer's Criterion for City Status

TEL AVIV (AP) — An Israeli pioneer: forecast that Tel Aviv would be a real city until it had its first criminal and its first streetwalker.

Tel Aviv now is 40 years old: Its residents are no longer limited to finding common criminals in their midst and ladies of the evening are so plentiful that when Arab terrorists raided Israel's biggest city last March they shot their way into a red-light district.

Crime, in fact, is growing all over the country but this doesn't particularly shock modern Israelis, whose proper parents had hoped to build a model Jewish society.

What appals today's Israelis is that dishonesty, scandal and skullduggery seem to be commonplace.

"Look, now it's happening in a university," said an angry office secretary, shoving the morning newspaper in her face.

An item reported that 70 percent of the academic staff at Ben-Gurion University, in the sands of the Negev Desert, took money for work they didn't do.

Some even said for days when they played hookey and lecturers who were paid to give special summer courses for veterans of the 1973 October war took the money and took an vacation instead.

The same newspaper recounted that Zvi Katz, treasurer of Israel's national housing company, had been detained on suspicion of theft, fraud and forgery involving more than $300,000.

Katz's trial starts this month but the scandal already is in full swing. One magazine charged that the housing money led to a political party.

The Tel Aviv municipal tax collector being investigated for embezzlement was himself hanged himself. The former head of the government company that supplies water to Negeb, the outlands captured from Egypt, also has been charged with income-tax evasion.

A veteran collective-farm worker has been charged with stealing bananas by the tons from them. The dismissed chief of the Israel-British bank, Yehoshua ben Yaire, is serving 12 years for illegally manipulating about $47 million.

The early Israelis didn't even bother to build jails, but prisons nowadays are full.

Police officials have estimated that Mexican oil production will grow from the current 675,000 barrels a day to more than 800,000 by the end of the year.

Only 30 murders were committed in all of Israel last year, but some recent cases were particularly vicious. A soldier killed his victims by throwing a grenade into a discotheque and a hyphen owner was butchered by a man in a masquerade mask.

Dr. Yitzhak Hadani, assistant to the minister of justice, said there has been no startling increase in white - collar or common crime, but "the arrest of a few prominent people has made things more clear for us."

Hadari said 5,500 serious criminal cases were before the courts in 1968 and 4,300 in 1973, the latest statistics available. No breakdown was available on economic crime and other offenses. The population grew to 3.1 million from 2.8 million in the same period and Hadari said the crime increase was probably less than in most countries.

Finance ministry officials said low salaries, high taxes and confusing tax laws encourage illegality but they hoped a proposed new tax reform might bring what one taxman called "a renewed morality, a return to Israel's ea'lier principles."

Israelis regarding themselves less selfish, and some are pleased at what they call a "return to Israeli mentality" of self-criticism and "let's face the country up" that began to appear in the shock following the 1973 October war.

Another scandal involves Habimah, the national theatre. Three former artistic directors of the famous company have been sentenced to three to six years for embezzling more than $60,000. Judge Uzy Levin caused a stir that "their activities—tax evasion, stealing funds and public contributions — represent a widespread practice in Israel."

Michael Tsur, former head of the National Shipping Line and the Israel Corporation, which promotes investment in the Jewish state—also is in jail, while police finish investigating the disappearance of more than $6 million, likewise transferred to companies in Liechtenstein.

Cold in America

New Mexican Oil Field Exploited Without Boom

VILLAHERMOSA, Mexico (AP) — At midday the town square lay empty under the hot sun. The sluggish brown river beside it stood limply still. Nothing seemed to have changed in the 27 years since Graham Greene wrote about the heat and the lethargy here.

But as the evening sky grew dark, the clouds began to grow an unnatural orange and the twin towers of the Tabasco Cathedral stood out against the flickering light from scores of new oil wells.

For in the last year, engineers for the state-owned oil monopoly, digging deeper than they ever had before, had discovered that this isolated city is sitting above a sea of oil.

Production has started at a feverish pace, even as exploration continues. Nobody knows how vast the finds will prove to be, but already they are the largest ever in Mexico, once the world's second leading producer of oil.

Although the government has played down the extent of its discoveries, the finds in the Tabasco and Chiapas provinces are expected to be just the beginning. The most optimistic experts say that they may stretch north to the Gulf of Mexico and even converge with the Guatemalan oil fields.

Officials of the oil monopoly, Pemex, say there may be even more lucrative finds in northern and western Mexico.

"They could change the English expression, 'It's a new world of market,'" one foreign oilman said. "Mexico may well be sitting on one of the world's largest deposits of oil and it needs to do is go after it."

But on the little alleys below Villahermosa's town square, the pale night sky and the distant geysers of flame rushing up from the wells appear to have had little effect on the complexion of life.

Children chase each other through streets that are hotter than daytime with strollers. And from the open doors and windows comes the buzz of television sets.

Just a half hour's drive from the town, the flames are almost blinding as they thunder into fest from the jungle floor, burning against the damp night air.

Beside them, tantalized and hard-hatted laborers work around the clock, drilling deeper and deep as their rules below the earth to tap the oil deposits.

In the last year, some 4,000 oil men and their families have gathered in the Villahermosa area to work on the exploration, drilling and construction of pipelines.

But they have not brought the kind of boom-town atmosphere that one usually finds around the world.

Since all the work is controlled by the government monopoly, one official has said: "There is an oil rush, no hundreds of prospectors crowding hotels, no company representatives lobbying with the government."

As soon to state Governor Mario Trujillo Garcia said he had not authorized the opening of a single new bar in Villahermosa since the new drilling began and that the few local houses of prostitution are doing a poor business.

The only apparent boom has come in the small villages of Paraiso near the Gulf of Mexico 30 miles from the city.

Here almost every house has become a restaurant and wooden huts have sprung up on either side of the jungle road to sell everything from beer and tacos to plastic sandals and straw hats.

When Greene visited Villahermosa in 1938—using it later as the setting for his novel The Power and the Glory—he described it simply as "heat and flies, heat and flies."

It was in that same year that Mexico nationalized the British and American oil fields and created Pemex.

But the exploratory wells in Tabasco-Chiapas, first drilled in 1911, had not been greatly productive and it was not until 1959 that the Mexicans began their own explorations.

And it was not until new drilling techniques tapped deposits thread miles below the swampy Jungle floor in 1972 that Pemex officials realized that Mexico was oil-rich.

Drilling began in earnest last year and production in the region soared from 24,000 barrels a day in May, 1973, to more than 240,000 today.

Pemex officials have estimated that Mexican oil production will grow from the current 675,000 barrels a day to more than 800,000 by the end of the year.

Medical Profession Called Health Threat

Written for CP

BY PEGGY TRACY

Having lifted at the establishment windmills of Western institutions, educative, industrial production and transportation, Ivn Illich takes o the medical profession in his latest book, Medical Nemesis.

Subtitled The Expropriation of Health, the book makes the charge that the medical profession has become a major threat to the health of both the sick and the well.

Using the term iatrogenesis, meaning doctor-made illness, the author quotes copiously from medical journals.

The villain of the piece appears to be the industrialization of Western society, and the author's goal is the recovery of personal autonomy in the fields of transportation, education and medical therapy through political action reinforcing an ethical awakening.

In his previous book, Deschooling Society, Illich said that the main schools there are in a society, the more people will somehow come to believe in progress even though the main effect of school has been shown to be the production of dropouts as a majority.

In Nemesis he contends that the rituals of medical care are designed to relieve guilt by ritual by treatment, from Ostorb the coping ability of most people in fact decline as a result.

Illich's sentence structure is never simple and a few examples to illustrate his arguments would be helpful.

One of his more easily understood sections concerns man's relationship to his "three most intimate and basic disease pain, sickness and death. Modern medicine, he contends denies the need for man's acceptance of these threats, and is planned and organized to kill pain, to eliminate sickness, and to struggle against death. From being essential experiences with which each person has to come to terms, these are transformed into accidents requiring medical treatment.

The author, a native of Vienna, has served as an assistant pastor in an Irish-Puerto Rican parish in New York City, vice-rector at the Catholic University of Puerto Rico and co-founder of the Centre for Intercultural Documentation in Cuernavaca, Mexico, and has recently been lecturing at a number of English universities, including Oxford, Cambridge and Edinburgh.

Stepping Stones Nursery Gives One-to-one Care

Cathy Lodrew, a Bayside Secondary School student, works as a volunteer at the Stepping Stones Nursery as part of her field work in the senior psychology course. Here she plays with a young pupil who would not be able to manage the swing alone.

At the Stepping Stones Nursery outside Trenton, 18 children enjoy the satisfying and creative experience of making and baking cookies, and then eating them all up.

What makes the occasion particularly worth noting is that these pre-schoolers are mentally handicapped. Through the encouragement and support of the nursery school's staff, these children are discovering a whole new world of things they can do.

Helping these children grow in confidence and in capability are Jenn Veysey and two teachers Ruth Clatworthy and Pam Bouchard. They are assisted by a team of 16 volunteers, so that the adult-to-child ratio remains at one-to-one. Secretary Vera Beale is part of the concerned staff too.

The Stepping Stones Nursery also depends on the student helpers from Bayside Secondary School and Trenton High School, who are slowed by their teachers to spend mornings working with the children. Students from East Northumberland Secondary School in Brighton come to assist in the weekly swimming program for which the children are taken to the CFB Trenton pool.

The love and attention that is lavished on these children yields rewarding results, says Mrs. Veysey.

"You can see the changes happening over the months," she says.

"What we aim to do here is to teach these kids to be self-sufficient. If they can learn the basics, they can learn socially acceptable behavior that will make life easier for them when they're adults.

"Given half a chance, these children can grow up to be responsible people who'll be able to help support themselves, by working."

Mrs. Veysey has created what she terms a "very rigid program" in order to give the children a sense of security in getting to know the routine. Each morning has a carefully balanced schedule of free play and structured activity.

"During circle teaching, we may talk about colors, or shapes, or teach language formation skills. We sing songs and do things together at this time," explains Mrs. Veysey.

"During free play we spend time with individual children, helping them make physical progress, learning to walk, learning any number of activities.

"The children assist in the preparation of the morning snack, so that they are involved with the food all along the way. Teaching them self-feeding is important, since it'll make their lives easier outside of the school too.

"Children come here as young as two, and they needn't be potty-trained before they come," she stresses. "Visits in the bathroom are part of our routine here."

Although the nursery is geared to pre-school children, they may stay here until they're ready to move on to junior classes in school for the mentally retarded.

The Stepping Stones Nursery has been in existence for more than seven years, but only this past fall moved into its present location — the former school for mentally retarded children — on Lafferty Road.

The school is spacious inside, with several carpeted and brightly-decorated rooms, furnished with a good variety of play-things and learning equipment. Much has been donated by local clubs such as the Trenton Kinettes, and many items have also been made locally, by involved parents or teen-agers. There are areas for every kind of activity, from sand and water play to finger-painting and snack-making.

Mrs. Veysey, who moved to the area with her husband who is in the armed forces, took over the job as head teacher two years ago. Her experience includes 12 years of public school teaching, plus work in a school for mentally retarded children in Halifax, and a Humber College course in this type of education to her credit.

"One of the things I emphasize for the volunteers is that we do not think of these children as 'retarded,'" Mrs. Veysey says. "Rather, we try to think of them as being as whatever size their present stage of development is," she says.

"For example, a child here may be four, but he may have the ability of a two-year-old. So we think of his progress being made from that point.

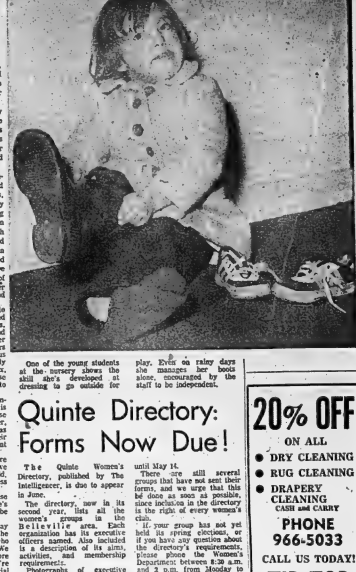
"If we can get these children early enough, there's almost nothing they can't be taught," she adds.

I worry that there may still be families in the Belleville-Trenton area who don't know we're here. We still have room for ten more children, and since we're funded by the provincial government and the Trenton branch of the Canadian Association for the Mentally Retarded, we don't need to enforce even our $20 per month school fee.

"There are many parents with mentally handicapped children who need to worry about not being able to send them here. We have a bus service too, that does all the picking up and taking home.

"Children make such progress here. You know, some of the women and teens who come to help are a little fearful at first. But after a long they're enthusiastic, and really involved," says Jean Veysey.

"You just have to love these kids."



One of the young students at the nursery shows the skill she's developed at dressing to go outside for play. Even on rainy days the managers here hoist one aloft, encouraged by the staff to be independent.

Quinte Directory: Forms Now Due!

The Quinte Women's Directory, published by The Intelligencer, is due to appear in June.

The directory, now in its second year, lists all the women's groups in the Belleville area. Each organization has its executive officers named. Also included is a description of its aims, activities, and membership requirements.

Photographs of executive officers, or of special occasions in which the group has taken part, may be included as well.

The Women's Department of The Intelligencer is now compiling the information for the directory, and will extend the deadline for submission of material and photographs until May 14.

There are still several groups that have not sent their forms, and we urge that this be done as soon as possible, since inclusion in the directory is the right of every women's club.

If your group has not yet held its spring elections, or if you have any queries about the directory's requirements, please phone the Women's Department between 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. from Monday to Friday, or visit the newspaper during those hours.

The vital role that women's groups play in the community's social, charitable and religious life is emphasized by the publication of the directory, and it is hoped that every organization will make an effort to be included.

Pool Hall Image Changing

By RON HUSER
(Loyalist Student)

In the last few years, "pool" has rapidly changed in the respectable title of "billiards." One reason for the change, says local pool owners, is to attract more women to the game.

"We've tried to change the image of the game to draw the girls into playing", says Peter Manis, owner of the Coe and Cushion, on Front Street Mr. Manis says he hopes pool will become as acceptable to both sexes as bowling is today.

George Poulos, owner of National Billards, down the street, expresses the same view. "Right now, we have many couples who come in but rarely do the girls come in by themselves."

Both owners say they welcome female patrons, but add they feel it will take time.

A cross-section of some customers in both establishments showed a variety of opinions.

Arnie Donaldson, 21, says he brings his wife in "only when it's not busy. When it is busy, the language is pretty bad and it's not nice."

Shawn Sullivan, 15, says that he thinks girls do not "look good" when they play pool.

Pool players all admit that if they know a girl is playing nearby, profane language would stop. Both Mr. Poulos and Mr. Manis say that if male customers do not subdue their swearing habits they are asked to leave.

During the '50s, pool was closely associated with gambling and hustling, but this started to change during the '60s. Billiard halls now are well lit, and not the smokey dens of iniquity they were once considered to be. Many also have snacks bars, in the same manners as bowling alleys.

This Grandma Doesn't Have Time to Grow Old

VANCOUVER (CP) — At 84, says a week, once she Lillie Parr is one lady who just has no time to grow old.

Since Mrs. Parr began volunteer service at the Children's Hospital in October, 1968, she has given more than 1,000 hours of her free time to provide warmer bundled services of the hospital.

She says she had been bored and lonely, having nothing to do after retirement, when she volunteered at the Children's Hospital.

Mrs. Parr has been a regular there for four or five hours, five times each day—all part of her contact with child patients today but when Mrs. Parr first started she spent much of her time reading or playing games with the little ones. Now the nurses-in-training do much of this kind of work.

Lillie Parr reads to a young patient at the Children's Hospital in Vancouver. She has been doing volunteer work there since October, 1968, providing needed services to the community as well as keeping her sory and active at the age of 84.

She spends her working time visiting children, folding papers, sorting out the day's menu sheets, making swabs and doing similar chores.

Mrs. Parr remains a great believer in voluntary work. She has little time for those who say they have "no time."

"No time" is another excuse I refuse to accept, and friends should go along with whatever they have planned. If you can't get through the night without booze, then get plastered by yourself, after you get home.

Should you care to have a reception when the couple returns from their honeymoon, it would be perfectly proper to do so. You could have a small reception at your apartment and keep it quiet if you wanted to. There would be your privacy. But you would, I hope, have the added advantage on hand for the bride's side—if they wish to attend.

Ann Landers

No Booze for Bride's Baptist Folks

Dear Ann Landers: Our problem is one that has been causing a lot of anxiety in our family. We need an outside opinion from someone who is not a part of it. You have been selected.

Our son is planning to be married on Aug. 3. The trouble is that the reception for the fiancee's parents are very strict Baptists. They do not drink any kind of liquor. Nothing spiked punch is out. The wedding will be held in the church and the reception which follows will take place in the church parlor.

Since my husband and I wish to respect their wishes we went ahead and made reservations at our country club for a second reception—following theirs. The bar will be set up and liquor will be served. We have engaged an orchestra for dancing. Now we are told we can't use the place because it is considered unchristian. We have already signed the contract and would not attend the reception, that it would be considered a breach of faith and a violation of laws and their relatives.

How can we make him see how selfish his attitude is? Our friends and family will have a very dull evening unless my husband and I entertain them in the manner to which they are accustomed.

Will you please come to the rescue, Ann?—Want To Be If Right

Dear Want To: Sorry, you rattled the wrong cage. You are a dead wreck.

The parents of the bride are getting on the wedding and reception. You and your relatives and friends should go along with whatever they have planned. If you can't get through the night without booze, then get plastered by yourself, after you get home.

Should you care to have a reception when the couple returns from their honeymoon, it would be perfectly proper to do so. You could have a small reception at your apartment and keep it quiet if you wanted to. There would be your privacy. But you would, I hope, have the added advantage on hand for the bride's side—if they wish to attend.

Never Too Old To Learn

Contrary to what seems to be popular belief, you can teach an old dog new tricks. And contrary to the idea that old people have bad memories, there are many elderly persons who have beaten the odds of old age by making noise, drilling falling memories to keep them active and watching their physical well-being.

At the same age on there is some mental slowdown, but in a healthy person the rate of down is so slight, so extremely gradual, that it is hardly worth thinking about. You don't learn as easily at 50 as you did at 25, but at 80 you can learn as easily as you did at 13 and better than the you were younger than that.

Once an older person has learned something he remembers it well because he may be because he cognizes when he is learning and he can relate it helpfully to knowledge gained through the years. All experts agree that you are never too old to learn.

Is there a community college in your area? Take a look at its fall calendar and pick out something you'd like to do one evening a week for a while. The variety of things you can learn about is fantastic.

Dear Doris: During the summer when many are enjoying aquatic activities it is not unusual that a minor emergency occurs. In many of the emergencies people stand and watch

The Men Behind The Meat

Things are pretty exciting down at Murray's Food Market on Front St., what with the cashier taking over the produce department for a while. And the men behind the meat counter are feeling a little left out. And what's a great supermarket without its great meat department? Al Murray, Fred Clark, Michael Hamm and John Neill, handle only the best in Grade A Red Brand meat — they don't scrimp on quality — NEVER. At Murray's, you get the good old-fashioned butcher-shop atmosphere, with the smiles to match, right in the midst of a modern bustling food store. Next time you're in Murray's, go over and say hello to the boys. They'll feel better — and so will you!

In Case You Missed It

Roddy Electric's Consumer Division, 291 Coleman St., received some interest in the Kalor Portable Electric Furnace I mentioned in last week's column. In case you missed it, here are the details again. And any person at Roddy would be glad to supply you with more. Just drop in or phone 962-2141. The amazing little unit is specific for cottages, which is a concern uppermost in many of your minds. This little machine hook up like a dryer and functions on one circuit. It's also a great idea for rec rooms. But if you're an early arriver and get late spells at your cottage, a call to Roddy can make the stay a whole lot more comfortable. And if it's cottage lighting you need, Roddy can help you there too, of course.

It Shows Now

Without the complementary blessings of the winter white of the snow, that house of yours which you've been painting certainly shows it, doesn't it? And the fact that you need to paint it is more aggravating when you know you will have to do it again and again. Well, you won't have to do it again and again. All you need do is to call Highland Construction at 962-1181. They will install that wonder substance known as vinyl siding and you won't have to worry about the exterior of your home for the next thirty years or so. Vinyl is weather-resistant, wear-resistant and child-resistant. Why not get that job done once and for all? And if you want to look at what you're getting, just visit Highland Construction's Home Improvement Centre at 257 North Front Street.

On the other hand if you are a busy person who requires the services of such a person to help you maintain an efficient household, then you should note that ServiceMaster number also and dial it too. Improves Self Image

EDMONTON (CP) — The response to programs designed to improve the skills and self-image of Alberta's native people has been encouraging, says an agriculture department official.

Barbara Stroh, in charge of the programs under the department's extension division, said more emphasis is being placed on programs and services geared to the specific needs of the native people, who help plan them in both planning and implementation.

"We've had very good success" was the decision last year to use agricultural services and home-economist aides to areas the people have been having in reaching native people for traditional extension programs," she said.

The advisers and aides were chosen from people in native colonies and on Indian reserves who were versed with the cultures and values of their communities.

The Blood reserve in southern Alberta, the largest in Canada, asked the department last year to hire an Indian woman as a home-economist aide. She and they would provide the support and working facilities required.

Mrs. Stroh said 29 women from the Blue Kiine Indian colonies and the Saddle Lake and Good Stoo Indian reserves took part in a regional program held in the St. Paul area northwest of Edmonton.

It was the first time Indian and Metis women of the region had worked together on a common project.

At the meeting, one older woman told of delivering her own baby in the isolation of her tepee. She said she was in the middle of the ceremony when the baby decided to appear. The interval she completed after skinning task.

Some of the women, shared information on native foods and remedies such as the use of birch bark for bums which still is used today.

During Alberta Women's Week at Olds last year, native women took part both as trade instructors and regular participants.

Mrs. Stroh said a typical comment at the end of the week was: "All my life I have disliked Indians. My experience during the last week changed all that for me."

"It was a real experience in self-growth."

The Women's Week program was so successful that two native women from the Saddle Lake Indian reserve have been appointed to the committee planning the 1975 program.

Big Mining Firms Renew Search for Gold in Brazilian Wilds

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Big mining companies are marching in behind individual prospectors in the search for gold in Brazil's vast hinterland.

Private prospectors with smaller stakes in panning and sluicing remote rivers in the Amazon basin say the big men seem dispatch said some are opting to fight over the gold they find.

When Brazil was a Portuguese colony in the 18th and 19th centuries, it was a major world producer of gold. But Brazilian production now is small by international standards—4.8 tons a year compared to South Africa's world-leading 720 tons.

But the rich colonial past and the fact that large strikes have yet to be fully explored give hope to many who have been bitten by the Brazilian gold bug.

"There really could be a lot of gold," said a foreign diplomat who specializes in mineral resources. "I know of at least half a dozen important foreign companies that are extremely interested.

"You've got literally thousands of these 'garimpeiros' or prospectors just out to the river with a pan, like they used to do in the Yukon."

The richest gold-panning area is along the Tocantins River, near a new town named Itaituba on the still-unfinished Transamazon Highway.

The mining companies, both Brazilian and foreign, are spending millions in the search throughout

Ian Thomas Takes City by Storm

Ian Thomas is a Hamilton boy who made it good in the Canadian record industry and showed how he did it in Centennial Secondary School Thursday night. He was a Juno Award winner last year as Canada's most promising male vocalist. Despite his credentials of awards, three albums and two top singles, only a handful showed up for Thursday's performance.

Ian Thomas Great... Except for Small Crowd

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Everything was great Thursday night at the Ian Thomas show — everything except the size of the crowd.

The Quinte Arts Council this year added a rock concert to this year's slate of activities for Artstest — a move to give more focus to youth in the city.

The show held in Centennial Secondary School theatre, was poorly attended brought at least financial failure, said Manfred Koechlin, representing the Arts Council.

For the band's part, it was a terrific evening.

Ian Thomas is something of a lack of all trades but what makes him special is he's Canadian and he's succeeding in the competitive business of selling talent.

A one-time producer with the CBC, Thomas brings an easy charm to the stage along with musical versatility and a strong voice.

The show opened with the

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Linda Boyd, the Toronto classical guitarist, is in demand across Canada. She has engagements coming up in Vancouver, Montreal and Calgary and a Yukon tour in 1976.

COVERAGE OF GAMES

Sportscaster Bob Moir is to be executive producer of CBC's English-language coverage of the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

PACKAGE TO BRITAIN

Granada Television in Britain has purchased a package of 13 programs from CBC TV — all part of the network's Nature of Things series.

Thomas' most popular recording Painted Ladies and was highlighted by a stretched out version of Jolie, the top cut off the band's third and newest album Delights.

A peculiar blend of folk, rock and ballad, the music is sentimental but lends itself to foot stomping and hand clapping.

Thomas's band is a well-rounded package that would do any singer justice.

Steve Hogg plays bass and jobs with Thomas to give terrific depth and power to vocal harmonies — all which were perfectly audible over the thunder of instruments.

Referred to as the band's token minority person," Josh Onderbin played tastefully in his role as lead guitarist — never crossing the line from classy to splashy.

Hugh Syme played key board for the band with Michael T. Oberle on drums.

The Juno Award — Canada's trubute to the music industry — was presented to Thomas last year for most promising male vocalist. He kept his promise in Belleville Thursday.

Tax Increases Held to Minimum

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Ratepayers in Belleville may be thankful tonight they don't have to operate their city in 1975.

City council went into special session at 11:30 p.m. today in view of its proposed budget for the year.

Contents of the document were not publicly revealed until the debate began, although councillors have been studying the estimates distributed to them Wednesday night.

But indications are that if the budget is to bring a mill rate increase, the boost may not be as demanding as feared earlier in the year. Provincial government authorities had warned would be a crunch year in municipal financing.

The intimations are drawn from the comments — almost closely-guarded, of council members, initially reacting to estimates prepared by city manager Wilbur Purcell.

"I think he (Mr. Purcell) has presented a budget that the citizens of this community can accept," believed Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Ald. Jack Ireland felt the city manager had done an "excellent job in holding it down — in view of the increase in various estimates from all city hall departments."

Mr. Purcell's assignment has been to estimate how much the city could safely abandon for its operation costs in 1975 — a year that has seen inflation — in wages, services and supplies — hit municipal treasuries.

Last year it cost $12 million to operate the city — resulting in a residential tax rate of 51.1 mills. The typical household holder is assumed to pay an average $248 on such a residence based on $18,000 assessment.

But the final outcome for 1975 is up to this afternoon's budget session after council studies the estimates.

Despite general foreboding on the year started, the pre-budget draft was also injected with some optimistic effects.

Provincial grants were up; this is assessment; there is a $480,000 surplus; education demands, although up 2.38 mills for the city, were not as high as feared earlier — again due to higher grants.

The relief brought by larger provincial subsidies was expressed by Ald. Ireland in his budget reaction:

"I was scared that the tax rate was going to eat at the wallet," he said. But now the proposed rate is 'not as bad as I feared.'"

Ald. Paul Russell said from what he'd seen of the draft budget he wasn't "happy with it" — didn't know what will council can do about it. I think we'll have to live with it."

"But," he admitted, "to be quite honest I'm surprised it's as low as it is." Ald. Russell is of a budget that was way out. He's satisfied it's not as expected it would be."

Ald. Ireland refers to the point: "I like the outcome. I think it's within reason."

Added Ald. Wally Dever: "My initial reaction is generally favorable. I don't suppose it's as bad as I thought it was going to be."

He said all councillors were striving "in holding the line."

Pellet Guns Illegal : Chief

City police are alarmed by the use of pellet guns by youths, while Belleville Chief Constable Chief Douglas Crosbie.

"I don't think the parents realize it's against the law to discharge these guns in the city limits," he said in an interview Thursday.

Chief Crosbie added, "a lot of parents are buying these children the guns unwittingly, not knowing it's against the law".

"They are considered a firearm," he pointed out.

Chief Crosbie said so far this year a young girl has been accidentally struck by a pellet and a young football youth was shot at and other youths have been shooting each other in some sort of game.

"The most important thing is the safety of the public," he commented. "We were fortunate that the one young person didn't lose her eye."

Study Tweed Geology

TWEED — Twenty-six senior geology students from Brock University are in Tweed for two weeks, learning to make geological maps and reports.

One student is from Nigeria, while the others are from different parts of Ontario and Canada. This is the fifth year that students from Brock University have attended a field school in Tweed.

The party is accompanied by Dr. Jaan Terasmae and Dr. Peter Peach formerly of the University of Toronto, but now of Brock University, and five instructors. Dr. Peach has been coming to Tweed with students for the past 20 years.

The students are doing preliminary work in the Bogart, Otter Creek and Thomasburg areas. Graduate work is done at the senior public school, where they are joined by the operation from the staff.

The party is staying at the Peach Hollow Cottages.

Dr. Peach stated that they were very happy to find the farmers most co-operative, and that their help is greatly appreciated by all concerned.

Campaign Under Way

TWEED — Red shield canvassers are at work in this village and area with the proceeds going to assist the duties of The Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda. There will not be a special kick-off held in the village this year. Campaign chairman and canvasser is Mrs. Gerry Wilbeden.

Pellet Guns Illegal : Chief

City police are alarmed by the use of pellet guns by youths, while Belleville Chief Constable Douglas Crosbie.

"I don't think the parents realize it's against the law to discharge these guns in the city limits," he said in an interview Thursday.

Chief Crosbie added, "a lot of parents are buying these children the guns unwittingly, not knowing it's against the law".

"They are considered a firearm," he pointed out.

Chief Crosbie said so far this year a young girl has been accidentally struck by a pellet and a young football youth was shot at and other youths have been shooting each other in some sort of game.

"The most important thing is the safety of the public," he commented. "We were fortunate that the one young person didn't lose her eye."

Hearing Is Believing

A lot of Canadians are walking around with hearing problems and they don't even know it, according to hearing specialists at the Quinte Mall this weekend. Brian Croft here takes a quick test to hear just how much he can hear with staff ready to advise him if he needs a check up at his doctor's office. The exhibit which continues through Saturday is connected with Deaf Awareness Week.

Lock Study Revealing

St. Thomas' Thieves Entered Basement

Investigation into the condition of locks on the basement and vestry office doors of St. Thomas' Anglican Church confirms an unknown thief or thieves broke into the building via the basement door and called through the vestry door, a police spokesman said Thursday.

Det. Sam Morgan, who is working with Paul McKercher of the city Fire and Fire Marshal's office on the April 29 blaze, which gutted the church, said in an interview the locks were studied by the Corbin Lock division of International Hardware Co. of Canada Ltd.

He noted the vestry office door and the basement door, situated on the north side of the church, are the least noticeable for anyone to quickly discover anything wrong.

Det. Morgan also pointed out two keys which were discovered off of their usual locations after the fire were two metal crosses on the microphones. They were found in the vestry office.

However, one was on a microphone sitting on the pulpit and the other was on a toolbox elsewhere in the church. No evidence of the microphones has been found but Det. Morgan said some microphones are made of plastic so it is difficult to determine if it was stolen also. The toolbox was consumed by fire.

A portion of candle, consumed at both ends, was found by witnesses that the church organ was heard being played at about 6:15 p.m. on the evening prior to the fire.

He said there remains a possibility the organ was heard playing by some person by someone who had business in the church.

Church officials have accounted for the whereabouts of everyone who'd access to the church and the ability to play that organ on the previous evening and no other such people was in the church at that time.

It has also been noted there are few people in the Belleville area with keys or expertise to play that type of organ.

Walls Key in Restoration

The condition of the walls of the gutted St. Thomas Anglican Church is a key factor in the restoration of the 100-year-old structure to its former elegance, says Insurance adjuster Gerry Brennan.

He told members of St. Thomas' council of the vestry tests of the walls have been made and show "that mortar has turned very, very sandy in the upper portion of the north wall and in the area of the tower.

He explained the smoke went through the stone which has become brittle. He said it is unknown at present how far down the walls stone will have to be removed before solidity is discovered.

Mr. Brennan said restoration stages on the success of an application in the Ontario Heritage Foundation for funds. He noted it would be "a prohibitive expenditure" for church officials to attempt restoration on their own.

He remarked concern has been voiced in high places. "This structure that formed a portion of the city of Belleville" he commented.

Public Advised to Keep Distance

Anyone not associated with St. Thomas' Anglican Church or not participating in the investigation of its fire last week is advised to keep a distance from the gutted structure at the corner of Church and East Bridge streets.

Members of St. Thomas' council of the vestry voiced their concern for the safety of persons who have an inclination to cross a new fence barrier which has been erected around the church.

It was reported the walls and tower are in an unsafe condition and could collapse at any time. Councillors have particularly asked parents to warn their children to keep away from the area.

Check Cat For Rabies

A cat which attacked a two-year-old city girl at about 7 p.m. Monday has been located and is being held by the Ontario Humane Society (Quinte branch) for 14 days to determine if it has rabies.

A city police spokesman said Lesley Denise Shields of 30 Octavia St. bent down to pet the cat near her on the steps. The animal scratched her stomach and bit her on the neck, he said.

The spokesman said the cat was found at 38½ Catharine St late Thursday and the owners have co-operated fully. The girl was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

Man Holding Purse Strings Late-comer to Education

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second of a series looking county educators. The personality sketches include teachers, administrators and trustees.

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The man who now holds the purse strings as the Hastings County Board of Education had nothing to do with education until 1969 — today, he wouldn't think of leaving.

At 51, superintendent of business Ken Wormald says learning private industry to join the board of education has been one of the most stimulating experiences of his life. Joining the board in 1969, Mr. Wormald has seen the budget grow from $15 million the first year to $31.87 million in 1975, a claim he would (iither not take credit for.

Born at Thrrold, Ontario, Mr. Wormald was raised and educated in this area and later graduated from the University of Toronto in 1948 with a bachelor of Commerce degree. He became a chartered accountant in 1950 and worked with an industry at St. Catharines before coming to Belleville in 1962 with Mead-Johnson.

"When the new board was formed in 1968 I wanted to be on a new developing organization — a bit of a pioneering spirit I suppose," said Mr. Wormald who is married with three children.

He particularly enjoys the academic side of his position and feels he says is not isolated from the financial and business arm of the board. "We are included into the education issues and problems which help on time-in with the whole process," explained Mr. Wormald.

He sees the role of the business as especially. Our function hereis to provide service to the academic side which eventually gets on with the job of teaching children," he added. The board is now the county's largest employer with a total personnel of 1,570.

This is a very "people-oriented business, in fact about 76 per cent of the budget goes for salaries — it makes the financial work more interesting," he said. Mr. Wormald also said he finds the leadership of high quality at the board.

As superintendent of business Mr. Wormald also has to keep on top of the Education et as it applies to administration and the handling of finances. With new regulations coming into operation education spendings and ceilings it keeps the finance area of the board busy."

Late Starter

Ken Wormald, the 51-year-old superintendent of business with the Hastings County Board of Education, was a late-comer to education only joining the ranks in 1969 after 25 years in private business. Mr. Wormald said he wouldn't think about leaving the field now.

Foe of Commercialism in Sports, Avery Brundage Dead at 87

AVERY BRUNDAGE

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany (AP) — "Sports is a pastime and a diversion." Avery Brundage once said. The statute it becomes many times that, it's business or work."

The man who used that credo to battle commercialism and politics in sports during the international competition, for a half century and more, died yesterday at the age of 87.

Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee—IOC—for nearly two decades as president at Munich's 1972 Summer Olympics, died of lung cancer at his home in Garmisch-Partenkirchen, where he was scarred by the death of 11 Israeli athletes following an attack by a Palestinian terror group.

He ended two decades as IOC president at Munich's 1972 Summer Olympics, which were scarred by the death of 11 Israeli athletes following an attack by a Palestinian terror group.

With one final farewell cry against commercialism, particularly the Winter Olympics and Alpine skiing, Brundage stepped down as IOC chief. Lord Killanin took over the leadership of the Olympic Movement, and nearly following the death in 1971 of his friend, the Detroit-born Brundage retired, admitting that years of controversy over such things as professionalism, to protect the purity of amateurism, commercialism, had taken its toll.

He grew away his collection of Oriental art, valued in the millions, to the city of San Francisco. He sold most of his real estate holdings in the United States. And once again he was in the headlines, with his marriage at 82 to a German princess nearly 40 years his junior.

Brundage and his bride retired to the 11-room Bavarian sports resort of Garmisch-Partenkirchen, site of the 1936 Winter Olympics.

It was here Thursday night that Brundage died of a heart attack. He had been a patient in the small district hospital, suffering from pneumonia for the last two weeks, suffering from suspected heart trouble. The second Mrs. Brundage, the former Marchesa Princess Resse, whose relatives include men who European royal families, was at his bedside.

Brundage took a jaundiced view of professional sports.

"Professional sports should be regarded as the entertainment pages along with the circuses and vaudeville, he once said.

In his valedictory to the IOC in 1972, Brundage was true to his dedication to pure amateurism, once again lashing out at the abolition of the Winter Olympic Games after the summer games, particularly in commercialism.

His ultra-autocratic reign as head of the IOC through Games at Helsinki, Melbourne, Rome, Tokyo, Mexico City and Munich, earned for him from his critics such slurs as "Slavery Brundage," "Avery Underage," and "the sultan of Ego, I presume sahib."

Brundage's first involvement with the Olympic movement was at the Stockholm Games of 1912. He was at a member of the U.S. team and competed in the pentathlon and decathlon events won by the legendary Jim Thorpe.

Brundage was stripped of his gold medals after it was learned that he had played semi-pro basketball for $5 a game.

Brundage was actively involved in the Olympics as an athlete, official and organizer for more than half a century.

Born Sept. 28, 1887, in Detroit, Brundage was a graduate of the University of Illinois, Brundage's construction firm, founded shortly after 1900 when he received his degree, lists his and Mead a fortune, expanding it his own firm and widely diversified business empire.

Wealth allowed him to turn his attention to amateur athletics and he became a leading figure in the American amateur athletic union.

He cancelled the American contingent across the Atlantic to the Olympics.

And he was involved over the years in rhubarb over participation by Rhodesia, the Chinese, South Africans and Rhodesians, to name a few nations, in the Olympics.

Willie's Hitting Helps

Davis, Martin Spat Helps 'Clear the Air'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
What's a few words between friends?

That's the way Texas Rangers outfielder Willie Davis feels about his upcoming match with teammate Billy Martin in the Texas 5-2 victory over the Royals.

"I know Billy, we're great friends," says Davis. "Arguments clear the air and I'm ready to get back to business."

Martin is happy, too, as long as Davis hits his way to Old Thursday night.

Davis rapped out four hits against Kansas City, including a two-run homer that tied the game and a single-batting single which launched in the go-ahead run in the fourth 5-3 victory over the Royals.

Elsewhere, in the American League, Cleveland routed the Oakland A's 5-0 and Detroit 11-2 beat past Milwaukee Brewers 6-3.

The shouting match between Martin and Davis took place last Wednesday night, when Martin made the lineup card for the game listed for about 15 minutes following a 6-5 loss to the Chicago White Sox and then fined Davis $200 at the meeting. Martin cited a number of errors committed by the fielding Davis' attempt to stretch a double into a triple in the fifth inning. He was thrown out at third, Milburn to Lum to Martin.

He denied the shouting match here.

WILLIE DAVIS

Davis' third home run of the season, with Jim Sundberg on board, erased a 3-2 Kansas City lead in the seventh inning. Two batters later Don Stanhouse broke the tie on one-out singles by Oscar Tuner, Lum Harris and Davis.

Jeff Burroughs then hit a double, scoring Randle to make it 5-3, and Davis was thrown out at the plate.

Nolan Ryan limited Oakland to four singles and struck out 10 in raising his record to 6-2 and becoming the first Texas pitcher in the majors to win six games this season. Jesse Jefferson of Oakland and Don Sutton of Los Angeles

Mickey Rivers was the batting star for the Angels with a run-scoring single and a two-run double.

Detroit rookie Dan Meyer blanked the first nine batters he faced before giving up his first earned home run of the season, a two-run shot by Tim Nordbrook, in the Tigers' fourth inning. The Tigers got another run in the fifth when Dave Rozema walked, stole second, took third on a throwing error by Randle and scored on an infield out.

Relief pitcher Ray Bare got the victory, with a big save for John Hiller, as Detroit's Tiger Brewers cold. Over the last three innings Bare struck out two batters, hit and one walk while striking out seven batters in a row, a career high and part of the major league record for relievers.

Measure of Revenge For Padres' Outfielder

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Gene Locklear, who has been carrying a grudge against Cincinnati Reds the last couple of years, made the most of his chance for revenge Thursday night.

The 25-year-old outfielder collected two singles and two doubles and scored twice for San Diego Padres who snapped the Reds' seven-game winning streak with a 3-0 win behind Randy Jones' four-hit pitching.

REJEAN HOULE

Quebec Players Unhappy

QUEBEC (CP) — Perhaps the strain is beginning to show on Quebec Nordiques, who trail their best-of-seven World Hockey Association final series against Houston Aeros 3-0 going into the third game here Saturday night.

Second string goaltender Serge Aubry denies being upset at not receiving action but admits to looking for another place to play next season, while forward Rejean Houle questions club management's attitude toward the championship series.

Richard Brodeur has played well in the two games, collecting Aubry to a spot on the bench.

"It's not going to make me sick," said Aubry, "because Richard is playing his best hockey. What do you want me to talk about it?"

Aubry was in a three-way battle for two goaltending positions before the season started and remember Michel Deguise and Jean-Guy Gendron. Aubry would be back next fall.

"I'm 22 and I'm not finished," said Aubry. "I'm confident I'll become place where I can continue my career."

Houle said many players are not working to rebound from 6-2 and 5-3 losses in Houston but the Nordiques management appears happy with less.

"I'm not yet to the final," he said. "the players have worked hard to get around the obstacles in our way. But I have to say we are disappointed in ourselves for not doing the same thing. They seem to be content with what they've done so far and not wanting the Avco Trophy."

Nordiques Marc Tardif warned that the Aeros had proved to be ready for the next two games.

Twins, Flyers In Key Contest

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Confidence abounds as Thunder Bay Twins and Sarnia Flyers continue a best-of-seven Allan Cup final in the Thunder Bay Arena tonight.

They have won two games each going into tonight's fifth contest.

"I don't think they have the edge," said Twins coach Jack Sicilians, Thunder Bay players coach.

"With two days rest we could use a second feeling," says Darryl Sly, Sarnia playing coach.

"We were tired for the (fourth) game," says Sly, "but we got them 20 minutes before we were supposed to go on the ice. The players and the goalie had an warmup."

The game be refery to was an 8-4 Thunder Bay victory. Sarnia won the opener 9-4, lost the next one 7-2 and won the third 5-2.

"Tonight's game is a big one," says Sicilians. "We don't know either could win two straight after tonight."

There's no doubt about it, the fifth game is crucial," says Sly.

The Barrie team flew into Thunder Bay Thursday night to avoid any repetition of the state of weariness it experienced Tuesday.

Sicilians expects the Flyers to be in good shape. "Sarnia has a more physical contact. They've been playing that way all year," he said.

"We're just going to have to keep skating as using the hard-checking style we have. We worked for us in the last three games."

Sly says the goalies can't be blamed for the Flyers defeats in the first four games. That they've used a defensive style of play followed by back teams.

Bulls Take Lead In West Final

OAKLAND (AP) — Chicago Bulls clamped down defensively on Golden State to score an 89-85 victory and take the Western Divisio Thursday night to take the lead in the National Basketball Association Western Conference final.

The Bulls moved ahead 3-2 in the best-of-seven series, and will host Sunday's fifth game. Chet Walker scored 21 points, mostly on corner jump shots, to lead Chicago scorers. Jerry Sloan scored 18, including 11 in the first period.

Rick Barry of the Warriors scored 29 points but had only two in the half time when Chicago was ahead 42-36. The Golden State star was one-for-10 shooting from the field in the first half.

Marlies, Beavers In a Showdown

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Sherbrooke Beavers have been the team to beat in the Quebec junior hockey league for moves to be seen tonight whether they have recovered in time enough to stay alive in Memorial Cup hockey playoff action.

The Beavers, Quebec Major Junior Hockey League champions face Toronto Marlboros from the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series in a sudden-death match tonight. The winner advances to a playoff Game against New Westminster Bruins to determine the national major junior champions.

The Beavers, suffering from what general manager George Gelinas admits was a case of over-confidence, lost both of their games in round-robin play earlier this week. In both games, they had big first-period leads and then faltered.

Gelinas said Thursday his team tempted they could win every way with both the games after taking the lead.

Nothing Is Sure Thing

Many readers may think I might be in the frenzy of mind today to refuse to comment on Thursday night's Stanley Cup results.

Not so.

How about those Islanders, anyway?

Don't they know when they're out, of it?

Talk about refusing to say 'die'.

Coach Al Arbour's sixers are no accustomed to looking solemn in the face of impending set to matter, they could go on for ever.

And it says here, Flyers have stood had it with these upstarts.

A repeat of the Pittsburgh Islanders series?

Nothing is impossible but who's betting on it?

Matter of fact, who's betting on any of these playoff sets?

Only those dimwits who picked Buffalo Sabres over Montreal Canadiens would have the temerity to back up their prognostication with dollars.

And there were a few of those around.

I've had the pleasure of discussing the Buffalo-Montreal series with some of them.

They've even offered to watch what I eat over.

Italo Whips CFB 9-1

TRENTON — With team captain Joe Iacoma leading the way, Quinte Italo-Canadians made it two exhibition wins in a row at Centennial Park here, Wednesday, whipping Canadian Forces Base Trenton, 9-1. Both teams are members of the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association.

Iacoma scored two goals and set up four others. Doris D'Amico, Mike Del Grosso and Oscar Rosado also clicked for a pair of goals each. Sterling Wilson got the other. Ivey goal.

After moving in front 6-0 in the first half, Italo gave up CFB's lone goal, early in the second 45 minutes. Goalie Ezio Cavaliani had his bid for a shutout after making a big save earlier on a shot from the penalty spot.

Late in the game, Italo turned it on again and added three more counters.

Before making its first BQSA regular season start, Wednesday, May 14, Italo has a better exhibition match scheduled, meeting Citizens Finance, at Centennial Park here, Sunday at 4 p.m.

In league action next week, Italo hooks up with Brighton at Bain Memorial Park in Trenton and Furness Citizens plays CFB at Centennial Secondary School on Wednesday while Olympics and Quinte Hellenic are scheduled for their first starts, Thursday at Centennial Park. Kickoff time for all evening games is 6:15.

Travel, Practice Part of a Dream

Regyna Armonas wanted to travel. She also wanted to be a member of the Canadian Women's Senior National Volleyball team. Today she has both.

A few weeks ago, she and other players were given their Olympic Pin 76, officially making them part of the team which will represent Canada at the Olympics.

"I always wanted to travel," said the former Quinte Secondary School student, "and volleyball has been my first love. So I guess I got what I wanted."

The women's team's national program for '75-'76 has proceeded to the point at the same time as the pan. During April they were in practice out of their Vancouver base on Lulu Island. In the early part of May practices were shifted up to the middle of May the squad is off to Japan to train and observe the Japanese and Russian national teams. The latter stages of May they go to Korea for a tournament and at the end of May they are back to Japan for some matches.

That's just the first two months. Their entire program calls for travelling, training, travelling and more training right up to Olympic time. The month of November is the only rest, the squad will be lobbying, except, of course, a Christmas break.

Other highlights in the program include trips to Montreal, Quebec, Los Angeles, Europe, Romania, Mexico, Cuba and Russia, tying that time the squad will train with the Japanese, United States and Russian teams along with playing and touring in China.

National coach Moe Parti has found that Regyna's greatest skill is her defensive ability.

"I have a lot of trouble with my blocks," said Regyna. "I never did like blocking. I guess I'll have to pull up my britches."

The 19-year-old Belleville girl will be part of the team hoping to secure a gold medal for Canada in 1976.

IN MEMORIAM

CRAIG, Wilfred and Margaret.
Mother, Dad and Bill.
Died four you each every.
You Dad, on January 28th,
You Mom, on May 9th,
He entered your mother,
Bill, on January 28th.
Sadly missed by you all.
But we are comforted,
You are not lonely,
Remembered by daughter and son-in-law, Charlie and Vera.

YOUNG — In loving memory of Alma M. Young, who passed away May 9, 1974.
Dearly cherished memories,
Are the golden links that bind,
And those who think of him today,
Are the ones who loved him best.
God called you home dear brother,
It was His will,
But in our hearts you dwell still,
Forever dear.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by sister Ken, nephew David, niece Sandra, and brother Basil.

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear son, Alton M. Young who passed away May 9, 1974.
Our family circle has been broken,
A link gone from our chain,
But memories of you linger for a while.
We know we'll meet again,
Some day we hope to meet you,
Some day we know not when,
To wait and pray is our task,
Heaven is your home.
Ever remembered by mother and dad.

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear brother Alton M. Young who passed away May 9, 1974.
My heart has a heavy load to carry,
In our Saviour's home above,
Where there is no pain or sorrow,
In his mansion of room, I am sure,
Never forgotten by his brother-in-law, Harry and Clarence.

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear brother, Alton Wesley Young, who passed away May 9, 1974.
The years may pass and slowly,
We watched you fade away,
Your suffering was more than human,
You bore it all hard to skin,
But when we saw you sleeping,
So peacefully free from pain,
We could not wish you back,
To suffer all over again.
Sadly missed by his nieces Peggy Ann Barbara.

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear uncle Alton M. Young who passed away May 9, 1974.
Dear you has crossed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away,
God took him home — it was His will,
But memories linger in our hearts still.
—Always loved by niece Wendy and nephew Kevin.

To Your Good Health

Infant Unable To Digest Milk

By G. C. THOMPSON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thompson: My baby is 10 months old and has been on a soy preparation since he was three weeks old. I have tried her on regular milk several times to see if the soy has given the problem. My doctor told me to do this.

The last time I tried it (August I mixed only two ounces of cow's milk with six ounces of soy formula. The reaction was just as violent, vomiting, etc.

Can you tell me what it is in cow's milk my baby can't tolerate? Is it fat, cream or what? Do you think skim milk or sweet dry milk is the answer? I hesitate to try either of these.

I have also noticed that she becomes very hungry and gives her baby food containing milk. Other than this my baby is the perfect health. Will she outgrow this sensitivity?—Mrs. E. R. D.

Some infants do not possess the specific enzyme necessary to digest the milk lactose (milk sugar). This condition tends to remain throughout a person's life, and the use of soy milk substitute. The soybean formula is the one.

Other infants' systems simply do not adjust to cow's milk protein, their as-yet-undeveloped digestive organs are just not up to the task.

It is the protein in cow's milk that is most often the offender. Thus, use of a non-fat or skim milk would not alleviate the protein problem since in these two products only the fat content is reduced. You are wise not trying to experiment beyond what your doctor has suggested with regard to whole milk.

In such cases, this should not be done without the doctor's knowledge. Usually, after the baby's history of milk intolerance and would be able to judge of what to do and when to do it. The little one should be doing well on the soybean formula. She is only 10 months old and there is still time for her to kick her milk aversion if she's ever going to do it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My gynecologist has diagnosed my problem as being a fibroid tumor. I am the mother of a fine young ball. He said that if I wanted to have any more children (I have one) that I should have it right away. He also said that another miscarriage would be necessary.

Hysterectomy is the usual procedure for larger or multiple fibroid tumors. A fibroid the size of a "nine-pregnancy ball" would fall into the large category.

Slight cases can occur during the early part of the uterus, which is, as you know, a sort of sheltered nest. Another miscarriage or single one can also occur within the uterus itself or under the lower lining of it. It is the latter condition which is the most dangerous.

As easily accessible fibroid, such as one under the outer lining of the uterus (e.g. myomectomy) without removing the uterus. This is very strongly recommended. Whether this is possible in your case, I cannot say. Only your doctor would be able to tell you.

As it would be wise to wait on another pregnancy now if you desire one. It is usually better than waiting a few years.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you write something about how long a stay in the hospital is required after having a cataract removed?—J. H. B.

It is not a protracted procedure, and there is little patient inconvenience. The average hospital stay is from seven to 10 days in most cases.

Usually the patient can resume normal activity within six weeks.

You should be warned, however, that it is particularly careful for the first few weeks, and not to bend forward for a week or so. Also, to be especially asks himself, "What can I do if he has four of those suited honors?"

Win at Bridge

Winners try to avoid trap

He sees he can afford one round of trumps lest in case all four are going to show up in one hand. So he leads his ace of trumps and everyone follows. Then he leads a heart. East's ace captures dummy's queen and a club comes back.

South wins this and then starts a successful cross ruff. Heart to the king, ruff a heart, cash the ace of clubs, ruff a club, ruff dummy's last heart, spade and claim since with two tricks to go he still holds the queen of trumps and a club while dummy's two cards are the king and 10 of trumps.

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	1 ♣
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	5 ♣	Pass	7
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — Q ♦

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Almost all bridge players fool the pros at chance take particular delight in setting traps for them. Today's player falls or even dashes into those traps; the winner finds ways to avoid them.

South starts off modest enough with a king of diamonds clobbered by East's ace. Dummy's queen of trumps and he ruffs the third lead.

The thinking player notes that the hand will be a cinch if trumps break 3-2 or the ace of hearts is held by West. Then he can lead the ♥ 10 and if trumps break 3-2 or the ace of hearts is held by West. Then, he

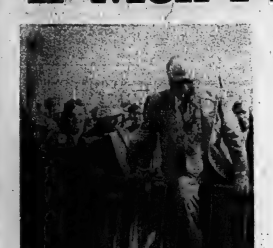
Quebec Strikes Spread

CNTU Will Work If Men Protected



MONTREAL (CP) — About 3,000 workers were off the job Friday at 25 major construction projects, including the east-end Olympic Games sites, protesting provincial government action on recommendations of the Cliche commission.

Most strikers belong to the 75,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) construction wing, although painters, carpenters, bricklayers and laborers affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) joined their QFL counterparts in the walkout, which began Thursday.

A spokesman for the CNTU's Montreal Construction Union said "Our guys are not supporting this illegal strike at the moment but they also don't want to get their heads kicked in."

"Our men are ready to get back to work if the powers that be can guarantee their safety," he said.

QFL President Louis Laberge said Thursday men affiliated with his union had acted spontaneously in threats to union freedom posed by the Cliche commission report, which recommended that four QFL-affiliated union locals be placed under trusteeship.

In Quebec City Friday, legislation was introduced in the provincial assembly that would forbid locals under trusteeship and provincial persons with criminal records from holding union positions for five years from the date of conviction.

Outside the legislature building, 600 workers, mostly QFL members, demonstrated as the legislation was being introduced.

However, in a partial concession to QFL demands, Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer said a parliamentary committee will be established to study all other findings and recommendations of the commission.

Meanwhile work stoppages hit the stadium, Olympic Village, the autoroute, as well as construction on east-end subway tunnels and the downtown Place Desjardins project, and other major projects.

Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer has said the government is implementing the Cliche recommendations because "we don't want a revolution on our hands." Premier Robert Bourassa and Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said they will deal firmly with the unions if a showdown develops.

Branding the entire report "repressive", the QFL has vowed "to fight to the death" against the trusteeships as well as against abolition of union hiring halls in favor of an independent "construction agency" that would regulate all job entry, wages and working conditions.

The Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU), bitter rival of the QFL, and found by the inquiry to be without blame, also opposes the report on the grounds it would give the government too much control of union affairs.

Only the Centrale des Syndicats Democratiques, smallest of Quebec's three labor groups, supports the recommendations. The Centrale represents about five per cent of the province's 140,000 construction workers to the QFL's 70 per cent.

U.S. Fears Reds Plan Laos Grab

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States officials are privately concerned that the Pathet Lao, encouraged by Communist successes in South Vietnam and Cambodia, is attempting to take control of the government in Laos.

But they also have the impression that Prince Souvanna Phouma himself is resisting the prime minister and preserve the coalition government would formation a year ago brought a formal end to nearly 20 years of warfare.

Those officials, asking not to be identified, said they suspect a new wave of strikes in Vientiane and escalation of fighting.

More Arrive Than Leave

MANILA (AP) — The Vietnamese population of Guam passed a near-limit 60,000 people today, with fewer evacuees able to leave than were arriving by the highly backed airlift across the Pacific.

At the Subic naval base in the Philippines, authorities temporarily halted today the departure of the last 2,000 refugees to Guam and Wake because of the Indochina scene. camps in the United States were reported about full.

Officials on Guam expressed concern about the island's capacity to handle any more evacuees, with severe sanitation problems — there is no plumbing — already reported at the 30,000 refugees camped at sprawling Test City.

Admiral George Morrison, commander of the Pacific Fleet, in Hawaiian Islands, said the holdback was an processing centres in camps on the U.S. mainland where the refugees are being resettled.

"We've been told to hold" on Guam, he said.

With 30,000 evacuees expected Monday or Tuesday, "that will certainly bring us up to our limit capacity mark," Morrison said.

Meanwhile, there were these developments:

— Clark Air Force Base, Fla., the planned arrival of at least three planeloads of Vietnamese today was expected to help bring the camp's refugee population to about 2,000 by the end of the weekend. In test city at the base can hold 2,500.

— The refugee population at Camp Pendleton, Calif. — 783 — made the 101-square-mile marine base the biggest community as the southern California coast between the Los Angeles and San Diego areas. Including military personnel, 26,000 men, women and children lived every barracks, quonset hut, tent and house.

— In Manila, the Navy announced today a temporary halt in the movement of Vietnamese refugees from Subic to Guam and Wake Islands, with 2,000 refugees still left in Subics Grande Island test city. No more evacuees are expected to arrive at Subic, through which 72,000 persons already have passed.

— In Washington, D.C., meanwhile, the immigration service told two U.S. airlines, World Airways and Flying Tiger, they face stiff fines for transporting Indochinese refugees who lacked proper immigration papers a few days before the Ford administration declared a blanket parole for these having, Indochina. The fines could reach $1,000 for each man, if the number of aliens was not released.

The immigration service said the penalties did not cover the airlift of 726 orphans by World Airways.

On Guam, figures released today showed a total 54,255 refugees arriving on the island since Operation New Life began and 50,611 departing for the U.S. mainland.

When more than 7,500 refugees arrived by July Friday, camps on the island were so full that more than 1,000 were immediately loaded onto planes and diverted to Wake Island.

John Thomas, director of the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration, said said 340 refugees have left for other countries, mainly Canada and Australia.

He said Prince has agreed to take up to 1,200 refugees, and Belgium and Austria about 200 each.

Morrison said that to The three refugees have died on the island and there were two stillbirths. But there also were 39 births, including one today.

All children born on the island are automatic U.S. citizens.

Accounting Bypassed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brazil's international airline admits using a complicated ticket sales procedure to bypass its normal accounting system and raise a $40,000 contribution for former President Richard Nixon's re-election campaign, Associated Civil Aeronautics Board charges. The airline said Friday it distributed airplane tickets worth a total of $728,000 to its sales offices and did not record the transactions on its books.

Boycott Suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federation of American Scientists said Friday it will urge U.S. scientists to boycott any conference in Moscow over the refusal of Soviet authorities to permit a Soviet physicist's wife to travel to Italy for an operation. The federation called "barbaric" the Soviet refusal to permit the wife of Andrei Sakharov to leave for an operation to prevent blindness.

Policemen Fight

DETROIT (AP) — Judge Ralph Freeman ruled Friday that because many black policemen and women officers were paid from a special federal fund they cannot be laid off, but seniority rights prevail and he ordered police officers whose salaries come from city funds. After the ruling, a scuffle broke out between off duty black policeman William Green and six off duty white officers who had been demonstrating at the courthouse to support Green's demand that layoffs be by seniority for all.

Return Increases

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canada Development Corp. says that the rate of return on common shareholders' equity rose to 12.3 per cent in 1974, up from 6.3 per cent the year before. This was "closer to the corporation's long term target rate of 15 per cent," the annual report released Friday said.

Rightists Gun Shops

BILBAO, Spain (Reuter) — Gunmen believed to be right-wing vigilantes raked five shops and offices with machine-gun fire here early today, apparently in retaliation for recent attacks by the Basque separatist terrorist organization ETA, informed sources said.

No one was hurt but the shooting caused fear in the city's city shop and shattered windows in the five shops, including the decorated office of a lawyer who has defended ETA guerrillas in court.

The lawyer, Pedro Ibarra Guell, 32, was beaten up by three men at his home two days ago.

Four policemen have been shot dead allegedly by the ETA in the Basque region in just more than a month.

$100,000 Offered Policeman

MONTREAL (CP) — A police detective sergeant testified at a Quebec police commission inquiry Friday he was told $100,000 was available to him if he dropped an investigation into underworld financial dealings.

Sgt. Alphonse Gelinneau was testifying at the inquiry into the disappearance and dismissal of Andre Guay, deputy police director of the Montreal Urban Community (MUC).

Gelinneau said the underworld's bribe offer was given to him by a special investigator for MUC police director René Daigneault in 1971, Sgt. Gelinneau said.

Sgt. Gelinneau was testifying on behalf of Mr. Guay.

The inquiry was ordered after the MUC-Security council asked the Quebec justice department to rule on a recommendation by police director Daigneault that his deputy, Mr. Guay, be dismissed.

Director Daigneault's recommendation followed a police disciplinary board report, which found Mr. Guay guilty of having ordered the beating of a meeting of organized crime squad officials on July 24, 1972.

Mayor Rejects Boost

Aldermen Raise Their Pay $1,000

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

During Belleville budget discussion Friday, city aldermen voted 9-1 to give themselves a $1,000 raise, bringing their annual salary to $4,000 each.

Ald. Brian Knudsen said council should wait until an election before giving itself any raises. He cast the only dissenting vote.

Earlier, senior alderman Ben Corke failed to get majority support of his motion calling for a $600 raise.

Only moments before the aldermen voted in their raise, the budget had one cent cut.

The budget — as proposed by city manager Wilbur Pennell — included upping the mayor's honorarium from $9,000 to $11,500 annually.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey indicated he felt the raise was justified but left the chair to recommend the honorarium stay the same until the next election.

"Just prior to the next election (in two years) I will make a resolution to match the mayor's salary (to mine). I think it should be," said the mayor.

Speaking on the aldermanic pay raise, Ald. Sid Meeks said "I think the raise is reasonable."

"Enough money must be paid to this office to make it attractive to the working man," who cannot afford time off the job, said the alderman.

The suggested pay raises stem from a municipal survey requested by the city manager which showed Belleville on the lower end of the scale for pays.

The mayor — in addition to a basic honorarium — is paid for his services on certain boards including the police commission, and the public utilities commission, plus a total income of $12,962 annually.

Aldermen have received small percentage raises for the past three years (about seven per cent) and may also be paid for serving on the Children's Aid Society Board, the Quinte Planning Board, Metro River Conservation Authority and the Board of Health.

Bishop Mounts His Vicars On Hondas

NORWICH, England (AP) — The Bishop of Norwich, Right Rev. Maurice Wood, arrived on Friday a brigade of motorcycle-borne vicars to "Go ye into all the world" and spread the word.

Thirty-six of the helmeted clergymen roared off on their Hondas from the bishop's ancient palace in this quiet east coast city of a mussy-saving mission for the Church of England.

Norfolk County has only 200 clergymen to cover 700 parishes and the church realizes having them driving cars from village to village every Sunday is cheaper than the inflation-bedeviled days.

Girls Set Afire By Abductors

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — One teen-age girl was killed and another critically burned over 30 per cent of her body today after they were abducted and set on fire, homicide detectives said. At least one of the girls was raped.

Killed was Tina Stefani, 16, of suburban Conshohocken. Her friend, Beverly Rodenbaugh, 16, also of Conshohocken, was in critical condition.

Hasty Pees Remember Italian Campaign

By BASIL SMITH

Thirty years ago, on March 8, 1945, Canada's Armed Forces left Italy to participate in the final World War II battles in North-West Europe.

This evacuation culminated one of the more brilliant and most known parts of Canadian military history.

Troops of the First Canadian Division, including our own Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and many other men from the counties, who served with various artillery batteries and other supporting units, participated in the assault landing at Pachino in Sicily on July 10, 1943. From that date until March of 1945, Canadian soldiers incited their way up the boot of Italy, to the valley of the Po River, fighting for every foot advanced.

The battles of Assoro, Orizea, The Hitler Line, Doriano Ridge and the Lamone River are worthy of a place in Canadian History along with Vimy, St. Julien, Passchendale, Caen, Falaise and Dieppe.

By its very nature this Italian Campaign tended to be a forgotten front, as the entire purpose of the operation was to engage, meet and destroy as many enemy troops as possible, so that they would not be free to repel the Invasion Forces in Normandy. In this they were highly successful, as over half a million of Hitler's elite troops were pinned down in Italy, to combat the armies of the Eighth and Fifth Armies, in that country.

The price was high. Of the 91,398 Canadians who served in Sicily and Italy during this 20 month period, 25,398 were casualties and over 5,000 Canadian boys lie buried in 22 War Cemeteries, scattered from Agira, Sicily to Argenta, in the valley of the Po River.

It is particularly fitting therefore that on this 30th Anniversary a delegation of survivors should visit the battlefield, their fallen comrades and salute their memory.

This delegation, which was officially a good-will mission to Italy, included The Hon. Daniel J. McDonald, Minister of Veterans Affairs, Lieut.-General E. L. M. Burns, Commander 1st Canadian Corps, and Major General J. P. Cantlemd, Representing Chief of Defence Staff, in the official party.

Special guests included Mrs. Alta Wilkinson, National President, Silver Cross Mothers of Canada, Ernest Hedgood, Vice - President Royal Canadian Legion, William M. Mayne, representing the National Council Veteran Association, and Victoria Cross winners John Mahoney, London, Ont., Paul Triquet, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Ernest "Smoky" Smith, Vancouver.

Veterans of the Italian Campaign, selected on a provincial basis of 1 per Infantry Battalion totalled 197, representing all of the various units which participated in the War in Italy.

The Quinte area was represented among the Survivors by Henry Charles, R.R.3 Belleville (Royal Canadian Engineers), Agnes Duffy, Belleville (Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment), and Basil Smith, R.R.1, Carrying (Royal Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment).

In addition to the Official Delegation a tour of Italy was organized by the First Canadian Corps Organization, scheduled in co-ordination with the Department of Veterans Affairs, so that they could participate in the various ceremonies performed by the Delegation.

The following veterans and wives of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, took advantage of this tour and assisted in wreath laying ceremonies at the various cemeteries: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gray, Marmora, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Grey, Marmora, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Granville, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Rasciano, Peterborough, Mrs. Helena Duffy, Belleville, Mr. Artie Sickle, Colborne, Mr. "Tiny" Lewis, Deseronto, Mr. Angus Rapmer, Stirling, and Mr. Reeves Draper, Kitchener.

Canada's War dead in Italy are buried in Cemeteries which are maintained by the Commonwealth War Graves Commission. Each of these cemeteries has been carefully planned and laid out to give the impression of a beautiful garden, with well-trimmed green grass and a scent of flowers everywhere.

Each cemetery is marked by a large stone Cross of Sacrifice, bearing a large, bronze Crusader's Sword. On the base of each Cross, or at some of the larger cemeteries, as a separate monument are inscribed the words "Their Name Liveth Evermore".

Fans Save Energy

When was the last time you took a close look at the operation of the ventilating system in your barn? Chances are that if it has three or more fans you can save some energy and money this summer, according to Ministry of Agriculture and Food engineering specialists.

First, you must be sure the total ventilation system is designed to permit adequate flow of air through the building, they say. In some instances one thermostat (or automatic controller) can operate more than one fan, but in most installations a thermostat for each fan will permit more efficient operation.

They advise that you check the location and classification of the temperature sensor — usually the coiled tube of a thermostat. This should be located to sense the average air temperature in the area of the building. If it is located between fans in the cold air over a cow, or near a heating unit, it will not do a satisfactory job. The sensing element should be checked regularly to ensure it is clean.

Set the thermostats controlling fans required for winter moisture removal at or below the desired building temperature, say B. C. Thompson and Jim Bell, specialists in agricultural engineering. Fans required for the additional temperature control fans should be set at 5 C (Celsius) above the desired building temperature e.g. 23.33 to 26 C. This will ensure that the air flow through the building is increased as the temperature increases. It will also avoid sudden temperature fluctuations within the building as outside temperature increases and decreases during warm weather. The result should be healthier animals at birth and reduced energy consumption in the ventilating fans. Energy is saved when one or more of the temperature control fans, usually that with highest capacity and horsepower, is not running.

The system should also be observed closely over a period of a day or two. Occasionally a thermometer is set to project calibration. The result can be erratic ventilation and a stale will be out of place. A thermometer near the thermostat will verify this and permit compensation or replacement of the thermostat. If hot spots are diagnosed in winter in specific areas of the building, check the air inlet system. The air inlet is responsible for proper distribution within the building. It may require adjustment or modification.

By allowing the natural heat of a one-horsepower fan motor to stop operating, a farm can save 360 kilowatt hours can be saved per month, but only 60 kilowatt hours per month, but only 60 kg. will be saved.

Dairy Workers On New Course

Co-operation between government and industry is the key to a new program for dairy plant workers at the Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology.

Although much of the program is not new or outstanding, it has been developed with help from the Ontario Dairy Council, a body of dairy plant representatives that represents about 85 per cent of the province's dairy industries, and the Ontario Institute of Agrologists and universities. The milk industry branch of the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food helps coordinate the program and provides instruction, while Canada Manpower and the workers' compensation board program expenses.

"This program emphasizes practical experience," says O. R. Irvine, lecturer in dairy at the college. "We are hope it will turn out to be one of the improvements over the dairy manufacturing courses given annually at Kemptville until last spring. The enthusiasm in the new training shown by already received indicates it is filling a definite need."

Thirty-two dairy plant workers started the program's introductory session from March 3 to 21. They studied milk and cream testing, dairy products grading, lactic culture, microbiology and other related subjects. In the fall, they will be in hours of on-the-job instruction and 13 weeks of intensive practical experience, they will return to the college for refresher courses in other liquid milk processing, cheese manufacturing or butter manufacture of butter and concentrated products (such as skim milk powder). Then courses will last either two or three weeks.

Who will Operate Trenton Docks?

By AL EARAS
Staff Reporter

Trenton council found itself staring into the teeth of a deadline this week and discovered it had little power to alter immediately a situation not of its making.

Forty days before the navigation season opens on the Bay of Quinte, the town is the magnet to Ontario and American boaters, the town finds itself without someone to operate its federal government owned, but town controlled, docks in Trenton.

Tenders issued earlier this year received barren of bids. The town is inevitably stuck. It's without a dock operator.

In other years, council has been able to round up someone to run the small concession stand, the gas pumps, the electrical outlets for boat owners. This year, it won't be. And the influx of boaters is around the corner!

Complicating council's predicament are the new fees Ottawa plans to charge dock boaters using its wharf.

Meeting solid opposition to the move, its implementation this year has been muddled badly by the federal government and there is little or no trouble itself to come up with some definitive plan.

Neither council nor the Chamber of Commerce knew what fees would be charged, or when they will be levied. Of course both are vitally interested, but in this situation, mere victims of the government in the Ottawa confusion over its own regulations.

Now that Trenton's chamber finally has come up some remains to charge the docking fees, no one knows clearly what steps the government plans or how these plans will be implemented.

Last week speaking to various federal officials last week, it seemed they weren't fully aware of their own course of action.

For what happens when brats boaters begin vocal complaints over the lack of expected services.

At present, little is known. Town officials are taking steps to find out Ottawa's intentions with the possibility in mind that Ottawa could take on some of the services formerly done by the town-hired dock operator.

At a plan launched by Mayor Bob Patrick this week, is a good one, as far as it goes. But it should go further.

Mayor Patrick suggested that the gas pumps be rented to and run by any new federal employee placed at the docks to collect fees.

Perhaps the opposite should be proposed, specifically to the federal government. A joint agreement could provide for both collection of wharfage and normal dock operation by town workers.

The reasoning here is simple. Town clerk Aubrey Sharp has indicated that profits from dock operation is the last interested item in the expense of the operation.

He said town maintenance — given labor costs in regular, overtime, and holiday pay for probable 12-hour days — probably would have little or no extra expenses to man the dock. In simple terms, cost.

That's understandable. So why not negotiate to get Ottawa to subsidize the town for expense of manning the wharf with Trenton employees?

Town workers would avoid federal wharfage. Manpower duplication would not be necessary. Council would not be forced to resort to guerrilla tactics to put a private dock operator would suffer.

This way, the town would no longer face the almost yearly embarrassment of a starving and perhaps again not floating, someone to run the docks. Citizen would not need to worry over collection. Council would not have a trouble itself to come up with some definitive plan.

Both interests would be served with a minimum of the fuss and nonsense currently surrounding the whole question of this year's boating season in Trenton.

Sadly, it is unlikely such an arrangement can be worked out quickly. As a result, town council may be left unemployed operating the docks at least a part of the summer.

Mayor Wants End To Hot-Rodders

By MARG. HATLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton mayor Donald King has called for a crackdown on speeders who spend their tires and "burn rubber" on town streets.

This week he informed council he will set about curbing the reckless driver who is "plainly acting the fool."

Police chief Charles Plet. ther has been advised by the mayor of the planned crackdown and Mayor King suggests ample warning now has been issued to hot-rodders.

Mayor King stressed the police are willing to act on any public complaint of speeding but added if the caller provides a license number.

The mobile in Picton's problem with amateur Rod Kolewek sounds simple. Its not a matter of driving the fine and taking a firm stand with the police alerted to jot down license numbers.

How the householder rudely awakened by a drag strip in his front yard is expected to obtain the license numbers was not mentioned.

Most residents seem to tramp the pedals in the wee hours, are of the opinion that a plain number can be read.

The concerned citizen eager to report a speeder may get his licence in broad daylight but how in this possible dash a bedroom window long after the fact.

One Picton merchant disagrees with the mayor's crackdown this week observed any council has been approached by a hot rodder as he jots down a licence could be livid.

Farm Gas Gadgets Must be Approved

Safe use of energy is the name of the game behind the Canadian Energy Act; it requires that all heavy commercial, industrial and farm equipment and appliances that use natural gas or propane must be approved or certified by one of three testing agencies, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food says Co-ordinator R. E. Winsdale explains that the Act also makes it illegal to offer for sale, to sell, lease, rent, buy or install such an appliance unless approved.

How do you recognize an approved or certified appliance? It will carry a seal of approval, provided by the Canadian Gas Association, the Canadian Standards Association or by the Underwriter's Laboratory of Canada. In a few cases, the Energy Safety Branch of the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations issues its own label.

The next time you're shopping for a propane- or oil-fired appliance, whether it's a range, water heater, tobacco kiln dryer, carbon dioxide generator, home heating furnace, space heater, water heater, clothes dryer or refrigerator, look for the seal of approval.

Insect Biological Control Is Effective but Limited

Take an insect that's not a serious problem in its native country because of natural controls, then introduce it accidentally into a country where these controls don't exist, the result is a field day for the insect, and a serious economic problem to farmers.

"It's this type of situation that had taken hold of alfalfa crops across Ontario when the alfalfa weevil gained a foothold," says Dr. J. E. McEwen of the Department of Environmental Biology, Ontario Agricultural College. "Certainly there are pesticides to bring it under control, but pesticides are expensive and scientists are looking for other directions."

A great deal of interest in biological controls has been generated in the past 10 to 15 years as these are being evaluated, not only with regard to alfalfa, but many other agricultural crops too. Three years of the 5-year period that researchers are dealing with here have concentrated on Ontario, most of the predators and diseases will be imported and tested for effectiveness and adaptability to Canada conditions.

Perhaps one of the most successful biological control programs has been conducted against the alfalfa weevil. Over the past 10 to 15 years, three species of parasites have been evaluated; of these, only about four are at present active in Ontario conditions. In cooperation with Agriculture Canada, OAC researchers released lots of wasp-like parasites from northern Europe in several localities in the province.

The parasites have been so successful in establishing themselves and controlling weevils that a field crop is now generally required.

The latest approach is successful against alfalfa weevil, the incidence of which in Ontario vary according to the pest involved and the degree of control in orchards, an integrated program is being explored to get the best of both worlds. Timing of pesticide spraying is practised when infestations require it, and predators and parasites are used to keep problems down.

Onion maggot too is a particular problem for commercial growers in southwestern Ontario. If fields are not treated to control the maggots, growers face the risk of losing their entire crop. A experiment recently started in a section of Bradford Marsh near Cook Bay centres on artificial male onion maggot flies. These are released, marked with normal females, with the result being fewer fertilized eggs and fewer pest problems.

Also, a biological control project on onion maggot has received an enthusiastic response from growers," Dr. McEwen states. "It has the potential of better control than pesticides since the sterilized males will seek out and mate with females that survive as they emerge in the fields."

While there are certain advantages to the use of biological controls, the OAC researcher points out that the concept will not work for every insect and every farm. In corn, for example, it was found that breeding for resistant varieties is the best way to control the European corn borer. It also takes time for parasites and predators to be cleared against the possibility of becoming a pest themselves.

"It is a biological control project on onion maggot has received an enthusiastic response from growers," Dr. McEwen states. "It has the potential of better control than pesticides since the sterilized males will seek out and mate with females that survive as they emerge in the fields."

Community Pastures Grow in Popularity

Nine ARDA community pastures consisting of 25,684 acres are supplying all or part of the summer feed for cattle from farmers in both Northern and Southern Ontario. Said that they are unable to provide pasture on their own farms and still carry an economical herd over winter.

The Community Pasture Farm Program has been part of the Agricultural and Rural Development Act (ARDA) since it became effective in 1961 and its popularity increases each year," says H. A. Allen, director of the ARDA Branch of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

In all cases, the land purchased for the ARDA community pasture projects is leased by need of reservation. Brush and thorn apple trees have been cleared, fences constructed or moved and stone piles buried. This pastures have been developed by reseeding to improved grasses and legumes to increase their productivity. Gates of local cattle have been up to help with water supply during season. Grazing fees have been approximately $7 cents per pound.

The Victoria County ARDA Pasture Farm is a typical one. In 1959, the 2,100 acres it comprised of a wide variety of soil types ranging from sandhills to loam and clay. Some were drained, high quality, agricultural land in wet areas needing drainage, and some of poor quality, rocky land. Some of the latter pastures are suitable only for forest grazing.

ARDA's Rural Development Officer in Peterborough, Thomas there is a growing appreciation of the management of pasture land as well as recognition by most farmers that it is a valuable tool. The Victoria County ARDA Pasture Committee composed of elected, interested persons, is responsible for planning the development of the farm, but much of its success is attributed to the conscientious work of the farm manager, Mervin Thompson of Woodville, who daily keeps an eye on the cattle and sees to it that the water supply is checked and that fences are watched by the committee, is carried out.

Military and Political Strong Men of the PRG Begin to Emerge in Vietnam

By JOHN D. HARRISON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Men who have fought 30 years to win a war and for a cause have to be taken very seriously, even if they are still unknown to us as personalities or as leaders.

The reference of course, is to the new leadership in South Vietnam, about to be called a people's revolutionary government by the leaders of the Provisional Revolutionary Government or the Viet Cong.

The scholars of Indochina as well as the American military intelligence services have known about them for many years, though in a sketchy fashion, since they had purposely sought anonymity in the ranks of the Viet Cong to protect relatives in South Vietnam from reprisal.

Now all this is over for these largely French-trained Indochinese Intellectuals of Marxism and the far left. They are in power in Saigon. And the once seemingly impregnable emperor city and presidential palaces are in their hands.

The likes of Nguyen Huu Tho, a native of Saigon and chairman of the PRG's Advisory Council, Huynh Tan Phat, president of the PRG and Pham Van Dong, interior minister and one of Asia's toughest guerrilla fighters, will soon be familiar enough.

And we have seen the distant side of the Viet Cong leadership close-up in the person of Miss Nguyen Thi Binh, foreign minister of the PRG. She was in charge of the Viet Cong delegation during the long negotiations in Paris between 1968 and 1973.

As yet the first cabinet lineup of the PRG regime in Saigon has not been formulated. It is possible that General Tran Van Tra, who commanded the Viet Cong forces in the bitter Tet offensive of 1968, will have a major role.

The new junta in Saigon has announced he will be chairman of a new "military committee" to oversee security in that city and help return it to normalcy.

This assignment will be an indication of how ruthless or otherwise the new Viet Cong government will become. The Tet offensive was marked by mass executions of lawyers, provincial officials and police working for the Saigon government in the captured villages and in the temporary city of Hue.

All political and South Vietnamese now General Tra at close quarters during the brief life of the Joint Military Commission in Saigon after the Paris truce of 1973 on which he acted as the Viet Cong representative.

The origins and party political ills of all the PRG leaders are surprisingly familiar. They are all products of French Indochina's efforts of the old Indochina, medical, law and engineering schools. Each made a personal decision to fight French colonialism and now inherits their role against the wartime Japanese occupation of Indochina then continued in the struggle.

All of them worked with and under the late North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh. His career was identical to theirs, except his early academic training was in France itself.

Not all members of the PRG are Communists. Some belong members of left-wing but non-Marxist organizations which probably explains why General Minh, the last president of the old South Vietnam had a number, could be in their first cabinet.

General Tra is also an associate and student of General Vo Nguyen Giap, North Vietnamese defense minister and the world's leading guerrilla specialist.

Their departure from active political life in the south took place after 1954 and the formation of two new Vietnamese states, semi-Communist in the south, Communist in the north.

Mr. Tho, chairman of the PRG's advisory council was a practicing lawyer in Saigon and was arrested by the French as far back as 1950 for pressing the visit of a US naval unit.

Mr. Phat, president of the same Viet Cong body, was a well-known Saigon professor, also imprisoned by the French. He later went underground in the south of the country and the information operations of the predecessor organization of the Viet Cong called the Viet Minh.

Miss Binh, foreign minister, is another leader who has undergone underground experiences in the south of the country. She was born in Saigon and received her education there. She married a prominent lawyer who also was imprisoned by the French. He later went underground in the south of the country. Mrs. Binh, the information operations of the predecessor organization of the Viet Cong called the Viet Minh.

Beneath these soon-to-be-prominent leaders are cadres of military and political officials who are already fanning out over the part of South Vietnam not taken already by the encouraging sweep of early March and whose actions in "liberating" the villages and rural regions of the country will tell us whether the PRG is power will be because of just another brutal South East Asian government.

"Reconciliation" is the word the PRG and its predecessor the NLF (National Liberation Front) have used for about 15 years and now both the North Vietnamese and their once jungle allies in the south the new all-powerful Viet Cong, have that chance.

Much also will be said in the press about the end of a century of Western influence in Indochina. The fact is that its influence remains strong in the French radical, left-wing university and professional personal histories of the new leaders.

Surely after three staggering decades of Vietnamese killing each other largely at the beck and call of outside great powers France, the USA, China and the USSR, they will want to rule with a humanitarian style. We will know their decision very soon.

Family Life of P.M.

Margaret Trudeau foresees the day when she will go out to work and her husband, Prime Minister Trudeau will look after children, and home.

It is not an unrealistic projection of events for the Trudeaus. The difference in their ages, Mrs. Trudeau still in her twenties, her busy husband in his late fifties, and the fact Mrs. Trudeau's life is very circumscribed at present, suggests some such ultimate arrangement.

Meanwhile the overall cause of women was given another boost with the visit to CFB Trenton of Ontario Lieutenant-Governor Pauline McGibbon. The occasion was accorded still further significance with the presence of an honor guard of servicewomen.

It was a very smart turnout and one which must certainly have pressaged an increasing role for women in the forces, and not forgetting the entry of women into the ranks of the RCMP.

With regard to women's role in society, Lt. Gov. McGibbon noted that "what had been conspicuously lacking is the equal opportunity to enable all women to compete with men in all phases of business, religion, education, government, arts and industry."

The point might be arguable in the context of education and the arts, in both of which women play a prominent role, but in general her contention is correct.

One possible criticism with regard to the Trenton event — those with fixed bayonets. If memory serves, even the Israeli women soldiers — whose role in any event is primarily non-combat — do not sport bows or guards as fully armed. Wouldn't they have looked even more effective as a women's honor guard, without such props?

Theatregoers Here Lucky

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Just came back from a weekend in Ottawa, Saw a play at the National Arts Centre.

I thought it was worst event to play I'd ever seen, boring, chaotic, excessive and unsatisfactory.

In the light of the morning after, I decided it was the worst play I had ever seen.

Canadian writers — OK; all for experimentation and first try-outs, but not at $5.50 per ticket. The absolute worst production of Belleville Theatre Guild has never come close to Glassier level.

The acting was superb (what a shame to act your heart out for such a vehicle) stage set and costumes perfection (big deal) and technical mastering audience.

This little town does great, like really great, I thought so before, but now I'm certain.

Communism and Revolution

Editor,
The Intelligencer::

In his editorial note to my letter the Editor did a fine job in presenting the cause of society's problems.

In the article from the Toronto Sun the Communist Rules for Revolution are "Corrupt the young" — we do a pretty fair job in that department.

"Get them interested in sex" — they have always been interested. "Make them superficial" — our educational system takes care of that. "Destroy their respect for ... TV and our sacred way of life from within" "Destroy the peoples faith in their institutions, and the leaders take care of this very well themselves every day of the week. "Always preach free democracy but seize power as fast and as ruthlessly as possible." Let the Americans and the bolshevs of the British Columbia docks do this one. "By encouraging government extravagance" — do they need any more argument? "Incite unnecessary strikes and civil disorder" — enough of the last was just given by the Communists in the department — 33 per cent raise. "Cause breakdown of the old moral virtues, honesty, sobriety, self-restraint, faith in the pledged word" — look to any of our elected representatives for the way in these areas today.

As I said before, the Communists don't have to help in destroying our society — we will do a complete job ourselves.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY.

Editor's Note: And the Communists simply exploit it all, for their own ends.

And—An Australian View

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Friend sent me your editorials, "Our Old Flag Is Dying" and "The Debacle in Asia." Frankly, I'm astonished. I was under the impression that any English-language newspaper gave a damn about the Communist rape of Viet Nam or the Red subversion in Canada or anywhere else. Or perhaps it was that you felt it was boring reading the wrong papers.

I believe the Canadian government is so enamored of the Commies here and abroad that they have recognized the new Cambodian government before the ink was dry on the finally quit. Needless to say they have recognized the Red participation of the collapse of Saigon. But in Associated only the old diggers remember 1942.

I'm sure that many of the newspapers of the world, bear Hall in mind the phrase "Blood is the price of freedom

Steam Train Anniversary

This is a drawing by J. R. Brunt of the opening of the Stockton and Darlington Railway in northeast England. British this year celebrates the 150th anniversary of the steam train (CP Photo)

Britain Is Now Celebrating 150th Anniversary of Trains

DARLINGTON, England (CP) — Britain this year celebrates the 150th anniversary on the steam train and many of the observances will be in the northeast England where George Stephenson made it all possible.

Stephenson was a man whose faith in the future of railways was almost as obsessive. He travelled in a dream Sept. 27, 1825, when he drove a locomotive through northeast colliery towns with people crowded into open coal trucks behind him while thousands more lined the 21 kilometre route to witness the birth of the railway.

Stephenson said afterwards "The sun is a source of power; coal is bottled sunshine."

That first journey was made with Locomotion on the line with four foundation-diameter wheels coupled together and driven by two vertical boilers working at 25 pounds pressure.

The route was from Shildon to Darlington and on to the famous port of Stockton.

It took Locomotion just over two hours to complete the journey but less than five years later Stephenson's Rocket clocked 9 miles an hour in the selections held to best engine for the Birmingham-to-Liverpool line.

This year the three towns, Shildon, Darlington and Stockton, will be the main centres of the festivities, but other towns in Durham and north of England will also be helping in the celebration of historic day.

Exhibitions are planned for June to September, culminating in a massive banquet at Darlington on the anniversary day. Rosé, close to where a similar banquet was held on the days events in 1825.

Shildonians are also associated with the first railway line are being restored. The Locomotion, the Black Hawth, a railway pioneer, is being opened to the public next season at Shildon and the last surviving coach of the original Shildon-Soho works at Birmingham, built in 1830. Railway will house one of his famous engines, Brady II.

Also on display will be locomotives and rolling stock will be displayed at the Bowlish Rail car works at Shildon and Shildon Museum will display an steam each day of the week. Brian Hibbert, a geologists will give a ballroom performance and a Durham Miners' Gala will crowned.

Darlington's North Road Station is being restored to house a railway museum and much attention is being paid to detail because 1975 is also European Architectural Heritage Year. Hopes are high that Locomotion No. 1 and Rocket No. 1 will next engines will be available for display there during the festivities.

Stockton is staging a display of railway memorabilia on various working gauges and it is hoped that narrow gauge working engines will be included. The world's first railway ticket office—a wooden hut—is that town and to open to visitors who will also be able to see the Darlington and Stockton rail tracked on the original line of Prince Rosé.

During three weeks of central celebrations one of the most exciting exhibits will be the priceless gold silver medal of Locomotion. Its value and directors' coach.

The medal is owned by the Queen Mother, having been presented to her and her late husband — afterwards King George VI—at centenary celebrations in 1925. And she has lent it to the Bowes Museum, Barnard Castle, northern England, to be displayed until next summer. During the festivities it will be on display at Shildon, Darlington and Stockton for a week in each case.

As part of the celebrations in other areas of the north of England, the Lady Art Gallery in Newcastle-upon-Tyne will stage an exhibition of the life and work of George Stephenson.

The national railway museum at York will open during 1975 as a centre where railway enthusiasts can browse over many types of exhibits. And railway enthusiasts are a lot hoping that by midsummer a 13-mile stretch of railway line through the North Tyne Valley between Haltwhistle and Alston will be open for steam trains.

The North Yorkshire Moors Railway, which runs ...on Pickering to Grosmont, is to get a Black Five—the only engine of its kind built with a Stephenson outside-link motion. It will be named George Stephenson at the 150th anniversary celebrations—a tribute to the man whose perseverance in believing in "bottled sunshine" helped to bring the world's transport systems to where they are today.

Mountaineering Taught To Classes in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — As the young men and women deftly back down the vertical wall, suspended by ropes from a balcony, the scene resembles the action at daring cat thieves ready to pull a job.

The art of mountaineering is being taught to students of all ages. How to scale jagged rocks, descending a rock face and stopping a fall when the climber slips are shown down in the immediate all part of the class.

Brian Hibbert, David Moore and Orest Haras instruct in mountaineering courses in different schools. The first class started in suburban Etobicoke Collegiate in 1972. Since then, the bedding mountaineers have been trained in the dangerous sport.

"Actually, mountaineering is a-per-cent safe," said Brian Hibbert, 30, vice-principal of Silver Creek school.

"The one-per-cent hazard would be caused by either equipment failure or inexperience in using it correctly," he said.

Instructors Orest Haras and David Moore are both physical education teachers at Keller Mackay Collegiate. The teachers show the different skills and safety techniques to the students. Students get additional lessons at Rattlesnake Point in neighboring Milton, scaling the rocks there.

Different class members had their own reasons for taking the course. Valerie Mennzinnerz tell about their world shows the world, a perilous perch between heaven and earth.

For students John Freer and Hugh Magill it was the acceptance of a challenge in their on—a quest for an adventure that could not be found elsewhere in modern life.

A father and son were showing family togetherness in their joint enrolment. Kim Ricketts, 21, a student at University of Toronto, said about climbing:

"You can get into trouble very easily while climbing. That's why I'm taking this course."

When mountaineering courses were first offered, organizer Brian Hibbert noticed more males involved in the classes. Now he said 50 per cent of the class are women and they may soon be in the majority.

Brian Hibbert said, "In the elementary stages of mountaineering, at least, women show a distinct superiority. The reason for this is not social philosophy. The male is opposed to the aggressive stronger and always showing courage. In mountaineering, the male has more to lose and more to lose in self-esteem.

"Once he gets on a rock in a tough shadow he has to be ashamed to admit he is afraid and refuse to ask for help. Every good mountaineer knows fear. There is nothing wrong with that as long as it is controlled."

He finds women easier to instruct because they have superior balance and rhythm, two essential requirements in climbing.

"Without brute strength to fall back on, they have to rely on the skills that are basic to good body position and they think their way up."

The one thing to be afraid of in mountaineering, the instructors say, is the climb with someone who insists he is not afraid.

Alberta Farms Will Employ 8,000 Youths

EDMONTON (CP) — The provincial agriculture department's summer farm employment program has set a goal of employing 8,000 Alberta youths this summer.

Established in 1973, the program is designed to provide farmers with needed help and to enable young people to earn money for their education by giving them employment during the May-August period.

The department, in a news release, said it also will provide youths without previous farm experience with a chance to find out whether they would like to pursue further training in agriculture.

Applicants must be 16 or older but if they are under 18 they must have parental consent. They must have lived in Alberta for the previous six-month period and, in the province's discretion, at least six months' work in Canada. Prior to starting work they must sign a farm-safety orientation course offered by the department.

Farmers must be prepared to hire for not less than two weeks and entitled to hire a son or daughter.

Wages are negotiated between the farmer and the employee and the province pays half the agreed monthly salary of $300 a month, whichever is less. The government also pays premiums on Farm and Unemployment Insurance Commission contributions.

Librarian Teachers To Train

SHEFFIELD, England (CP) — Teachers of library and information science from many countries will attend an international summer school on advanced information work in Sheffield this summer.

The school will be held from July 1 to 26 and will conclude with a fourth week in London. Up to 25 students, chosen from more than 50 applicants, will come from Africa, India, Latin America, Malaysia, Poland Far East, Greece, Turkey, Poland and Algeria.

The summer school will be financed by a $25,000 grant from UNESCO, supplemented by the British Council, the United Kingdom Committee for Unesco and other national and international agencies.

The school will be directed by Prof. W. L. Saunders, director of the University of Sheffield's postgraduate school of librarianship and information science, and the teaching will be carried out by five members of his staff.

The course will introduce teachers of library and information science from developing countries to advanced methods and techniques in information retrieval, computer techniques and management.

Scenery Is Grand For B. C. Prisoners

WILLIAM HEAD, B.C. (CP) — Devil's Island was never like this.

William Head Institution, a federal prison nearby is to be opened in 1958, is located on a Vancouver Island peninsula about 40 miles from Victoria. With its seaside location and experiments in prison reform, it is a prison with a difference.

Of the 80-acre peninsula, there are migrating killer whales playing in the water and sunbathers waiting to be caught. The inmates are standing and low wire fences and the show lies for handouts.

There is no radar on the fence of the 128 prisoners during the summer months and these provide them with tans that would rival those on a Caribbean island.

William Head is experimenting with the co-operative concept of prison industry. A marketing association sells the handicrafts through a retail outlet in Victoria called Canart.

Proceeds from the co-operative venture will be divided between the co-operative and the prisoner with the prisoner's portion applied to reimburse his victim, to help support his family or to be saved for his release.

The prisoner at William Head has other opportunities to better himself. Last summer, some prisoners went to Tofino Inlet, on the coast of British Columbia, under an arrangement allowing them to receive standard pay for the forestry jobs they perform out. It is hoped the program will continue this summer.

William Head still is a prison despite its scenic setting and its location helps with its security.

"There's no point in being difficult to put a chain fence around the prison, the sea acts as a perimeter of security.

"It's a chilly body of water, the Strait of Juan de Fuca, and there are bad rip-tides in it," said Mr. Mahoney, although if a man were desperate enough he might make it across.

With its change to a medium-security institution from a minimum-security institution it is hoped the environment of a prison that it was in 1959. Pa t of its chainlink fence now is topped by barbed wire.

100 Good Ways To Save Money

Clean the inside of your furnace now and next year you can save about 10 per cent of your annual heating cost. That's just one of 100 amazing facts you'll learn from "100 ways to save energy and money in the home," a free, 100 — page booklet published by Energy, Mines and Resources Canada.

The useful booklet will tell you how to use a plastic sandwich bag and a hanger to determine where your windows need caulking. It will tell you how to fix a leaky faucet, and how much that dripping hot water faucet costs you each year. It will even prove that a heat lot shower costs less than a bath.

You'll learn that your electric clothes dryer costs $21.15 a year to operate but that your sewing machine only costs about 36 cents. The iron costs $1.83 to run every year but the electric clock only costs 42 cents.

Did you know that there's no use in preheating your oven if food will cook more than an hour? Or that you can turn off the heat 30 minutes before a roast is done and there will be enough heat to finish the job?

Best of all, the book explains why you should save energy and other resources — not just what it will do for your own pocket but what it can do for the country's future.

It's expected to warm right up to 37 degrees today and if that still makes your head swim, here's your local news. Metric-haters can prepare for more confusion as precipitation reports — snow and rain — are given in metric units after September. Canadian hospitals, which began the conversion years ago, will be completely metrified by next month.

Next year, car speedometers, sugar packages and reports of atmospheric pressure will all be metrically enumerated.

Farmers can look forward to conversion beginning in the grain industry February 1, 1977.

Prepackaged fruits and vegetables will be sold in metric units by 1978 and retail food store scales will be converted by July 1978.

By 1980, it will be all over and by 1981, I'll bet, you won't even remember how the old system worked.

Community Workers Hold Monthly Luncheon To Exchange Ideas

Fit about a year, the city's leading social workers have been gathering once a month for sandwiches, cookies and most of all, communication.

Known as the WHEELS luncheon group — Well-being, Health, Education, Recreation, Employee — the 30 persons who attend are representatives of institutions and agencies from the public health unit to the Ontario Provincial Police, the Hastings County Board of Education to the Children's Aid Society.

The luncheon group was the idea brainchild of Family and Children Services director Bruce Kerr. After many successful years of operation it faded only to be revived last year as a service of United Community Services under executive director Gordon Mellis.

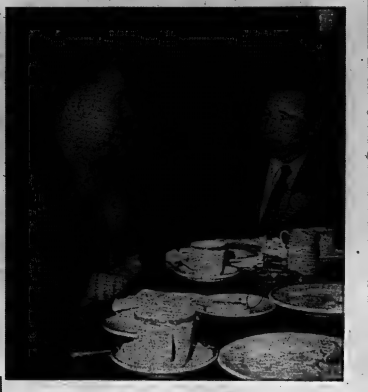
Each month, one of the agencies represented presents a program on its service to the community. This month, for example, Belleville's police chief Douglas Crosbie spoke about the police department.

New social workers or educators in the community are introduced and while lunch is being served, people exchange information and ideas.

Norah Cunningham of the Hastings and Prince Edward County Health Unit says "I've got to meet people this way; they're more than just a voice on the phone. These luncheons have given us a great helpful role services in the community."

Reg Tucker, director of Hastings County Family and Social Services, puts it this way: "I want to know what other agencies in the community are doing. It's important that we all understand these things.

"I learn something at every meeting — and because we're able to learn it helps our own clients."



Lunch and Conversation

Rev. David Murphy, of United Community Services, chats with Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie. Chief Crosbie was guest speaker at the monthly lunch meeting of WHEELS — a group of community workers in the education, health, recreation and social welfare field.

At the meeting, Olive Payton reported on a stewardship seminar and a worship service was conducted by Margaret Thompson. It depicted the work and progress of women's organizations in the 30 year history of the United Church.

Rev. Walter Beecham, a Korean missionary, spoke at the meeting and showed slides of the progress in that country during the last 20 years.

Grace Hartman

She Battles for Equality on Economic Front

OTTAWA (CP) — Grace Hartman is a tiny, grey-haired, middle-aged woman with soft speech and eyes that sometimes flash behind thick-rimmed spectacles.

She is full of these things, her colleagues say, by fall, she is also likely to be the leader of one of the country's largest, most diverse and aggressive unions — the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

Mrs. Hartman, 56, is at present a librarian and also is a trade unionist. Now secretary-treasurer of a union that includes university professors, medical examiners, social workers, school janitors and firemen, she is already a pioneer because of her long commitment to win high rank in the male-dominated labor movement.

Her union, incorporated dates back to 1964 when the league was in a ferment over the Metropolitan Toronto borough of York Work and soon found herself on the executive of the union's first local.

Almost immediately there were situations that set her apart from most of her union colleagues.

Mrs. Hartman was chosen as the first female vice-president of the Metropolitan Toronto CUPE council.

"I remember at one interesting reception," she says. "The guys there said 'Ahh, we have to finish our breakfast here tonight, we can't adjourn for the day yet.'"

She also recalls that women were a bit of a fair in the work force. There were the days when jobs could be posted as male or female.

"I remember one job had was posted for a male. I was only part time at the job I was doing and I applied for it. The only other candidate for the job was a male and I beat him three or four years' seniority on him.

"They eventually declared they hadn't had it. I didn't get it. I would put up a real fight."

Those experiences helped convince her that the battle for equality was one of the union lies on the economic front.

Mrs. Hartman now recognizes the fact that working women are the first hurdle to be overcome in the labor movement.

"The big fight has to be around equal pay for work of equal value and the closer we come to winning that—and it's a long way from it yet—the more progress we make. Once that's won, the economic battles the other ones will be easier to fight because then they will fight with greater confidence."

Although there are many pay laws, Mrs. Hartman is skeptical of the value.

"In some places they put around that by getting one job a heavy cleaner's job and a light cleaner and so forth. I'd like to bet there are men who could handle the light cleaner's job better than the heavy cleaner and vice versa for women.

"It's all right to have the legislation, but if you don't police it sometimes it is pretty ineffective."

The problem is that there are too few inspectors to enforce the laws. "And a great many women have not yet realized that there is legislation on their side."

Besides holding the second-highest rank in CUPE behind president Kenneth Little, who retires next fall, she is president of the national election committee on equal status of women and member of the federal Status of Women committee.

It is perhaps no coincidence that Mrs. Hartman is one of the women ever elected to the top rank of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, a CUPE member, Mrs. Carr is an ex-policewoman-librarian of the congress.

"I would say without fear of contradiction that we've done more in the way of pushing our women forward, pushing them into positions and training them to take an active part, than other labor unions," Mrs. Hartman said. About 44 per cent is female.

"I've met a lot of women in other unions who have been appointed to high positions, but not elected."

CUPE has a program aimed at eliminating discrimination in the work place.

A "sex discrimination check list" advises male and female employees to check for biases in wages, entrance tests, job-training, classification and training, promotion and other job-related practices.

Mrs. Hartman conceded that CUPE has not yet fully eliminated bias within its own ranks.

"There are people around who don't think a woman's place is in a position," she said. "Probably someone will run against me because they don't believe a woman should be in the job.

There are only four women among the members on the CUPE national executive, a figure far out of proportion to CUPE membership.

"We have to remember that Non-Discrimination Clauses might even be the greatest thing since sliced bread but still left. We must face the fact that some jobs will always be boring to some people, and always exciting to the job, but other because of the job hadn't been done.

Imaginative people will be impatient with the same bored ones. List there will always be those willing to accept devices — filed to mind-numbing routine.

Meantime, the boredom factor is a big part of our lives. It is a factor which is in too many strike actions. If you can eradicate the boredom factor your value-factor will go up," she concluded.

Imagination Cures Boredom

What bores you? If you are blessed with a vivid imagination and curiosity to match, you are unlikely to be bored for any circumstance becomes one to have the ability to rise above your environs.

Conversely, if you are comparatively unimaginative you are unlikely to be bored by routine movements in your surroundings. Dogs, cats, rabbits and birds exhibit little sense of time-lapse, being content with the here and proceeds. They require no horse or cow to have head shrinkery.

It is the bored middle group of people who seek escape from boredom. They are usually unable to create stimulating diversions themselves, and so have to depend on excess enjoyments to provide something. Where there is a TV blanket, or no trip is washed out, there is boredom.

Lack of social involvement is a cause of boredom. A person who has no contact with out-of-doors may also be unlikely to be bored by routine movements in his surroundings. Classroom — Game Teaches Kids Being Different Isn't Bad

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The teacher holds up two pictures. One is of a first-grade class. One of the children is left-right wrapped, the other dirty and sloppily wrapped.

"Which one do you care for you," she tells the students. "Who do you want to play with? Who would you choose to pick the pretty package. They will discover you're not going to find dirt, aides and bruises inside."

Inside the teacher's dirty package is a mirror.

"Now that shows you you don't have to look at the outside but by looking at the inside you can see who you are," she says. "It's the same way with people."

The demonstration is part of an innovative "Individual Differences" program in Madison school human relations coordinator Kathleen Cummings has developed to help an early learning discriminatory bias that too often, foster hate and bigotry.

"The goal is to help children understand and accept the differences in others and themselves," said Mrs. Cummings. "Children's literature is being used in kindergarten and first and second graders.

She said it seems to be working because teachers report far fewer incidents involving name calling and other youthful harassments.

By conducting exhaustive research, working with children, Mrs. Cummings identified "stereotyping" as the "root cause" upon the most to children's prejudices. She developed a training course to help teachers avoid such stereotyping and discrimination.

Disruption A First

OTTAWA (CP) — For the first time in the history of Canadian Parliament, the House of Commons had to adjourn five years ago this month, on May 10, 1970, 29 women chained themselves to seats in the House protesting a discrimination caravan.

The women were protesting Canada's abortion laws and were participating in an abortion caravan.

Ann Landers

When Does Friendship Turn to Martyrdom ?

Dear Ann Landers: I am such a nervous wreck I can barely hold this pen. You can see how shaky my handwriting is. I just spent one hour and 15 minutes on the phone with a girl I met at work. The elderly friend of mine talked to me for an hour. She was giving me help in her not getting rid of a boyfriend. The fact that I spend at least 45 minutes on the phone with her every day didn't mean a thing.

Does age give people the right to demand they be catered to? True, we have been friends for many years but I'm sick of her demanding attention. I'm also developing a terrible stomach ulcer, asthma attacks, numerous gray hairs and a bad case of nervousness. Please tell me how to get rid of her. — Nervous Wreck

Dear Nervous Wreck: Tell YOU how to get rid of your pest for martyrdom.

Your friend (?) is not going to change. It's up to you to decide whether you can stand the pressure or not.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 21-year-old school janitor who must be told if I'm right or wrong.

I had an operation on my nose last year. They used a stick out like having cap that I'm supposed to wear all the time. I'm very good job of cutting the cords in back of my head so I look normal—close to my head. But I have to go to those people pictures of me, the way I looked before. I don't like to, she does this, she says: "Oh, come in here you have to have your picture you were a little boy, so what's wrong with it?" I STILL don't like it. Ann, Should Mom stop or not?—Now Me

Dear Now: It's quite understandable that mothers, wives and other caregivers would want to remember their loved ones as they looked before illness or accident struck. What should be done?—Lovingly Yours

Dear Ann: One of the problems is that your parents can't agree on anything. They don't about that child. She has learned to "divide and conquer." Moreover, Laura has developed a pattern of this sort of attention if she misbehaves. Often young children step up to get what other kids are punished them ignored.

Tell Laura something—for Laura and your parents. They are not getting what's THEY fit into the picture.

Feminists Claim Media Often Sensational, Silly

WINNIPEG (CP) — Sensationalism and distortion in the established news media are among the handicaps to coverage of the Feminist New Democrat, says regional representative Pat Almlove.

They capitalized on individual attitudes such as bra-burning as examples of what "the media want to shock you for," she said in an interview.

"It goes much deeper than that. There are many women now selecting women today that women need to know their roles of."

At a news conference in Winnipeg, about 20 delegates from western provinces across Canada announced formation of a monthly, bilingual journal to be published initially with women's rights, politics and self-education. Canadian Women's Educational Journal.

Aim of eight or nine regional representatives, Mrs. Almlove will assemble and edit or evaluate feature news in her area and file it to Waterloo, Ont., where it will be published and distributed to women's groups, individuals and news gathering organizations.

"Part of the job will be to inform other women's groups of new services in existence and them to write things that relate to what they think is important to women."

Mrs. Almlove said the service, which will cost $15 a year on subscription, will provide a faster and more efficient means of communicating women's news than the traditional news media.

"Newspapers can't devote enough time and space to go into depth on women's issues. And it's important, due mainly to a lot of the women in the media, to a lot of media errors.

"The important reason, we get together is to foster the growth that the feminist movement is nationwide. The Feminist New Service grew out of the fact that recognition many women felt isolated from the women's liberation movement.

Mrs. Almlove said a common education network will enable women to be aware of what is activities throughout Canada, and then avoid a duplication of their activities.

"A movement without communication is a movement without power."

She said the women's liberation movement has made significant strides to improve women's place in society since the late 1960s, but the critical role of newspapers' attitude toward feminism during that period.

"For a while, women's lib was in vogue and then it dropped. But the movement is still going on. You don't get finicky headlines, but as the months passed it began passing."

Mrs. Almlove did not say the organization in 1975 as International Women's Year by the United Nations as a major step for the cause of feminism.

"A lot of women fall it was a token gesture. A lot of the budget went to the media advertising company to develop a campaign to publicize it. 'Why Not?' buttons instead of going to the women's organizations facing hardships. To think that so much money went to a few speeches, meetings and conferences while important work was being done at a basic standstill."

Lack of funds is one of the major hurdles the Feminist New Democrat must overcome. Mrs. Almlove said the service is free and relies on personal and all contributors are volunteers except for chief coordinator Kris Mildenberger in Waterloo Ont.

'Survival Food' For Disasters

TORONTO (CP) — An almonds-and-raisins mixture is the specialty of Toronto's first commercial store which specializes in "disaster" foods.

Mr. Vadera and Steve Lenner, co-owners of Canadian Disaster Foods Ltd., have opened the store to provide food to assist victims of strikes and lay-offs. They say their product is the ultimate nuclear holocaust, "end of the world" survival food.

Customers' fears to get them to buy the food, mixed trail-mix which can be purchased in three-month, 12-month or 24-month units.

The food, which the two men say has a shelf life of 15 to 30 years, is sold in nutritionally balanced units. A three-month supply for one adult costs $369, a year's supply is $639 and a deluxe 15-month supply goes for $945.

The diet goes from beans to bananas to bouillon, but instead of strictly soybean-based "cement" Mr. Vadera and Mr. Lenner are also offering freeze-dried fish, mignon, pork chops and cooked chicken.

Also included in the package are a five-gallon can of water and purification tablets.

The idea is catching on. A second survival food store is scheduled to open here in a few weeks.

Shunned by Mennonite Church Man Sues in Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "We hope to grow potatoes this year," Daniel Robert Bear, 43-year-old Mennonite farmer in Cumberland County, Pa., shyly spokesman for himself and his family.

"I lived alone for five years until I married," he said, but nearly as lonely as "I," he explained.

Bear described himself as a family man today, however, because he is ostracized. His wife of 12 years and his six children have left his 65-acre farm; his neighbors will have nothing to do with him, and his friend has ordered him to neighbor, his profitable farm stand, he said.

He is the object of shunning, a practice of the Reformed Mennonite Church, which estimates it has 600 members in the United States and Canada. Bear was a member until he was excommunicated in June, 1971.

The church, in what it says is a command based on love," ordered its members in 1972 to sever all relationships with Bear, Bear's wife, Mrs. Gale Bear, obeyed the order under threat of her own excommunication.

"She says I'm repulsive," Bear lamented.

Bear, in his sobered solitude, is fighting back. This spring's potato planting may be delayed because he is busy with a suit filed against the church in the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, and with a book he has written called "excessive punishment".

Bear was excommunicated for publicly criticizing church doctrine. He also criticized the two church bishops, one of whom, Glenn Gross, is his brother-in-law.

"I accused a bishop of sexual-ed lying," he said. Bear accused his brother-in-law of giving communion to two church members who had divorced and then denying he had done so.

Bear said he also broke with the church's strict rules on birth control. "According to church doctrine, they are not to use birth control. They expected me to walk out along with the church members. I wouldn't, ever believe anything I don't believe."

Bear said they would excommunicate a Reformed Mennonite if he didn't refuse to hear that minister, to go into another room while he spoke.

But Dangle they weren't pure enough for anything like that.

Last Dec. 2, Bear asked the state Supreme Court to overturn the lower-court ruling which permits the Reformed Mennonites to shun him.

He said the punishment has destroyed his marriage because his wife cannot tolerate the pressure, alienated his children through his wife's influence on him, and ruined his business because his hired hand of 11 years, another Reformed Mennonite, refused to work for him.

Bear's case for the church argued in court that the state has no right to interfere with the excommunication of a church member because of such heresy. Bear's lawyers contended that shunning "exceeds the bounds of social order and morality and constitutional protection."

Bear said the command to shun comes before he was ordained a bishop. He says he has been refused a hearing by the church to discuss under the 1st Amendment.

The Supreme Court took the case under advisement.

Until December, 1974, Bear lived apart from his family in a trailer less than a mile from his farmhouse. He saw his six children briefly in a week. Then Mrs. Bear took them away to live with her mother.

"They don't dare to see me. They don't want to see me. They don't want to see anybody who's not members of the [illegible] order," he said of the church. "They can't see my wife and it's the same with my children. They wouldn't even believe anything I say."

"They can't see my dad to visit. And they don't go to church pretty much, I believe."

The Reformed Mennonite movement broke away from the Mennonite Church in 1812 because it refused to allow changes, in practices that had existed since the church was founded in 1683. The Reformed Mennonite theology is based on literal translation of the New Testament.

Some members still wear 19th-century clothing.

Excommunication or shunning is frequent among Reformed Mennonites. Only five or more a year receive it, but Bear is the first to challenge the practice in the courts. Shunning was one of the practices Reformed Mennonites imitated upon establishing their church, Bear said.

"They never bring bread and I didn't believe in their doctrine. If they weren't breaking up a family the corruption wouldn't matter to me but I want to expose them. This will be the last family they destroy."

Bear has hired lawyers and a public relations firm to publicize his case. His book, Deliverance from Excessive and Unlawful Punishment, has been published it himself.

He said that if the state Supreme Court decides in his favor, the church will start a "martyr stance," claiming it has had its freedom of religion.

Gross said he is worried neither about the book nor the coming court decision.

"When the whole truth is exposed or revealed, people see it isn't entirely as it has been published. The Scriptures teach us to believe in God. We want to believe in God. We want to believe in the powers that be, but if our leaders are judged unscriptural, we would have to follow Christ."

"A year or so ago, I said I would move away if I lost my court case but the situation has changed. Since my wife and children went away, it's been such a relief not to be a bishop. Shunning is one of the people to you thinking so evil of you."

"I really would have to consider carefully if I would leave now. This is where I've lived all my life."

Bear said most diseased Mennonites accept their lot as just punishment because they believe all the charges.

"Every member knows that shunning is a cruel punishment and they are afraid to step out of line."

Incomparable Legacy Bequeathed by Wesley

by
Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

One night in 1709, a gaze of ruffians set fire to a thatched cottage in Epworth, England, where the vicar lay sleeping. Rev. Samuel Wesley and members of his family escaped by their night-shirts.

But, five-year-old John got left behind in the rush. A valiant effort rescued him. When he restored to his mother's arms, Susanna uttered prophetic words that echoed Moses' (Ex. 3:2), "Come, let this a brand plucked from the burning!"

In due course, John Wesley was a brilliant scholar at Christ Church College, Oxford, and became his father's curate. After two years, he returned to the university to take up duties as a Fellow in Lincoln College.

The name "Methodist" was a sarcastic barb aimed at early participants in the movement started that year (1730) by Wesley involving strict rules of daily study, worship, and service to the city's poor.

When, in 1735, a clergyman was wanted to go to Georgia in order to convert Indians and replace the ailing Oglethorpe colonists, John Wesley responded. After several years, he went home to England, deeming his mission a failure.

On his historic night of May 24, 1738, he went to a Moravian meeting in Aldersgate Street, London. He listened to the reading of Martin Luther's preface to the Epistle to the Romans. "I felt," he wrote later, "my heart strangely warmed. I felt I did trust in Christ, Christ alone, for salvation; and an assurance was given to me that he had taken away my sins." That evening was the conversion of his life.

John Wesley became the busiest man in the realm. He preached more than 52,000 times, mostly on horseback, and delivered more than 40,000 times. Although he made about $100,000 from his publications, in 1791 he left less than £8.

But he bequeathed to posterity an incomparable legacy. The spiritual awakening that he caused affected the nation widely and deeply. The Christian concern that then arose abolished the institution of slavery in England and its colonies, and established, a n d inspired movements associated with the names of John Howard, Florence Nightingale, and William Booth.

Were John Wesley here today, I am sure that he would be as blessing for revivalists taking the public for $100 million a year, [illegible] by TV time.

I am of the opinion that he would heartily applaud Ken Humbard's announcement that he presides over "the largest television network in the world." I cannot imagine him nodding in approval when Oral Roberts tells viewers, "Giving GOOD is going to happen to YOU!"

No doubt Wesley would use the media to best advantage. You would see a man of God in the kind of cassock he wore wherever he preached the Gospel, a learned man, a man with a heart on fire to enlist you for the renewal of the church in which you were raised, in a costly mission on behalf of the skeptical or destitute, offering you the gift of a great Companion and the strength of a wonderful Redeemer.

Parks, Recreation Take Biggest Cuts in City Hall Budget

The budgets for Belleville parks and recreation took the heaviest beating Friday in council's battle to hold the line on the city's 1975 current budget.

Both departments had $25,000 chopped from their budgets — marking the only substantial budget changes made by council after three hours of wading through the 84-page document.

The city parks drew the heaviest fire in discussions — a budget that had already been trimmed by more than $24,000 by city manager William Purcell.

The budget reflected a $128,000 increase over .1974 for a total budget allowance of more than $600,000.

"Can we afford to spend that much more in one year?" queried Ald. Joe Cox.

Parks board chairman Paul Russell explained "We've really been hit by inflation and labor increases." This budget was the first to include union rates for parks staff. He also explained the board is considering charging for the west river bank park and improvements to the Ameldia ball field.

After an initial vote which lost calling for a $25,000 cut, the second motion for $25,000 was carried.

Appropriate cuts in the budget to trim the $25,000 has been left in the hands of the parks board.

Recreation, working with an initial budget proposal of $668,444 also took a $25,000 cut, bringing its budget to $643,444.

We're budget," said Ald. George happy with the Zagoruiz, chairman of the recreation committee. "Council made some constructive comments.

Council disagreed with one recommendation forwarded by the city manager that $28,000 for the Memorial Arena renovations be removed from the budget.

"It was important that we get the work on the arena canteen completed," said Ald. Zagoruiz. It has been on the books for more than a year.

Commenting on the parks and recreation discussion, Ald. Ben Corke said, "parks and recreation are the two favorite targets of every alderman".

Council Holds Tax Raise To Four Mill Increase

By COLIN REUCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville home owners will pay an average of 99 more in residential taxes this year — as the result of a 4-hour city budget session in which council authorized a four-mill increase of which only 1.7 mills is attributed to increased municipal spending.

The remaining 2.7 mills — the lion's share of the tax hike — comes as the result of a 7 per cent increase in public, school board spending.

On a home assessed at $5,000 the average individual increase is calculated on an assessment of $19,000.

Mill raising approximately $19 from an individual tax payer with the city's average assessment figured at $19,000.

Separate school supporters will feel 3.7 mill rate increasing $37 more taxes this year.

While the $13.5 million current budget marks a 12.7 per cent increase over last year, city manager Wilbur Purcell cited a $6,000,000 budget, said province's government grants, resource equalization grants, general support grants and a 1.3 per cent increase in city assessment reduced this increase to 5.4 per cent.

Following council's committee of the whole session, Mayor Robin Jeffrey issued the municipal 5.4 per cent increase as summary.

Expenditures for city programming total $28,221,25. School board levies total $3,708,000 — an increase of $502,000.

Off - setting municipal expenditures are provincial grants of nearly $8 million — more than $650,000 in excess of 1974 grants.

Expenditures more investment left with taxpayers instead of being raised through taxation.

"In a time of soaring labor costs and inflation, a municipal government department has been streamlined and accomplished an amazing feat," said Mayor Jeffrey.

The budget offers very few changes in city programs with most increases based on the increased cost of operating the same programs as last year.

Board of Parks Management chairman, Ald. Paul Russell said that the major materials costs as the contributing factors in a 12 per cent rise in his board budget. Revenues received from the board's properties rises this increase by 7 per cent.

Recreation and parks were the major areas of council cutting Friday with $25,000 coming off each budget.

Ald. Joe Cox, in the morning Friday with the idea that "we have to watch where spending," said Mayor Jeffrey. "We're trying to keep the economy of the entire country in line." The mayor said the increase in our own community dictates that it is extremely difficult to live."

Total capital proposals as submitted to the city manager were pared to the tune of $1,000,000 with the budget reflects an increase over 1974 of about $28,000.

No Showers For Boaters

City council Friday approved an $11,000 budget for the city's Harbor Improvement Committee. Council also grant $3,200 for the construction of shower facilities at Victoria Park.

During discussions, Ald. Sla Mesich suggested the city purchase some of the cabins that is being auctioned from the Fisher property. He asked council to approve a motion to purchase the cabin by sending a municipal employee to bid up to $500.

Members of council countered that a wooden structure would be an easy target for vandalism and voted against Ald. Mesich.

"It's one thing to build docks, but I don't think showers are," said Ald. Joe Cox.

The remainder of the budget will be spent on construction of more docks, renovation of an existing boat launching ramp and employment of a full-time attendant.

Nine-year-old Susan Nicholson of RR 1, Madoc, who has had her left leg amputated below the knee as a result of a farm accident in 1968 near Campbellford, offers her appreciation to Bud Farrell of Havelock, Kingston branch president for the Variamputations of Canada, for the assistance the branch has given her by providing an artificial limb, during the branch's annual spring dinner at Sun Luck Gardens here Friday. Seated at each side are her parents, Maree and Gerald Nicholson.

Maintenance Study Program Stays in Public Works Share

Belleville's $12.3 million public works budget polled council approval with scarcely a comment during council budget deliberation Friday.

Coming as the city's largest current budget expenditure, the public works budget took the heaviest cuts before it came to council at the hands of city manager Wilbur Purcell.

The manager's report to council included cutting $67,000 off the public works proposal.

The lengthiest discussion of the budget came concerning a maintenance management study — a budget item of $18,000 — to be started this year.

The study is designed to analyze the use of manpower and machinery and offer proposals on maximum efficiency.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said "we've been talking about it for years to have this study done. Freedom to findings the results is a similar study extensively verifiable."

City manager Purcell said the results of such a study will give council more direct control over the public works system and its budget.

During the rundown of public works programs, one alderman asked why only $43,000 was included in this year's budget for road patching compared to $70,000 last year.

Jos Angie, city engineer, answered that the road renewal program is improving the general condition of city streets and that "we have to watch pot holes to fill."

Minor public works budget items are administration (salaries) $180,000, employee benefits at $202,000, building repairs and rents and catch basin repairs $202,000, roads $322,000, debt charges on roads and bridges $481,000.

The approved budget reflects an increase over 1974 of about $28,000.

Y Grant One of Four Reduced by Council

Four Belleville organizations had their council grants pared, reduced or erased completely during council budget talks Friday.

The four agencies are the Central Volunteer Bureau, Highland Hastings Historical Association, Belleville YMCA and the Citizens Bureau.

In the current budget — before approval — 18 city groups and institutions were slated to receive some municipal support for a combined sum of $55,980 — $15,980 more than in 1974.

The volunteer bureau, a number of the United Appeal, lost $1,500 from its $4,500 request. The historical association which doubled its request this year to $1,000 took a cut of $300 from its request.

The YMCA, also a United Appeal agency, had its request trimmed from $18,545 to $11,000 and a request for $4,713 on behalf of the Citizens Bureau was trimmed completely.

The motion for reductions which totalled $12,858 was made by Ald Ben Corke.

Meanwhile, the Chamber of Commerce received $10,380 — $500 more than in 1974.

Fire, Police Pay Hikes Reflected in Budget

It will cost $180,000 more this year for Belleville fire protection — a budget item increase going to improved pay and fringe benefits for firefighters.

The budget approved in council current budget discussions Friday is set at $1,180,000.

Of 19 budget items, the substantial increases occur in salaries, pension and workmans compensation and fringe benefits.

Salaries are budgeted at $886,385 for 1975 — compared to $706,150 in 1974. The pension and compensation contributions combined is $71,500 from last year's $60,541 and fringe benefits went from $44,976 to $59,361.

Budgeted for minor variances, all other fire department budgeting closely resembles actual spending in 1974.

With only one or two exceptions, labor costs tell the story of the fire protection which will also cost substantially more this year. The department's total budget of $382,727 for a total budget of $1,787,205.

Of this increase, salaries account for $179,000.

"We parred and pared and parred," said Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

"We've done no more manoeuvring room."

Phone Rate Debated

Debate is expected to be raised during Monday's city council meeting at 4 p.m. on a proposed bell Canada telephone residence rate increase for the Belleville exchange.

On council's agenda is a letter from the company informing the city finance department that a telephone count has increased to 's post, where transfer of the exchange to a higher rate group is warranted.

Also on the agenda will be the appearance of a delegation from local unit of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE). A city hall spokesman said Friday a "grievance" will be presented but there were no further details.

A letter has been received by council from Donald R. Stewart, provincial minister of housing, stating he approves in principle the city's application to the Ontario Home Renewal Program (OHRP).

And Sykes will be showered with applause for purchase of certain lands required for the northerly extension of Dundas street, authorizing the execution of a certain, agreement proposed between the city and the Ontario Business Society.

Council Approves Cox Protest Paying For Lahr Visit Party

Belleville's financial entity in his participation as a twin city with Lahr, Germany next with staff expenses from city Alderman Joe Cox during current budget discussions Friday.

The current budget proposed by city staff included $1,000 financial assistance for entertainment of German students visiting Belleville as the student exchange program — an increase to $2,750 from last year's $1,750.

Ald. Cox said: "I'm not in favor. — I'm not even sure if the program is beneficial."

Ald. Stu Meeks, angered at Ald. Cox's comments, said "I feel Lahr is already doing more for Canadians than we are doing for the German students and here we are skimping."

The increase was finally agreed to but moments later' Ald. Cox was on his feet protesting the cost and chose party the city is planning to hold in Lahr this June as a thanks from the people of the German hospitality offered during the Belleville — Lahr Friendship Flight stay.

Ald Cox said he did not think it was necessary for all of Belleville to pay for a party in Germany and suggested, "let the people going on the flight kick in the $1,000."

The German city has informed the entire Lahr visit of Belleviliians that they will be entertained at the city hall during their first evening Saturday, June 21 with a party by guided tours of the city and the nearby Black Forest.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said Ald. Cox's comments and remarks made and that "we have to say thank-you for the hospitality in a decent fashion."

The $1,000 was approved at council.

City Hall Cramped

Moving the mayor's office downstairs, construction of an executive washroom and a secretarial office space for aldermen were discussed Friday as council debated the cramped quarters at City Hall.

Included in the city's current budget is an allowance for renovations to the historic building but council questioned whether the budget was large enough to contain all the civic departments.

It was decided a space utilization study be undertaken with the possibility that some city administration will be moved outside City Hall.

"We've got problems," said Mayor Robin Jeffrey, "There just isn't space in the building."

Council is considering turning the small committee room into a washroom and moving the mayor's office to the committee room.

Another proposal is a request from Ald. Ben Corke that City Hall be equipped with an elevator. Mayor Jeffrey suggested the mayor's office be moved downstairs making it more accessible to the general public.

War Amps Help Madoc Girl

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Susan Nicholson is nine years old. She attends Madoc Public Elementary School, plays with her brothers and sisters, climbs trees and rides a bicycle.

Sounds just like any other child her age, doesn't she?

But Susan is somewhat special for she is an amputee as the result of a farm accident when she was three years old in 1968, living near Campbellford.

Susan, the daughter of Gerald and Maree Nicholson of RR1, Madoc, recently had left leg a groin auger (a pulley) and had her leg amputated from about three inches below the knee.

She uses an artificial leg which has no toes but the War Amputations of Canada (Kingston branch) has promised her a new one with toes.

The Kingston branch, which comprises a triangulated area from Trenton to Brockville and Pierces, has adopted Susan as its "daughter" and presented the guest of honor at the branch's annual spring dinner Friday at Sun Luck Gardens here.

Mrs. Nicholson said War Amputations paid the cost of Susan's present limb and also pledged the total cost of a new one.

"Bud Farrell (Kingston branch president from Havelock) came to see me and in Campbellford no doubt were the first people he had ever saw the war amps," related Mrs. Nicholson.

Mrs. Nicholson said was in hospital steady for about a year-and-a-half following the accident in Peterborough, and underwent treatment in the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto.

Mrs. Nicholson explained due to Susan's frequent trips to hospital has missed a lot of Education Beat

Board Exploits Closed Meetings

The Hastings County Board of Education is heading for the courts — and controversy — with a challenge to the public's right to attend board meetings, the law, take us to court.

Unfortunately, the board head will win its gamble. The new discussion Act definitely gives council an open session that the board has been looking for to close its meetings to the public.

The board will win in the court of law but would lose completely in the court of public opinion. There is one simple fact trustees in the county are overlooking. And that is the board is acting on behalf of the public, and should be conducting public business in an open and unimpeded manner.

Many trustees argue they can't speak freely with the press at the meetings. Then for this reason close the public and the press should be attending meetings to ensure they are conducted on the democratic principles of free speech.

Is the public to assume trustees and administrators talk differently about matters behind closed doors? Is the public to assume that weighty political decisions are made behind closed doors?

Gone Wait the Wind got the vote of Belleville homemaker Ida Jaeger. She liked the acting of Vivien Leigh and Clark Gable and the music.

Ellis Wants Anglicans In Housing

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Jack Ellis, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Hastings, said Friday the Anglican Church of Canada should participate in low cost housing projects. He told a 18th Synod of the Anglican diocese of Ontario synod that under problems with the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., non-profit organizations may initiate and manage such projects by providing 25 per cent of the total capital costs with the federal government providing the balance.

Quick Answers to Favorite Movie Question

If anyone wonders why so many movies pictures are made and how movie theatres can make money for their owners and operators, perhaps the answers to this question will clear the air.

The question was: "What is your all-time favorite movie, and why did you like it so much?"

Some of the respondents had to think a while, but then found the answer ready almost as soon as the question was out.

Wholesome family fare carried the day with the ladies and adventure with a bit of violence was favored by the males.

Reader Charges Sports Writer Slapped Insult at Volunteers

Dear Editor:

On Wednesday May 7, your self-appointed "Sports Writer" slapped an insult at the volunteers in our minor hockey system. The "Sports Writer" decreed that all Belleville hockey coaches ought to tangle it out to and behold the coaches did not respond. Yes boys — it seems rather odd and most noticeable the coaches that The Intelligencer and CJBQ are giving to the commercial hockey school operating in Belleville this summer. Especially noticeable is the attempt to intimidate coaches to register. Where was this type of support for the Coaches Clinic sponsored by our local Stephen Leacock Minor this past winter? Could hold at a time when coaches could attend — where were you at that ? AM sirs?

The Belleville volunteer hockey coaches involve themselves in nearly 30 hours, by joining with our youth in the sporting hockey at least only give of their time and money but also sacrifice a certain amount of the family life. Today family life is most important and the coaches involved are something to be cherished. Along with the help with ideas of profit and demands that coaches provide that profit.

Instead of ridiculing the coaches, the "Sports Writer" should compliment the local coaches.

Silver Lad Is Tops

Silver Lad, driven by Brian Bellamy, won Friday night's feature race at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway. His time of 2:11 was a lifetime best for the nine pacer. If was a purse of $175 and owner Ross Wood of Millbrook couldn't have been happier. It was the second consecutive victory for the horse.

Overall it was a good night for individual records, as the track was very fast.

Flyer Captain Makes His Point

Harder to Keep Cup Than Win

DENIS POTVIN

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — It's harder to defend the Stanley Cup than win it, says Bobby Clarke, who is Philadelphia Flyers to their first cup win a year ago.

"It's a believe let tough because every team wants to knock you off," said the Flyers' captain.

The so-called "postseason" from New York are, indeed, making it tougher for Philadelphia, and that's hard for the Flyers and their supporters to accept.

The Islanders have lasted through 15 playoff games, and nobody believed that could happen. Thousands of Flyer fans started seeing the game early Tuesday night in Philadelphia, where the Islanders won 5-1.

But Dave Lewis of the Islanders said that if New York wins Sunday to tie the series 3-3, anything could happen in Philadelphia Tuesday night.

"A foreign flavor doesn't matter in the seventh game of a playoff series," said the big defenseman. The mainstay of the club's power play, Potvin has come on the ice for all 13 Islander goals against the Flyers.

Each Fred Shero of the Flyers also said home ice advantage means nothing in a seventh game. It didn't in Philadelphia.

"I'm sure Shero is a little bit worried about it and he should be," Potvin said.

"I think we're well-outrested now, and I think it can turn out for the best for us if we keep playing the way we have and if we're careful.

"I still say it, if we got three goals in every game of the series we can win it."

Shero said the poor defence of the Islanders was very effective against th Flyers because of good blocking defencemen who do it the right way.

"They're very good at blocking. They've got four defensemen and a hockey is all standing in that respect. They're covering almost all four net three instead of three."

Coach Al Arbour's young team can even the best-of-seven semi-final on home ice Sunday after losses in the first two games against the defending champions in Philadelphia Tuesday night.

"It's good to see their spirit becoming stronger and stronger" since the pair of wins over the Flyers, centre Jude Drouin of the Islanders said.

"It sort of reminds me of the series again Pittsburgh," he said, recalling just the kind of comeback the Islanders must duplicate to reach the final against Buffalo Sabres.

Down 3-0 against Pittsburgh, the Islanders capped one of the National Hockey League's greatest comebacks with a 1-0 victory over the Penguins in the last game of the quarter-final to win the series 4-3.

Boudreau Leads Charge

Marlboros Put Sherbrooke Out

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Doug Boudreau solved his scoring and sleeping problems Friday night—all at the expense of Sherbrooke Beavers.

Boudreau has still make me sleep a lot better tonight," Boudreau said after breaking out of a personal scoring slump with five power-play goals to lead Toronto Marlboros to a 9-4 sudden-death semi-final victory over the Beavers in Memorial Cup play.

The victory moves the Marlboros into Sunday's final with New Westminster Bruins for the Canadian major junior hockey championship.

Sunday's championship final starts at 1:30 p.m. EDT and will be televised on the CTV national network.

Boudreau, a speedy centre who scored 69 goals in the regular season and dropped to 12 in his 23 post-season games, said he might have been "pressing" a bit more Friday night for his first goal of the tournament.

"But I think I've started to get minutes out there and that was the thing," Boudreau said.

Boudreau suffered a freak accident at the end of the regular season which hampered his play. Goalie Mike Marson, who was playing for Sherbrooke, fell on coach George Armstrong's stick and needed 30 stitches to close the gash.

Boudreau suffered double vision for about a month but soon "I didn't have any trouble seeing in Friday night's game.

Boudreau scored three of his goals in the final period when Toronto broke a 4-4 tie after Sherbrooke goalie Nick Ssmon, who replaced Marson, left the Beavers late in the final period.

The Marlboros had led 3-2 at the end of the first period and Sherbrooke 4-3 at the end of two periods.

Doug Jobe also added two goals for the Marlboros and John Gibbons, Dave Hutchison and Mike McElwee added single goals for the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series champions.

Sherbrooke, representing the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League, got two goals from Claude Larose—his fourth and fifth of the playoffs—and single goals from Fernand Lebrasse and Michel Brisebois.

New Westminster, champions of the Western Canada Hockey League, earned a bye into Sunday's final with a 6-3 Wednesday night win over Toronto.

Terry Ruskowski had Sherbrooke 5-4 in overtime in the first game of the best-of-seven series Thursday night, and the Bruins topped Sherbrooke 7-5 in a Monday night game.

Toronto goaltender Gary Carr played a strong game, blocking 37 shots, while Sanna and Savoie combined to make 29 saves for Sherbrooke.

Boudreau's five goals was the highest number he's scored since picking up six in the final game of OHA Junior B playoffs four years ago.

General Manager George Gulbault of Sherbrooke had a new kind words for Armstrong, a former National Hockey League star.

"The momentum that George Armstrong has put into this team is unbelievable," said Gulbault. "They play very disciplined hockey and are a talented hockey team."

"We have to play catch-up hockey all night and as you've seen, you're definitely not able to do that in a Memorial Cup tournament."

Gulbault thought Boudreau might have had a strong game, but said his line-mate, Mark Nasadoski, also played a good game. Boudreau goals, made all the difference.

Mark Napier is the finest hockey player I have ever seen," Gulbault said. "When the game is tight Sunday he'll be there getting and I'm sure he'll make a big difference.

"I think if the Marlies play their game of going in the corners, staying in front of the net and being body contact, they'll win it."

Dineen Doesn't Want Home Series

QUEBEC (CP) — Coach Bill Dineen of Houston Aeros will find out tonight whether the point he has stressed to his players for the last three days has registered.

Dineen sees tonight's third game of the best-of-seven World Hockey Association final, in which the Aeros lead after winning the first two games at home, as the key to a quick repeat of the championship they won two years ago.

While most observers figure the season record as a basis for predicting the final outcome, Dineen makes no bones about his desire to wrap up the play-off in a hurry.

"I've talked about it to the players and I said after a practice Friday night, "I told them to put a charge into it, that tonight's game was the key."

The Houston coach said one aspect of the series had surprised him.

"It's been a Rink more physical series than I thought it would be," he said. "No Nordiques are really down and they weren't really down after they lost to Toronto.

He said the Quebec club, usually noted for its defensive speed than bumping, appeared to be holding its own against the bruising WHA quality-oriented Aeros.

Both clubs listed doubtful starters for tonight's game.

Defenceman Marty Howe, who missed Tuesday's second game because of tonsilitis, travelled here with the club. Dineen said there was a chance he could return tonight.

He said a decision on whether to play Marty and centre Terry Ruskowski will be made near game time.

Ruskowski suffered a severe bone bruise on his right hand during a 2-1 Tuesday night. Dineen said that contrary to earlier reports the bone had not been broken.

Veteran defenceman J. C. Tremblay of the Nordiques was to decide today if an ailment in his right shoulder has healed sufficiently for him to play. Tremblay, who has been farmed to Quebec in the 15th game of the season, missed the first two games of the series.

Twins Have the Formula Admits Barrie's Coach

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Coach Darryl Sly of Barrie Flyers says the team's 4-1 power cent hard work and 35 per penalty-killing.

And, he said, following his team's 7-2 defeat by Thunder Bay Friday night, "the Twins have been getting their fair share of the breaks."

Although his team trails 3-2 in the best-of-seven Allan Cup final, Sly remains an optimist and says he can say positive changes in strategy—other than increased hard work—have been made.

Mets Lead 3-2

Lecuyer Proves Point to Scouts

EDMONTON (CP) — Ron Lecuyer, 20, of Sturgeon Grove feels he has seen enough scouts to prove that the professional hockey scouts were not watching him when he was playing for the Oilmen in the 1974 draft.

The 6-foot-2 winger scored a goal and two assists Friday night as Edmonton Oilmen defeated Guelph Biltmores 4-3 for a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Centennial Cup series.

He also had three assists as Sturgeon Grove scored the first Tyee Junior A final series hat trick, goals and assists in a series scoring race with two goals and seven assists.

Lecuyer, 20, is too old for the draft this year, but Sturgeon Grove coach Doug Menaker says the classy defensive specialist will be invited to pre camps.

Penalties hampered Guelph. Dineen said that contrary to the Southern Ontario Hockey league champions, throughout the series, Guelph players drew 21 of 36 penalties called by referee Ron Bowrash for a total of 145 minutes.

Bowrash attempted to establish control early in the game when he called 16 penalties—eight to Guelph—within six minutes.

"Although the Guelph team was successful in killing those penalties, I feel it took a lot out of some of their player," Menzies said.

His said Guelph, deserved even more penalties "because of the way some of their players hold their sticks when they go, to check."

Jeff Ray won Tuesday's game 5-2.

Scoring on Barrie goals Grant Chalmers were Murray McLeod with two, Barry Hogan, Dave Bragnalo and Jack Symons. Grant Hawes and Ken Knapton replied for the Flyers, beating Twins goalie Rocky Mercuri in the third period.

Sly said three questionable first-period penalty calls could have thrown his team off stride, especially up one final marker in Bragnalo's power-play goal late in the period.

But, unlike the Flyers' penalty-plagued semi-final series with St. John's Capitals, Barrie has played a calmer game in this series, Sly said, resulting from a third-period fight between Russ Elliott of the Twins and Barrie's Jack Smith, who was ejected from the series. And Bob Mercinith of the Twins was kicked the fracas and was given a game misconduct. He had his dubious distinction of receiving the first game misconduct.

Despite the clear-cut victories by the Twins, Thunder Bay coach Dave Siciliano is predicting a tough game in Barrie tonight.

"We'll have to go 60 minutes tomorrow night," he said.

But he says the Twins have been working harder than their opponents because the Flyers, defending Allan Cup champions, have had a taste of victory the last two weeks.

"The Twins are hungrier this year," he said.

Both tonight's game, and a seventh game Sunday, if necessary, "are the series tonight. are to be

Pride of Alabama, Nelson Has Lead

DALLAS (AP) — Larry Nelson, the pride of backwoods Alabama, perfected an aversion to work and a sparkling 65 into the Dallas Open today at the $275,000 Byron Nelson golf tournament.

Nelson, a non-winning four-year professional, fired the first under-par 65 to an opening 69 for a 36-hole total of 134.

Nelson, 27, who sparred golf until age 21, scooted past a couple of fellow touring pros Friday to seize a one-shot lead as golf greens and fairways were made the Preston Trail course play easy.

Tom Watson, for instance, knocked in eight birdie putts ranging from two to 30 feet for a course record-equalling 67 and shared second at 135 with Bob Smith, who shot a 68.

Brian Allin of Australia, Bruce Crampton with 69-66 was a stroke back and with Dwight Nevil, who shot 68 for 136.

George Knudson of Toronto was among other players crowded into the tie for 10th with Jack Fleck's 67 the best. Just behind Watson, Ben Crenshaw had his birdie putt on the final hole lip out, settling for a matching record.

Knudson shot a 69 for his 137. Ben Kern of Toronto missed the 145 cutoff in the final round, finishing a 73 for 150.

An unprecedented total of 34 players broke par, about a matched regulation 71 over the Preston Trail course, with 17 rounds ranging from two to 10 feet for a course record-equalling 67—and shared second at 135 with 70.

Atlantic Boxers Dominate Bouts

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — Scouts from the Atlantic provinces dominated the opening matches in the Eastern Canadian boxing championships Friday night, winning five of the first seven preliminary bouts in the intermediate division.

Fighters from Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces are competing in the three-day championship which ends Sunday.

The only knockdown Friday was recorded in one of the two final matches when John Vroo of Quebec knocked out Wayne Pride of Ontario at the 1:37 mark of the first round to become the Eastern Canadian champ in the 160-pound category.

The other final in the intermediate division saw John Rafferty of Ontario earn a decision over Steve Hanrahan of the Atlantic provinces in the three-round match in the 125-pound class.

Preliminary action saw Harry Green of the Atlantic qualify for the finals in the 106-pound class by earning a decision over Ralph Filion of Quebec. Dave Jaroszuk of Ontario won by decision over Michel Bolduc of Quebec in the 139-pound division.

Don Downey of the Atlantic won a decision over Denis Blais of Quebec in the 147-pounds.

Dave Williams, Atlantic, decisioned Richard Hayes of Ontario to gain the finals in the 165-pound division.

The intermediate finals and senior semi-finals will be held today. Sunday afternoon action features senior finals.

Soreless Skein Ends But Fryman is Happy

MONTREAL (CP) — Woodie Fryman saw his string of scoreless innings ended by Houston Astros but accepted it philosophically as Montreal Expos came from behind for a 5-4 win in National League baseball.

WOODIE FRYMAN

Fryman, who had allowed only four hits Friday night.

The Expos scored a run in the fifth inning and four in the sixth to wipe out a 4-0 Astros edge built in the fourth.

"It doesn't really bother me because of the way I pitched," said the end of his club-record scoreless streak at 22 2-3 consecutive innings. "It would have been worse if we'd ended up losing.

"I just got behind in that one inning. I got behind a few guys. That won't be the first time or the last."

Pepe Mangual's single drove home the winning run in the sixth after earlier scores on a single by Larry Parrish, who extended his hitting streak to 10 games, a double by Barry Foote and a throwing error by Astros right fielder Enos Cabell.

Mangual had driven home the Expos' first run when he lofted a sacrifice fly that drove Cesar Cedeno to the fence in left centre where he made the catch.

"All the way I thought it was a hit," said Mangual, whose fly ball that scored Hal Breeden, who had led off the inning with a double and advanced on pinch hitter Jose Morales's single.

The Astros got their runs on Bob Watson's single, a two-run triple by Cabell and Skip Lutz's sacrifice.

12 Straight Wins Kaat Sets Club Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago pitcher Jim Kaat became a 20-game winner — with a little help from his friends.

Kaat set a White Sox team record with his 12th consecutive victory, five of them this season, tossing a five-hitter for a 3-0 Friday night. He blanked the Indians on six hits before giving way to his friends, relief pitchers Rich Gossage and Terry Forster, in the ninth.

"If it wasn't for Gossage and Forster, I'd be 0-2 this year," said Kaat, a 36-year-old left-hander. "They've bailed me out of every game I've pitched. I'd like to have gone the distance, but the victory is good enough."

Elsewhere in the American League, Milwaukee Brewers beat Kansas City Royals 7-1, Minnesota Twins defeated Baltimore Orioles 5-2, Texas Rangers defeated Detroit Tigers 2-1, Boston Red Sox beat California Angels 4-1 and Oakland A's edged New York Yankees 4-3.

Kaat beat Gaylord Perry, who made one bad pitch and paid for it with a home run. That was to Pat Kelly in the eighth inning, as the Chicago left-hander turned it into a two-run homer.

Perry had the White Sox his-toss over the first five innings and had a no-hitter until the eighth, when Tony Muser led off with an infield single and two outs later, Kelly hit his first home run of the season. Perry finished with a four-hitter.

Hank Aaron's 738th career home run around a 1-1 in the Milwaukee and highlighted a five-run seventh inning. It was his third homer of the season and was produced by a standing ovation from the Kansas City fans.

Bobby Mitchell had a two-run triple and Don Money a two-run double in the big inning.

Minnesota posted its fifth victory in six starts behind rookie Jim Hughes, who pitched seven-hitter for his second major-league triumph.

Six of the first nine Baltimore batters reached base against Hughes, but he survived thanks to some shoddy baserunning. Al Bumbry caught caught Hughes' pickoff throw at first baseman Rich Chiles and after the infield fly rule had been called on a pop fly.

Texas got the go-ahead run in the third inning on a throwing error by rookie outfielder Dan Meyer and added an insurance run in the sixth on Tom Walker's sacrifice fly. Detroit's only run resulted from a wild pitch by Steve Foucault.

The beneficiary of this generosity was Texas' Jackie Brown, who raised his record to 2-1.

Boston's Rick Wise stopped California on three hits, losing his shutout in the ninth on a leadoff homer by Mickey Rivers. Rick Burleson paced the Red Sox attack with two doubles and a single.

Oakland got the winning run in the eighth when Billy Williams walked with two outs, pinch-runner Mael Alexander stole second, moved to third on Thomas Alomar's throwing error and scored on Sparky Lyle's wild pitch. It was the Yanks' ninth straight loss.

Robert Robinson led the Excelsiors with four goals while Bob Haw, Barry Richardson and Joe Modrera each scored three goals.

Brampton led 9-2 after the first period, 17-6 after the second.

Mike Marshall Takes His Lumps from Bucs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Mike Marshall can get out of bed today he'll be happy, but he should have stayed in bed Friday night. The Los Angeles Dodgers relief ace was clobbered on to protect a 3-3 lead against Pittsburgh Pirates in the seventh inning and quickly turned it into an 11-3 loss.

In two innings of mimicking resembling batting practice, Marshall was battered for nine runs on seven hits including two doubles, a triple and a homer—and three walks. It was the worst pounding in a Dodger uniform for Marshall, who set a major league baseball record last season by relieving 106 times, never giving up more than four runs in any game.

However, he had pitched only three innings—all last Saturday—since April 19, when he fanned a rib cartilage on his left side. Was the two-inning shelling worth it?

"I'll know tomorrow," Marshall said. "If I can get out of bed, then I'll call it a good night."

Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal Expos beat Houston Astros 5-4, Cincinnati Reds nipped New York Mets 4-3, Chicago Cubs beat San Diego Padres 5-2, Atlanta Braves defeated Philadelphia Phillies 3-1 and St. Louis Cardinals beat San Francisco Giants 6-4.

Marshall's relief teammate was Pittsburgh's Dave Parker, who had a second triple for Houston Astros 5-4, Cincinnati Reds nipped New York Mets 4-3, Chicago Cubs beat San Diego Padres 5-2, Atlanta Braves defeated Philadelphia Phillies 3-1 and St. Louis Cardinals beat San Francisco Giants 6-4.

Second baseman Joe Morgan singled home the final two runs in Cincinnati's four-run fifth, sending the Mets to their fifth consecutive defeat.

Rick Monday's two-run homer capped a three-run first inning for Chicago. Ray Bobris limited the Padres to six hits before giving way to Darold Knowles with two on and the eighth.

Chicago added two runs in the eighth when Bill Madlock singled, John Grubb walked and Jerry Morales hit a sacrifice fly.

Atlanta's Biff Pocoroba drove in two runs with his first major league hit, backing the five-hit pitching of Rowie Harmon. Pocoroba, making only his third start as the Braves's catcher, faced a one-out single to left in the second inning off Tom Underwood following a single by Earl Williams and a double by Larvell Blanks.

Ron Fairly drove in four runs for St. Louis with a two-run single and a two-run homer, his first of the season.

Brenner, 27, was a CFL all-star in 1973 when he had a league-record 15 interceptions during the season.

Hamilton's Al Brenner Decides on Retirement

HAMILTON (CP) — Defensive back Al Brenner has decided to retire from football rather than sign what he feels is an unacceptable contract offer from Hamilton Tiger-Cats, says Brenner's agent Jerry Sternberg.

Brenner is entering the option he year of his contract and could have played the 1975 Canadian Football League season for 90 per cent of contract salary and become a free agent next year. But Sternberg said Brenner decided instead to retire, leaving him free to return to the club later in the season.

"If he doesn't go to training camp he can't expect that he should a satisfactory contract be offered and without being fined," said Sternberg.

Sternberg said he and Brenner may look into other possibilities, one of which may be the World Football League where Memphis Southmen hold the rights to Brenner.

"They may be willing to sign a player on an option year but they don't have to be prepared to test it should Hamilton go to court."

BIRTHS

DOLLING — Dennis and Ann Dolling are happy to announce the birth of a son Kenneth Donald, 7 lbs., 2 ozs., on May 7, 1975. Proud to be Doctor Allen and Nurses Dolling. Thanks to Dr. Allen and Staff.

IN MEMORIAM

SOLDADAY — In memory of a very dear husband, Bill Soldaday, who left us May 12, 1968.
We loved him dearly,
We miss him more,
Two years have flown by,
And memories we store.
I often think of happier days when
He was with me,
The memories I have are
Memories that will live forever.
Sadly missed by his wife Jessie.
At his head grow two trees
Symbol
Always remembered by sister Mary and family.

SOLDADAY — In loving memory of my dear husband, Bill Soldaday, who died May 12th, 1968.
Two years have passed
Since he left me,
Where the broken reality knew,
He was one loved so much,
That he had not seen him,
Two years have passed and
Many hours,
A couple of years ago,
He never knew,
He never will,
Why he passed away,
Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Jessie and family.

These will be sold on a first come first sold basis, so call early and get the best choice.

10% MORTGAGE AND $2,000.00 GRANT is a combination pretty hard to beat in today's market. We have two houses in the East end, each of which offer you such a combination. You could have a look at them today — done — even the lawns are seeded.

INVEST WITH NO-CASH

THE UNEXPLAINED

Dunninger and Houdini's Mystery

Recently, Dunninger, the great mentalist — indisputably the greatest of modern times — died at the age of 84.

Back in the 1920s and 1930s, Dunninger thrilled radio and television audiences by what appeared ability to read their minds. His best known stunt, "Joe" Dunninger was just one of thousands of professional trickster, though more spectacular and did do things that even they couldn't figure out.

I met Dunninger, for the first time and last, in 1924 at the hollywood Beefsteak dance in Niagara Falls, Ontario.

The reason, a palpable publicity stunt for the Beefsteak Dances in that area, was heralded as the last, ultimate attempt to trick Dunninger, who died in 1936, on an unsuspecting stooge between bites of a pecan-smothered Dunninger.

The stooge was a madhouse but a sort of magnificent one. Besides Dunninger, there were (up to, at all things, a dozen) of the best known mentalists of the Houdini affiliation of the Mahatma Kirni Singh, Chung Ling Soo, and such famous names in the magic world as Jay Marshall, Sidney Radner and James Dodge, all gathered known as The Amazing Randi.

Into the midst of these magicians, set apart a little, Dunninger, a man who clearly believes for a moment in the possibility of communicating with the dead, was buried a medium, Anna Fisher of Albany, whom job it was to bring through Harry's spirit. (She was a gullible in a sea of piranha.)

She made a valiant try. While we all sat around a large round table in true seance style, the medium announced, "Harry, give us a sign of your presence."

Suddenly there was a loud fall to the floor from where it had been nestling amid a bunch of flowers on a table some or eight feet away from the medium. Somebody noticed and discovered that it was a book called "Fun With Cooked and frozen again?—Mrs. R. B. M.

The cooking takes care of any harmful bacteria that might be present. However the remaining portion should be cooled in smaller segments so that the following process can occur as rapidly as possible.

No. 2. If it has to leave the meal in its original plastic wrap during shopping so that it is not exposed to air.

No. 3. If you are living and eating alone, why not have the butcher cut up your pound into meal-sized portions right in the store? Anyone who has tried to cut up a piece of meat knows what a difficult chore it can be.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband says that a woman contributes to ovulate every month during pregnancy. I say ovulation stops at the time of conception. Who's right?—E.F.

You are.

No. I was confident that somebody at the source had given the spirits a helping hand — with the result that he publicly accused The Amazing Randi-Daddy of having close K. Randi, an outspoken foe of supernatural research, hastened and hawed and doubleclaimed that his very evident publishable question be referred to flatly — they having rigged the trick. (Randi had more bad luck a few days later. On November 4, 1974 he arranged his escape from a locked in the safe in the offices of the Toronto Sun. Unfortunately his escape skill as an escapologist. But nine minutes and 30 seconds later, Randi hadn't gotten out, the fire department was summoned and Sun executives frantically opened the safe. The world famous magician was pulled unconscious from the safe.' said The Sun, 'while horrified staffers looked on. That, said Randi, when he had regained his composure, 'was no goddamn close!' ")

After the Randini seance, I asked Dunninger, a man who like Houdini had made his reputation largely as a skeptic and a debunker of psychic nonsense, if anything about the seance had impressed him in the least.

To my surprise he said yes. The medium had referred to some "gold coins" which Houdini was said never to have received from Dunninger and which he never found after Houdini's death though Houdini had searched for them. Both facts were correct, said Dunninger.

"Nobody outside our family knew about those gold coins I gave Houdini," Dunninger said me.

"Nobody?" I pressed.

"Nobody," he said, skeptic replied emphatically.

Question: Do you believe the medium knew about them?

Stuttering Cause Is Not Certain

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 18 years old and I have a stuttering problem. I have stuttered since I can remember. It is their stutters, and so does my brother. My father always reminds us about our speech defects.

There is a lot of tension in my family — parental dominance and pressure to achieve. I stutter greatly around my father and become tongue-tied when we are together. Do you have any advice?—M.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son, who is 38 months old, is beginning to stutter. He has been talking for quite a while but is putting sentences together now. He doesn't stutter all morning but when he says "I" it happens. He stutters the first word of a sentence.

What causes this and what can we do to correct it?—Mrs. J. B.

Dear Doctor: My daughter never stuttered when she was little, but started in her teens. Now at 22, she stutters more. Is there any cure?—M. B. R.

Stuttering or stammering can start at any age, and I have used these three letters to point this out. The causes are not entirely clear. Some experts tend to suspect psychological causes, others neurological or other organic problems.

Boys seem more affected than girls.

There is a small distinction between stammering and stuttering. The former appears as a difficulty in pronouncing certain syllables whereas the latter is a stuttering is a repetition of initial letters.

M. S.'s letter strongly suggests psychological factors involved in fact, it appears to be a classic set of circumstances — the parental pressures, the overreaching of achievement. The two brothers would do well to talk the matter out with the father.

Mrs. J. B., to some degree, should also analyze her own speech expert but without making too much of a fuss over the matter. It might be nothing more than the pressures of her-jabber associated with all early talkers.

The late onset of the problem in M. B. R.'s daughter suggests again psychological roots. Such problems usually disappear with time and appropriate attention, possibly by psychiatrists.

Many readers ask me about the use of hypnosis in connection with these disturbances. It is not the answer. Adequate speech therapy or counseling of the emotional conflicts are the best approaches.

Many school districts have speech therapists or facilities at do most of the child guidance clinics.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I understand that food should not be defrosted and refrozen before cooking. However, a large piece of frozen meat is a problem for me. I cook when I get home so anything harmful is eating and defrosted. Is it safe to have cooked and frozen again?—Mrs. R. B. M.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The late Sonny Moyes who edited the Bridge World magazine for many years had to see a lot of writing about a 4-3 trump fit. He discovered as a result that these 4-3 fits are frequently called Moyes fits in his honor.

Sonny sat North. His favorite partner, the late Albert Morehead, South.

They were using weak jump overcalls as intermediate bids to make a takeout double in spite of the singleton heart.

As you can see, the hand will make three notrump because each defender can take only four. It won't make five diamonds because East holds three diamonds.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of jumping to three spades your partner has responded two diamonds. What do you do now?

Answer: Shoulder to nose?

Thumbing Ban Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A report released Friday by North York Mayor Mel Lastman urges a ban on hitch-hiking to combat the increasing juvenile crime rate by 400 incidents a year.

The report was prepared by Dr. Jerry Cooper, chief of psychiatry at Toronto York-Finch General Hospital, and Ronald James Morgan of the Metropolitan Toronto police force.

"It is a proven fact that 60 per cent of all murders in Canada are committed by so-called hitch-hikers," the report says.

Dr. Cooper also writes that about three-quarters of the people he has interviewed in jail had committed hitch-hikes as victims.

North York council previously passed two motions calling for provincial legislation to ban hitch-hiking.

Mayor Lastman says he will place another motion before the next council next week.

Seek Easy Marks

TORONTO (CP) — Some students are transferring to high schools with lower academic standards because it is easier to get high marks, William Kerr, director of admissions at University of Toronto, said Friday.

Queries Evaded

OTTAWA (CP) — The government could not be pinned down Friday on the possibility that Canada may take unilateral action on controlling oil at the continental shelf.

The issue arose in the Commons following the end of the United Nations Law of the Sea conference in Geneva, which ended an appeal for countries not to take such action before the next international meeting in New York next year.

The fray started when Keith Penner (L—Thunder Bay) asked his pre-Question Period question about the time used by the minister in answering questions would be deducted from the debating time of Liberal members.

Mr. Penner said he merely wanted to apportion time fairly to parties on both sides of the House.

Vietnam Doctor Montreal Grad

TORONTO (CP) — When Tu Uyen graduated from the University of Montreal medical school of hygiene eight years ago and headed for Vietnam, there was never thought he would see Canada again.

Friday, Dr. Tu was one of the 30 Vietnamese refugees who stopped briefly at Toronto International Airport before heading for new homes in other parts of Canada.

"It's kind of ironic, isn't it? The 44-year-old doctor laughed in his accent.

"You know, in 1967, I graduated in Montreal, I came back to Saigon, and for seven years I was a doctor.

"I was in charge of a private hospital in Saigon, then ran for a company called the American Development Co. There were seven doctors.

"And now I am here, with my new daughter, and I am not licensed to practice in Canada.

Dr. Tu, his wife, Thi Nhu Le, four-month-old daughter, Thanh Phuong, and 11-year-old son, Thanh Tu, left later for their new home in Montreal.

Most of the 30 refugees, comprising four family units, continued to Montreal. One man was going to Quebec City and another to St. John's, Nfld., with the rest bound for Ottawa.

Opposition Charges Its Questions Evaded

OTTAWA (CP) — An angry opposition accused the Liberal government Friday of evading questions on foreign policy.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker stood up after the daily Commons question period and attacked the government for what he said was quibbling on Canada's role in international affairs.

Mr. Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) wanted a day set aside in the Commons for discussion of government policies in the foreign affairs do not become a matter of scorn in the eyes of the world.

Lester B. Pearson, Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) blew up when Mr. Diefenbaker finished.

Inventories Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business men in the United States said last month they bought more than they bought in March, resulting in a record monthly decline of $3.5 billion in business inventories, the commerce department said Friday. But sales also declined in March—down 3.5 per cent from February—and business men higher inventories than the previous month.

MPs Celebrate

OTTAWA (CP) — It was retroactive payday Friday for members of Parliament, but fewer than expected of the MPs appeared in the 264-seat Commons.

MPs were home for the weekend—two-thirds of them early—richer by about $3,000 each.

Attendance ranged from an unofficial high mark of 81 to a low of 38 the day after pay cheques were issued for a 6 per one-third, retroactive to the last general election July 8.

U.S. Enemies Need Not Be Canada's Too

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday that the North American Air Defence (NORAD) agreement, just renewed for five years, does not necessarily mean that an enemy of the United States is an enemy of Canada.

Bob Wenman (PC—Fraser Valley West) observed that Mr. Trudeau's Commons statement contradicted the view expressed March 18 by Defence Minister James Richardson.

Industry and Public Face Chemical Perils

TORONTO (CP) — Industry, labor and the public are largely ignorant of the potential danger of chemicals in their daily lives, more research must be done to ensure their effects become well-known, a specialist in environmental medicine said Friday.

Dr. Irving Selikoff, professor of medicine at Mount Sinai School in New York, said a national policy committee of the United Steelworkers of America has been formed to study the effects of chemicals.

The theme of the two-day conference was "stop the slaughter in industry" and the delegates were concerned about the fight for the rights to inspect workplaces for hazards, be informed and to have work they feel is dangerous.

Dr. Selikoff said researchers have found the harmful effects when deadly effects of many chemicals, such as asbestos, appear years after first exposure to how effects.

"Workers are being used as guinea pigs," he said. "They are fed by real chemists down to mice to test how bad the air is and how workers are the canaries."

He said that among 17,800 American asbestos insulation workers surveyed, deaths from cancer were five times higher than expected and from lung cancer, eight times higher than expected.

Among was-employees, there were fewer lung cancer deaths than expected, but among smokers, six times as many as expected.

He said work is just beginning on the "by-product" effects on families and workmates of workers who work with harmful materials. Studies of families of asbestos workers in Quebec have had shown that nine wives contracted mesothelioma through contact with their husbands' clothes.

While work had just begun in many fields, in other areas it has been known for years that certain materials were harmful.

One classic description of the effects of silicosis was provided in 1998, he said. It was noted in ancient times that hungers of workmen mining in Elliot Lake, Ont., were known in the 16th century and there is now there because of economic pressures.

Air Canada Loss

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Canada had a $3 million loss in 1974 and faces "serious inflationary pressures," this year, but the government-owned airline still try to limit air-fare increases, says Yves Fraise, Air Canada chairman.

Fabricon Plans Wire Plant Here

By COLIN SEDUE
Staff Reporter

Fabricon Manufacturing Ltd. will begin construction immediately of a 125,000-square-foot plant in the city's north east industrial park, The Intelligencer has learned.

The plant, one of the city's largest recent acquisitions, will be sophisticated machinery in the production of wire and cable products," says Fred Bemis, the city industrial commissioner.

The firm is expected to employ about 200 by the end of the first production year. Production is expected by next spring.

Company production is aimed at both domestic and international markets.

Hanns Allmendinger, general manager of an existing Fabricon plant in Trenton, said during an interview Sunday that Fabricon has "the proper established company of Falten and Guilleaume AG, a West German company.

In Trenton, the firm has a 120,000-square-foot plant and employs 140 people. Fabricon has been in that community since 1967.

Mr. Allmendinger said the Belleville's chief drawing card was the readily available land to which construction could begin immediately. "This was the most important factor in our company's choice to build in Belleville," he said.

Mr. Allmendinger said his plant would continue to operate in Trenton.

Industrial commissioner Bemis said Monday the new plant would be very similar in size and employee strength to the Procter and Gamble plant now under construction in the same industrial park.

Mr. Bemis, in a weekend interview said "many details are sketchy about the plant with engineering studies still to be completed and council must still give its approval".

Fabricon is intending to buy 30 acres of land in the park at $8,500 an acre — a price sufficient to cover the city's initial land purchase costs and subsequent servicing costs, said Mr. Bemis.

Driver Escaped Injury

Robert Sparks, 25, of RR 1, Kanata, near Ottawa, narrowly escaped injury Saturday when his tractor-trailer hauling crushed beer cases rolled over at the intersection of Cannifton Road and Highway 37. Insurance adjustors at the scene estimated damage would total $35,000 . . . the bulk of the damage resulting from the cargo weight tearing the aluminum skin of the box. Belleville OPP are still investigating the incident. Mr. Sparks was returning to Ottawa when the incident occurred.

Compulsory Prices and Pay Controls Reported Prepared

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has a compulsory prices and incomes control program in reserve as it heads into talks this week with labor and business leaders on a voluntary plan.

Finance Minister John Turner is to meet Wednesday with businessmen representing a cross-section by industry and region.

Sometime between Wednesday and Thursday, he will talk with the 30-member executive committee of the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) meeting in Toronto.

The government has had a contingency plan for price and income controls since 1969, when the Prices and Incomes Commission drew one up.

This week's meetings will decide whether a voluntary program can work, for the CLC has already turned down the government's initial restraint proposals. They called for a limit on wage rises of a maximum 12 per cent or $2,600 a year.

The CLC rejected the government proposals because a ceiling was put on wages while leaving other incomes free, the CLC said. It countered with a nine-point program for rent controls, regulation of professional fees and stock speculation, higher pensions, and other measures including steps to combat market shortages.

Provincial representatives met Friday with the special ministerial inflation secretariat set up by the government to search for a national agreement on voluntary restraints.

L. D.Cameron, head of the secretariat, said later it is hoped the provincial and federal governments can agree on limitations to meet some of the CLC demands.

The issues raised by the CLC partly involve provincial jurisdiction and federal officials say they need the co-operation of provinces for voluntary restraints.

The government has so far refused to say whether it is considering mandatory controls if a voluntary approach fails though Mr. Turner has warned of greater intervention. He says he intends to conclude his consultations talks on a voluntary plan by the end of this month, when a budget is to be introduced.

Postmen at Montreal Back Union Executive

MONTREAL (CP) — Mail handlers and postal clerks in the Montreal post office Sunday reversed their decision to negotiate only with Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey and decided to back their national executive of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW).

About 1,300 of the 4,300 locals members attended the meeting and cheered as CUPW President Jon Davidson promised to meet Mr. Mackasey "as a solid union."

City postal workers last month began protests again (1 the weekend, hirings of casual workers to sort mail backlogs.

The protests resulted in the indefinite suspensions of 39 inside workers and sporadic interruptions in mail service by the 4,300-post office workers.

Provinces Seek Control Of Cable TV

OTTAWA (CP) — The provinces and Ottawa appear at loggerheads, prior to the second federal-provincial conference on communications in Ottawa Tuesday.

Gerard Pelletier, federal communications minister, said Sunday he has received and studied joint proposals backed by several provinces.

A common front appears to be taking shape with the provinces pressing for greater control over the issuing of permits and control of radio and television, especially cable television.

The provincers do not want control over the designation of broadcast frequencies, which would remain in a federal domain. But they do want control over telecommunications companies with installations within provincial boundaries.

The provincial ministers of communications were in Ottawa today at nearby Gatineau, just across the Quebec border from Ottawa, to develop a common strategy for the two-day conference.

No Evacuation Plans

Foreigners Told To Stay in Laos

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Indian department says the United States has no plans to evacuate the 2,000 Americans in Laos although the Communist Pathet Lao have been taking over the landlocked kingdom's kingdom.

"The situation doesn't appear to warrant it," said a state department spokesman in Washington.

Vientiane, the Laotian capital, remained calm following a speech Saturday in which Premier Souvanna Phouma in effect conceded that the Pathet Lao now control the coalition government of rightists, leftists and neutralists established under a 1973 peace accord.

"Important changes have taken place which some had not expected so suddenly, both they are here," said the 73-year-old premier's associates.

The premier's speech followed Pathet Lao victories in Cambodia and South Vietnam. The attacks by Pathet Lao forces on various outposts ended by the rightist Royal Laotian army's withdrawal in the face of the six rightist members of Souvanna Phouma's coalition cabinet and the removal of three remaining rightists premiers from their army commands. This left the Pathet Lao the dominant faction in the government.

The Laotian government is a broadcast Sunday night appealed by the premiere to remain calm and said all Laotian and foreign residents were prohibited from leaving the country.

Vietnamese Able To Travel Freely

SAIGON (Reuter) — The new authorities in Saigon are allowing Vietnamese to travel freely around the country to visit relatives and some have headed north to try to see their families in North Vietnam.

All foreigners, however, are currently restricted to the greater Saigon area as it is impossible to see how for people having their own cars to go. But some who returned to the city said they had been allowed to travel freely.

Three days ago the North Vietnam news agency reported that a new bridge had been built across the Ben Hai River, which has marked the boundary between North and South Vietnam since 1954.

But it did not say wether travel from Saigon was being allowed across it to visit their relatives in the north.

There is no free flow of goods along the roads from the Mekong Delta to Saigon has kept the markets of the capital bustling.

'Safety Belts' for Eggs Prove Point to Pupils

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The provincial ministry of transportation and communications is so impressed with a unique form of seat belt safety instruction presented by two Belleville Provincial Police officers at the Belleville detachment that ministry officials might incorporate it into their proposed seat belt program which they plan to introduce into Ontario elementary schools for Grades 1 and 2 students.

Constables Don Emery and Brian Turner, community services officers, are responsible for the instruction during their visits to Quinte area schools. The method utilizes eggs and model cars to stress the importance of wearing seat belts.

Constable Emery explains the two men first place an undraped egg into the car and propel the unit at a wall. On impact the egg, of course, flies out of the car and smashes.

On the second run, the egg is strapped in with a rubber band and sustains only a few cracks in the collision.

Constable Turner says this illustrates that, while no one is claiming an occupant of a motor vehicle will escape unscathed from an accident, wearing a seat belt can cut down the risk of serious injuries.

The two provincial policemen gave a partial demonstration to approximately 200 Grade 1 students recently and that visit will be followed on May 22 at Harmony Public School at RR1, Corbyville, when the officials will gauge student response to the instruction.

Kids Happy, But Parent Questions Act Quality

TRENTON — The Royal Brothers Circus with headquarters at Campbellford visited Middlesex Park Sunday and staged "big top" shows at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. before pulling out for Stirling in the next stop over on a pre-arranged route.

The Middlesex Park council sponsored the circus, comprised mainly of animals and performers from the United States, as a fund raising project for the Trenton Rotary Club's Canada 'n' celebration being held at Centennial Park July 1.

Profits from the undertaking are reported to be disclosed at a later date, said Mayor Cpt. Jim Forneri, even though ever to the Rotary Club today.

Whether the promotion was in the best interests of a public was questioned by a number of circus visitors.

One of the loudest vocal critics, Mrs. David Atkinson, RR3, Belleville, claimed "it's the biggest ripoff ever to hit the Quinte area!" She complained of high admission prices — saying to pay $3 to get into the main tent while $1.75 were charged $1.75. She also protested strongly against paying extra to see some of the 35 wild animals in the separate tent.

She termed the quality of animals and performers "a spectacle "an insult to the intelligence of the average Canadian."

Counsel today, Mayor Forestall reported all the children he talked with were delighted and the majority of adults received what they paid for. Attendance at the circus on par with the Shrine Brothers extravaganza.

Firms Fold, But Practice More Valuable Than Profit

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Eight Belleville manufacturing companies folded this weekend — but it's not as bad as it sounds.

The eight firms were part of the city's Junior Achievement organization which wrapped up its six-week program during an awards dinner Saturday.

Since last November, about 48 young people from city high schools have been operating the eight firms — learning first hand the rigors and responsibilities of business.

While each company is elected a president and suitable corporate board of directors. Once a product is found — manufacturing begins, followed closely with the headaches of selling the product with the final goal that a dividend can be returned to the shareholders.

Of the eight firms, two returned dividends and the remainder lost marginally.

Garth Chapman, executive director of the program, said "the emphasis in the program is not to make or lose money — but to learn the workings of the business community and how to work with others".

Les Shacklock, general manager of Deloro Stellite, said during the presentation ceremony, the firms and Rotary Club that sponsored the program are "not handing anything away as charity".

"We are making an investment and judging from the success of the program this year ... our investment is paying off."

Each of the companies is sponsored by Belleville firm which also supplies adult advisors to the junior companies.

Rev. Leslie Dunn was the guest speaker for the evening and urged achievers to not look at the "bottom line" of their companies as a total failure but learn something from the experience.

"We don't know we can do anything until we try."

Two Belleville achievers, Donna McDermott and Tom Britton, will leave for Saskatoon this summer to represent the city at CANJAM — a conference of Junior achievers from across Canada.

Junior Achievers Honored

More than 48 young people from Belleville were honored Saturday night for their participation in the Junior Achievement program — the second year the program has operated here. Guest speaker Rev. Leslie Dean talks here with achievers Donna McDermott and Judson Corrigan. "We don't know what we can do until we try," was Rev. Dean's message to the audience.

Ottawa Acknowledges Strikes Are Harmful but Balks at Remedial Action

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Public opinion polls, it is said, show that the community leaders say it; some individual leaders of labor, management and a few cabinet ministers make immediate pressure say it.

Even Prime Minister Trudeau says it — and people are fed up with strikes.

The people they all refer to are the taxpayers, and the strikes they talk about are those striking the public service.

Parliament has been told it has said it in legislating strikers back to work.

But the catch is that the federal government itself has had to be one cause. It — not its something about it.

When Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey takes it's amost defender in the cabinet, expresses impatience with public service strikes, like the Postal Workers', and is lamenting their damage to the economy and declaring that "government has to" he defends the principle of collective bargaining.

The Postmaster General and the Prime Minister alike have reminded strike leaders that irresponsibility could result in inflame public opinion as to Cleveland Committee of the process of collective bargaining. But because was put through Parliament by former Liberal Prime Minister Lester Pearson, they share responsibility for it, and regardless of its increasingly devastating impact on the economy, feel obligated to defend it, flaws and all, to some.

Public pressure could heed, if not break their resolve to make the best of that bad deal.

This pressure already has cracked the determination of an increasing number of individual Members of Parliament to preserve and protect collective bargaining in the public service.

Until recently, the Honorable Members especially those in the National Capital area where public servants form by far the largest bloc of voters, have been terrified of the Civil Service union.

But no longer.

Paul Dick, Conservative MP for the National Capital region riding of Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton — his constituency runs up almost to the city limits — has, in large measure, cut the bedroom satellite communities last cities flat, against public service strikes.

He says in a public statement, Parliament should roller them.

And in place of collective bargaining he would have some form of binding arbitration.

The taxpayer, he says, simply can't afford what he calls "the blackmail of the economy being held to ransom."

The time has come for the national interest to take first place.

The Prime Minister has to be listening.

For, like Paul Dick's, there are too many voices saying the same thing to be ignored.

Like R.J. Gallivan, chairman of the labor committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, appearing before a special Joint Committee of the Senate and Commons on employer-employee relations in the federal public service.

He said it on a hard line, contending that regular periodic strikes by the Post Office, air transport, and a score of other government agencies "have a disastrous effect on the domestic and export economy" and contribute to the basic public interest, was "breaking down compliance and obedience to constitutional authority and with law and order itself."

The government, with its "bottomless purse," is bargaining with its own employees, in bargaining with itself and—actual

Castro's Cuba has had close political and economic relations with all the countries of the socialist bloc in Eastern and Asia. Most prominent of course has been the Soviet Union which has supplied Cuba with petroleum, industrial equipment and technology for the last 15 years.

At an earlier stage, the leaders of the Cuban revolution were impressed with the Communist Chinese success in agrarian reform. And Czechoslovakia, Germans and Rumanians have also supplied the Cubans with other kinds of technical expertise.

But it is they North Vietnam which has impressed Fidel Castro perhaps more than all the others because of the way it has stood up against the vast military power of the United States and won a people's war against the in the end.

The former U.S. blockade of North Vietnamese ports and being aerial bombing of that country's cities and industries reminded Cubans of the continuing American blockade of their country now 15 years old and the earlier U.S.-directed invasion of Cuba at the Bay of Pigs in April, 1961.

Nor did Castro have to be reminded the American attack on North Vietnam was made on a Latin America and in the name of Cuba sent door being torn from the Cuban mission on the military muscle of the U.S.

And Thailand has been showing signs of this same problem.

Thailand, like Cuba, has a large municipal background there is nothing in his technical background to would make Castro sympathetic to the feeling that he has a future. It is more a matter of stance and the way he carries himself.

You get the thought he has something to say. He is a Premier Longhead and the other old war czars in Alberta might cause one to wonder.

But not with him. You feel he can handle himself.

And you have the feel that if the dice roll right he has a future.

U.S. and Cuba May Resume Relations as Washington Keeps a Eye on Hanoi

by Fidel since last fall, begins a new phase in Cuban-American relations, but with a North Vietnamese overtone.

Like the late North Vietnamese Ho Chi Minh, whose speeches Castro follows faithfully, Cuba is inviting leading and sympathetic Americans to visit his country.

Admittedly Senators Jacob Javits and George McGovern are not in the same league as Jane Fonda, the darling of Hanoi. But the invitational style of the Cubans appears the same.

Even more important is the fact that Castro indicates that he must come between Havana and Washington in the possibility Castro will continue to use the Swiss intermediaries as go-cause game in negotiating.

The Americans officially admit they will take a hard line in the upcoming negotiations, especially with Dr. Cuba, diplomatic and political failure in Vietnam, but in Havana where I was a few weeks ago and talking with Fidel Castro Cuban officials refer to their many options.

They have money to spend from last year's record high sugar earnings and they are buying more non-U.S. technology which in Cuba now has diplomatic relations with 12 countries in the Caribbean and Latin America and is an observer located in the hemisphere.

After 15 years of economic and no economic growth, the Cuban Revolution has taken off economically and offers more and more trade and investment prospects, sugar, tobacco this provocts to the world. The under Castro believes that it is not the policy of Hanoi and Havana to make the normalization of relations with the United States.

He told me in Havana in March of this year, of course, would regard it "as a positive event."

The chances are excellent, the said American Enterprise Institute Mahoney Drive in Havana will be back in business in Cuba, the American Express opens for the first time in Hanoi.

Communist Infiltration Of Democratic Institutions

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The fall of South Vietnam marks the 38th free nation to fall under the Soviet communism since the criminal conspiracy was born at the turn of the century by a mere handful of ruthless fanatics. Since then, more than twelve hundred million people have become captive of the Communist dictatorship run by less than 60 million Soviet Party members. Times March 1976).

These statistics who refuse to face this reality, and dismiss the threat of Communist aggression as "asking for hysteria" or "crying wolf" conveniently do not read The World Marxist Review, Tass or Pravda which have openly called on Communist Party membership in 161 countries around the world to wage a half million in July, 307,100 in France, 183,000 in Italy, 35,000 in Britain, 13,000 in the United States and 3,000 in Canada (divided up into both Maoist and Soviet factions).

In free world countries, these Marxists are intricately involved in leading, launching, steering and manipulating the so-called "front" groups and ad hoc committees which are used to appear as "democratic" but are blunt input-creating chaos and confusion in order to create institutions.

By the use of "motherhood" and "apple pie" issues which are not in conflict, millions of naive followers find themselves a mystically fully brainwashed, working for, financing and furthering Communist causes. While thousands quit when they realize what is up, few, if any, will admit to having been duped. This is a familiar, but true, indoctrination. The Russian Revolution, by 1948, the Communist imperialists had enslaved over two hundred million people. As of May 1975, this number has risen to over hundred million people live in Russia, Eastern Europe, China and Soviet Union and Cuba.

The 1.6M of Cambodia and South Vietnam are victims of the Marxist philosophy of world domination just that much closer.

Vacant Lighthouse Soon To Be a Bird Observatory

PRINCE EDWARD POINT — The vacant lighthouse facility under the jurisdiction of the department of northern affairs, Parks Canada, will soon be used as bird observatory, says Dr. Ronald Weir of Kingston, president of the Kingston Field Naturalists.

J. C. Christakos, director of Ontario region of Parks Canada and Mr. Weir, have agreed to a proposal which will permit the nature club to occupy the lighthouse at this point, located at the northeast tip of Long Point, about 10 miles from Marysburgh Township, as a base from which members will carry out its program of field studies.

Studies will include the trap-ping and collection of migratory pollen coming across from Lake Ontario to help determine the possible spread of plants and trees from areas south of Lake Ontario, and the setting up of an automatic radio station to track bird biology and to help understand the intriguing process of migration in the fall and spring of this part of Ontario.

Mr. Weir stated this weekend, "We have our banding permit and are enthusiastic to get this observatory going."

The site is a well-known migration point and an spectacular are the visible migrations that this area has been called the "Point Peins of Lake Ontario".

Mr. Weir said the area is an excellent site for observing autumn insect migrations of Monarch Butterflies and dragonflies and impressive flights of migrating hawks.

The potential of the point was discovered by the Kingston club in 1969 and studies have been conducted here regularly since then. "The point continues to supply us with good records," said Mr. Weir.

Only one such observatory presently exists on the Canadian side of the Great Lakes. The Prince Edward Point Observatory will complement that of the Long Point Bird Observatory on Lake Erie.

Milk Sampler

Earl Wannamaker of Wellington takes sample of milk from a Demorestville area bulk tank with a pipette. Sample is put in a small plastic sample bottle and kept on ice until it reaches the milk plant.

Bulk Milk Carriers Face Off-beat Problems in Job

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

WELLINGTON — Betty Farmers, when converting from ordinary milk to bulk milk, are urged by the Milk Marketing Board to cater to the bulk milk hauler and make his pick-ups pleasant. Earl Wannamaker, a local milk hauler says some of his pick-ups are anything but pleasant.

Mr. Wannamaker, who has been hauling bulk milk for five years, commences his daily run at 5:30 a.m. picking up bulk milk across the full width of Prince Edward County, covering a distance of between 125 and 150 miles. Occasionally, severe winter storms make it necessary for the bulk haulers in the county to work late at night.

The trucks, which carry a capacity load of 32,000 pounds of milk, rumble into the farmyard at varying times of the day, and says Mr. Wannamaker, under varying conditions and atmosphere".

"The bulk hauler's biggest problem," emphasizes Mr. Wannamaker, "is getting into yards where we have to drag the milk line across the barnyard.

"One farmer lets his cows wander over the roadway which regulations dictate is there for us to walk on. Bulk haulers are supposed to be clean and sanitary in every respect; how can we be clean when we must walk through mud and cow manure?"

The quality of milk in a bulk tank is determined by reading a dip stick and letter rag to a wall chart which gives the quantity in pounds. Mr. Wannamaker says that farmers often clean the bulk tanker register instead dip stick readings.

"There is a right way and a wrong way to read bulk dip sticks," remarks Mr. Wannamaker.

When the route are completed, the bulk trucks, fitted with the refrigerated milk samples, removed from each producer's bulk tank with a "sanitary pipette", similar to an ordinary drinking straw, and deposited in tiny sample bottles, deliver the milk to plants in Kingston, Napanee, Foxboro and local milk factories round Prince Edward County.

Mr. Wannamaker, although enjoying his job as a bulk hauler, considers it "been are some days though when it really gets on your nerves."

East Lake Russian Blue One of Canada's Top Cats

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

EAST LAKE — Champion Cas-Mar Thorvald of Pichin recently proved he is top cat in Prince Edward's feline pedigree and dispelled all myths related to the unlucky number 13.

This aristocratic Russian Blue owned by Mrs. Marion Dunkley of the Pichin Cattery, East Lake, has been judged Best Cat in Canada for 1975. He is one of approximately 20 Russian Blues in the country. Seven of these seasonal cats are owned by Mrs. Dunkley who developed an interest in the breed after seeing a photo of a Russian Blue as a child in Britain.

Her champion's impressive win followed a stint in show business last fall. Two-year-old feline campaigned at cat shows in London, Toronto, Montreal, Quebec City and Niagara Falls amassing top major centres.

In a total of eight shows, "Thor" captured enough points to establish his rank as lucky 13 in national all-breeds competition.

He will join the cream of Canada's cat crop in Kingston June 7 and 8 when a cat show and awards night will be held at the Jock Hardy Arena. The top 15 cats in the country have been invited to attend this gala which also offers show classes for household pets. It is sponsored by Limestone City Cat Club of Kingston.

Mrs. Dunkley raised Thor to his six after buying him as a kitten about eight weeks old.

She says Russian Blues are distinctive in appearance with short blue-grey coats, topped with lighter color. The planes of the head are clean-cut and wide and the eyes are a vivid green.

These unusual felines are exceptionally quiet in comparison with other breeds such as the Siamese.

Although Thor may be the cat's pajamas on the show circuit, back home at Pichin he shares the limelight with Mrs. Dunkley's Kamel Hounds, Ralph and Rebecca.

In addition to her interest in raising and showing cats, Mrs. Dunkley trains and shows kennel hosts in obedience trials.

Popularity of Mopeds Concerns Police Chief

PICTON — Mixed emotions have greeted the arrival of the moped in Picton, Edward County.

Tom Campbell of Canadian Tire Corp. says sales of the new motorized bicycles are good.

His recent purchaser, Mrs. Allan Hyatt of RR 1, Picton, a German immigrant says the Mins have always been popular in Germany where the price of gasoline is expensive. Mrs. Hyatt, a veteran moped driver, bought the bike for her daughter to use as transportation to work this summer, but admits, "We've all been driving it around."

Picton Police Chief Charles Fletcher, however, said he is "concerned that there is no safety standard for these bikes."

I am not 100-per-cent against them, but I feel there should be some strict regulations concerning them," Chief Fletcher continued.

Under the Highway Traffic Act doesn't require drivers of mopeds to wear protective headgear or license their vehicles, and anyone over the age of 14 may ride them.

Chief Fletcher expressed concern over the lack of contact with police concerning newly introduced vehicles and legislation, if any, concerning them.

"I don't like to see mopeds, snowmobiles etc. come out with personality or legislation, and wait until accidents before doing anything."

Chief Fletcher predicts that unless amendments to the Act are made, there will be more strict legislation introduced, there are going to be problems.

"I worry about them around schools where there is a concentration of kids," added Chief Fletcher, referring to the age at which kids may be permitted to drive them.

"They are the up and coming drivers. We need more strict legislation. When you get a driver's license anything you're asking for a bit more trouble."

PICTON — Tom Heath of the MIK Industries Branch, said at a recent meeting of Prince Edward County MIK Committee it is "concerned" about milk producers who sent milk containing traces of antibiotics used in the treatment of mastitis.

Euromart Drafts Proposal For Relations with Canada

BRUSSELS (CP)—Eyes fixed hungrily on Canadian raw materials, the European Economic Community (EEC) is polishing a draft for agreement with Canada on trade, investment and closer business relations.

Sources close to the EEC's executive commission—Euromart—say the draft will be discussed with officials in Ottawa this month.

Sources here told The Canadian Press that the current draft would establish a joint commission of EEC and Canadian representatives to supervise and to analyze potential economic and commercial relations and organize exchanges of information.

The draft also contains a so-called evolutionary clause, spelling the way for future agreements on such matters as investment and joint ventures in third countries.

For many EEC members, including West Germany, the Netherlands and Britain, it would edge open the door to assured access to Canadian minerals, forest products and other materials growing scarce on the continent.

Canadian diplomats here said in other EEC capitals say the main benefit to Canada would be a recognition of Canada's commercial interests as distinct from those of the United States.

The proposal, still secret, is said to go far beyond the trade agreement negotiated by Canada last summer.

Witch Puts Hex on Lang

VICTORIA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang was hexed Saturday as the legislature buildings by a group that marched through Victoria as part of the continent-wide Women's Outrage Day.

The group, consisting of about 75 women and children with a handful of men, carried a coffin labelled "Anne Jackie of the city's women's centre, was draped in black and led the crowd in placing the box on Mr. Lang, who opposes abortion.

Included among the banners was one that Mr. Lang be immediately made transport minister and be reincarnated as a military mother.

Women's Outrage Day was started by a Los Angeles resident earlier this year when 200 members of the National Organization of Women were refused the sacraments at the Roman Catholic church because they advocated abortion.

Barrett Urges Oil and Gas Be Under Public Ownership

NEW YORK (CP) — Premier David Barrett of British Columbia said Saturday night that Canada should be moving in the direction of public ownership and control of all her natural gas and oil.

"I think the first step would be a marketing board such as we have in British Columbia socialist premier said in an interview.

"That has given us control of the marketing process which is an entry-for public ownership from there.

"That's the best first step to develop some confidence in Canada about (the use of our own resources by Canadians."

Barrett was in New York for two days of informal talks with Wall Street investors and address, a gathering of American and a handful of Canadian socialists at a dinner honoring trade unionist Bernard Rubin, a lifelong socialist and friend of the late socialist leader Norman Thomas.

Alberta Seen Having Right To Reserve Oil

OTTAWA (CP)—Energy Minister Donald Macdonald says that energy-poor parts of Canada must be concerned with finding alternative sources of supply.

In an interview taped for the CTV program Question Period scheduled to be aired Sunday, Mr. Macdonald said Alberta has the right to hold back a reserve of petroleum resources and the province is plentiful but related result is to try to expand supplies.

"I think it is fair to say under our constitution there is no way in which we can say that notwithstanding that that's an Alberta resource we can't take as much for the national interest," he said.

World's Biggest Hole

More than 19,000 visitors take in the world's largest man-made hole in Kimberley, South Africa, each year. The hole, with a surface area of almost 40 acres, is fascinating and vaguely threatening. It is, in fact, an open mine not probably, the richest ever.

Between 1871 and 1914 three hundred diamonds were discovered. When production eventually stopped almost 30 million tons of earth had been taken out of the Big Hole. The mine had produced more than 14.5 million carats of diamonds worth $60 million.

Now there's more here for the visitor than just the Big Hole. An open-air museum has been built next to the mine showing the early history of Kimberley from the time when a boy, R. J. Jacobs, picked up the first diamond on his father's farm. The museum includes colonial-style copies of the buildings of that time as well as actual buildings brought to the museum and rebuilt on the site.

It was here that Cecil John Rhodes made his vast fortune in diamonds—a fortune he used to settle Rhodesia and build his dream of a vast, unbroken African map from the Cape to Cairo.

His portrait, together with other figures of the time, hangs in Kimberley's Mayor's Parlor. Visitors from the diamond mines are invited, being in the majority.

Diamonds still are not a thing of the past in Kimberley. Four of the original mines still are working and along with two others that are close to Kimberley, yield around 2.5 million carats annually.

Tourists can follow a diamond route that has been mapped out which runs through Kimberley's main street, covering a little more than one mile, stretches from Potchefstroom in the north to Victoria West in the south. The Diamond Route is becoming increasingly popular with visitors.

In the northern Cape area semi-precious stones abound, including the famed tiger's-eye.

Brewers Around Globe Are Studied

SALFORD, England (CP) — A team from the department of economics and geography at University of Salford, in northwest England, has launched an international study of the brewing industry.

The inquiry, headed by department lecturer Anthony Cockerell and supported by a grant from the British Social Science Research Council, will look at brewing in Britain, the United States, Belgium, France, West Germany, Japan and Italy.

It will explore the reasons for a noticeable swing towards larger brewing firms, attempting to establish whether large firms are more efficient than small ones and, if so, whether any savings in cost reach the consumer.

Types of beer for sale will also be studied. In Britain, top fermented beer, which up about 40 per cent of total beer production.

Cockerell, who has conducted similar studies in world about production, said he hopes to complete the report on beer by the end of the year.

To Be Both Old and Chinese Is Tough Role in Edmonton

By ALAN ARROKUSK

(CP) — To be old in Canadian society today is tough enough but to be old and Chinese, with little or no English presents a special problem.

A federal government project run in conjunction with the 120-member Chinese United Church of Canada is trying to meet that problem head-on.

Rev. Joseph Mong, 47, said the program began several years ago at the end of Easter with the help of a grant of $4,200 from the federal government.

"We made a frontal attack on the problems faced by elderly Chinese who are poor, ill or senile. The program was already looking for the limitations of its budget and he expanded church support and a number hereby the world of assistance.

The group started by inviting Chinese films to a crowd of about 75 in the tiny church's basement. Mr. Mong said the films were soon not available by the National Film Board.

The growing program is also under way with a $5,000 grant made on the first for calls. About 40 will eventually get visits.

Most of those are women living in the province's apartments near the church in an area of Edmonton Mr. Mong described as a slum. He said they have no family and few friends and a good deal of English, although many have been in this country for decades.

Some will be interviewed at home and are afraid to go and anyway, they couldn't do it. The Western Food which would be served, he said. They have a hard time telling doctors and nurses they don't feel well and many stay in bed all day rooms, sharing kitchen and bathroom facilities, until they are seriously ill.

One aspect of the visiting program which is being considered is a health clinic.

Clinics in the area have complained that such a project would be bad for business and Mr. Mong said the group is making sure of its legal position before it starts. It needs five Chinese volunteer nurses from University Hospital and to take blood-pressure readings and do other basic tests.

The church also has a telephone service for the elderly to call if they need help or advice.

The elderly Chinese, while not destitute, are not rich with their pensions and provincial assistance, said Mr. Mong said he would like to interest the government in building low-cost housing in the area on land the church holds.

All well as the films and visits, the program plans to open a centre and library at the city church, art classes given by a Chinese commercial artist and a newspaper about what's going on in the province.

Mr. Mong said the group is making sure of its legal position before it starts. It needs five Chinese volunteer nurses from University Hospital and to take blood-pressure readings and do other basic tests.

The church also has a telephone service for the elderly to call if they need help or advice.

Policemen Often Feel Frustrated

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Policemen "often feel pretty frustrated" as they see their efforts go unrewarded, says L. H. Nicholson, former commissioner of the RCMP.

"It must seem to them, as it seems to me, that all the effort is towards understanding and treating and, in effect, being soft with crime and criminals rather than being a little more severe and severe in applying the old principles of punishment for crime," told an interviewer.

Mr. Nicholson, commissioner from 1951 to 1959, said criminals should be given "punishment for crime now known to be deterrent."

"I think it perhaps isn't considered bad an accepted action of all the things that must make the policeman feel that he is getting sympathy and support is going."

Capital punishment has its place as punishment for "premeditated violent killing."

"Capital punishment is not a deterrent, but it is supposed to be a final, but as is another.

"I think the advocates of abolition have a very strong case by talking about the risk of error, perhaps perhaps there is a fit of passion, who really isn't a criminal, but a superviewer, that sort of person didn't get executed in that sort of public event because of normal court procedures and powers of commutation.

"But I come back to the other side of the thing, the type where the professional killer man needs to be executed, or he comes out of a bank which he has just robbed and he cold-bloodedly shoots the policeman down. Or the type where a couple of people go into a grocery store and the poor little grocery fellow has a gun and he kills him.

"I have very little sympathy for that type of criminal. He's a menace and it seems to me he should be eliminated."

Kimberley Diamond Mine World's Largest Hole

KIMBERLEY, South Africa (CP) — More than 19,000 visitors take in the world's largest man-made hole here each year.

The hole, with a surface area of almost 40 acres, is fascinating and vaguely threatening. It is, in fact, an open mine not probably, the richest ever.

Between 1871 and 1914 three hundred diamonds were discovered. When production eventually stopped almost 30 million tons of earth had been taken out of the Big Hole. The mine had produced more than 14.5 million carats of diamonds worth $60 million.

Now there's more here for the visitor than just the Big Hole. An open-air museum has been built next to the mine showing the early history of Kimberley from the time when a boy, R. J. Jacobs, picked up the first diamond on his father's farm. The museum includes colonial-style copies of the buildings of that time as well as actual buildings brought to the museum and rebuilt on the site.

It was here that Cecil John Rhodes made his vast fortune in diamonds—a fortune he used to settle Rhodesia and build his dream of a vast, unbroken African map from the Cape to Cairo.

His portrait, together with other figures of the time, hangs in Kimberley's Mayor's Parlor. Visitors from the diamond mines are invited, being in the majority.

Diamonds still are not a thing of the past in Kimberley. Four of the original mines still are working and along with two others that are close to Kimberley, yield around 2.5 million carats annually.

Tourists can follow a diamond route that has been mapped out which runs through Kimberley's main street, covering a little more than one mile, stretches from Potchefstroom in the north to Victoria West in the south. The Diamond Route is becoming increasingly popular with visitors.

In the northern Cape area semi-precious stones abound, including the famed tiger's-eye.

Brewers Around Globe Are Studied

SALFORD, England (CP) — A team from the department of economics and geography at University of Salford, in northwest England, has launched an international study of the brewing industry.

The inquiry, headed by department lecturer Anthony Cockerell and supported by a grant from the British Social Science Research Council, will look at brewing in Britain, the United States, Belgium, France, West Germany, Japan and Italy.

It will explore the reasons for a noticeable swing towards larger brewing firms, attempting to establish whether large firms are more efficient than small ones and, if so, whether any savings in cost reach the consumer.

Types of beer for sale will also be studied. In Britain, top fermented beer, which makes up about 40 per cent of total beer production.

Cockerell, who has conducted similar studies in world about production, said he hopes to complete the report on beer by the end of the year.

Leek and Potato Soup

one lb. leeks
one lb. potatoes
¼ cup butter
¼ cup chopped onion salt to taste
dash white pepper
two cups milk
1½ cups light cream
one cup light cream chilled three cups chicken bouillon chives, parsley or watercress garnish

Cut off most of the dark green part of the leeks, the roots and the tips, leaving the pale green and white. (You will need about four leeks.) Split one side and thoroughly wash every all sand and grit. Slice crosswise into ¼ inch thick pieces.

Melt butter or margarine in a large pot or Dutch oven. Sauté leeks and chopped onion over gentle heat until they are soft and golden, about five minutes. Do not brown. Add potatoes, which have been cubed, (two cups), chicken bouillon, salt, pepper. Bring to boiling and simmer 45 minutes (until potatoes are soft). Remove from heat and puree mixture into blender or mix by hand until smooth. Heat milk or cream until it bubbles and add to mixture; mix well. Refrigerate, covered, six hours, or overnight. Add chilled cream, mixing well before serving. Garnish with chives, parsley or watercress. (This soup may be served hot, too.)

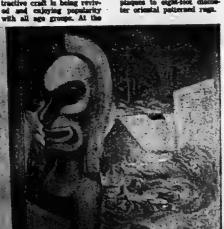
Rug-hookers Display Work

Arranging their display at the rug-hooking exhibit at Loyalist College Saturday are Dorothy Haight of Trenton and Nan Rankin of Deseronto, members of the Quinte Rug Hooking Guild.

They were among rug-hookers from cities, towns and villages throughout the area, where this useful and attractive craft is being revived and enjoying popularity with all age groups. At the day-long show there were examples of work done by beginners and by experts, ranging from small wall plaques to eight-foot, diameter oriental patterned rugs.



Good to See You Again!

Margaret Madden of Victoria Avenue makes the reacquaintance of this Indian totem by Emily Carr, one of the realistic and yet strangely dream-like paintings in the exhibit hanging in the Carby Library Art Gallery until May 23. A friend for many years with the artist, Mrs. Madden remembers Emily Carr primarily as a good and kindly person, whose image, she says, has been much distorted by others.

Emily Carr's Friend Recalls Her Kindness

To one of the viewers of the Emily Carr exhibition now hanging in the Carby Library Art Gallery, the paintings do much more than bring to mind art lovers.

For Marjorie Madden they bring back a rich array of memories of her friendship with the Canadian artist, who achieved international recognition only after her death in 1946.

Mrs. Madden first met Emily Carr when she was cared for by her family in Alberni, Alberta, out in Victoria B.C. to recuperate from an illness. Private nursing was not the board with the artist, was hired by her parents with plenty of room for guests to join her and her pet monkey Woo.

"We used to dress the monkey up and take him on a bus downtown," recalls Mrs. Madden, "It really was such a cute little thing."

Perhaps eccentricities, such as keeping a monkey, were responsible for Emily Carr's personal reputation being distorted through the years. Mrs. Madden is anxious to get across her impression of the woman who treated her kindly as her first visitor's star, and again as a second visit several years later.

She was the most gener-ous, thoughtful person," says Margaret Madden.

"She would leave hampers of food at the doors of needy persons, without letting any one find it was she who did it. That's the kind of Emily Carr that no one seems to understand. She had a heart of gold."

She'd read to me as I knitted, and I'd listen to her as she was working on her pottery. But I never disturbed her when she was painting. She had to be alone for that," Mrs. Madden says.

Emily Carr's deep admiration for the Indians of the west coast area became the source and subsistence of her paintings. As time went by, her artistic she continued to grow and change, and turned to more abstract representations of the totems and forests of B.C.

"I still prefer the earlier, more realistic paintings," says Mrs. Madden, pointing out two or three now in the gallery that she remembers, from the days she spent with the artist.

Mrs. Madden has brought to the Carby Library two postcards, dated 1941 and 1944, sent to her by Emily Carr. One of these is handmade, and valuable both as an art object and souvenir.

Ann Landers

Love Me, Let Me Live

Dear Ann Landers: This may be one of the strangest letters you have ever received. Yet, isn't it worth a try? I am married, divorced, and (since I don't feel sorry for me. After all, we are all living. From the looks of things, I'm one of the luckier ones.) But, I'm desperately lonely. Do you think you can help me?

Three years ago I married a handsome, charming widower. I was 31, (Sam), the doctor told me the truth of once because I insisted on knowing. He said I would probably become ill at once. I'm a victim of a crisis time in my life. (I had just gone through a divorce and losing children is no joke.)

Would you believe I had to move out of town in a hurry after only three months of marriage because of a normal pregnancy? I was sick as a dog. I couldn't keep anything down. I was confined to my home for the entire nine months. Although I could get up, I couldn't dress, bathe, or even put on my make-up. I was completely bedridden. Sam made my meals, cleaned house, and took care of me. Our doctor refused to use the same anesthesia I was given. Consequently, I was treated like some sort of a leper. Everyone was afraid to come near me.

After I moved in this distant city my life changed dramatically. No one here knows of my illness and I am hospitalized one month about. I work part-time and keep busy. I have a few friends, but mostly, am involved with community activities, and I participate in sports. What a pity that I had to move to a city where nobody knew me in order to have a normal life!

Although I may look like the girl next door, I'm not. I have been divorced the only one I've ever had. I don't want to be married. I don't want to be tied. And of course if I fear that I'm married as I was once before.

The purpose of this letter, Ann Landers, is to help others who should they encounter someone in their life's pattern which is in the same boat. I'm in love with a wonderful man. He's single. You have the way to help. Here's how are the ways:

1. Treat me like a human being. Don't put me on a pedestal.

2. Don't put me down. Don't criticize just as you do.

3. Stay off the subject of illness, appointments and insurance. (Hesitations are especially guilty of this.)

4. Forgive. I have a disease. I'll do better if I don't know it's on your mind.

5. Don't be too out. Develop a relationship with me. You can't imagine how much I need it. I've been alone 20 years. (Today that's a long time.) Don't be afraid to love another human being. I'm another!

6. Hire me. If I'm productive I will live longer. If I'm buried I will die. Please don't bury me. Let me work and live and raise your taxes.

7. Give me a chance. Call me. Don't be afraid. They support research and start the polio to cure it.

8. Get acquainted. Send me a letter. Tell me how you feel. Be careful it caught early.

9. Trust me. Don't be afraid this is to be truthful under the circumstances.

10. Love me! Enjoy me! I have a lot to give.—(I Need It Badly)

Dear Anybody: What a beautiful and courageous letter! You've summed up the problem of many people today. You've also given some good advice. I hope it will help someone.

Confidential to Every Evaluation Please: I suspect that there is just there. Don't worry, you're not alone—superficial and irresponsible.

Baby Sitting Service

Countess Organizes Roman Grannies

ROME (Reuter) — An enterprising Roman countess has launched a baby-sitting service with a difference—the baby-sitters are grannies.

The service is designed for families who are reluctant to leave their children in the hands of teenage girls or strangers. So they spend an evening out.

Countess Donna Cornelia Rasponi, who is behind the scheme, explained at her "girls." Of 200 applications only 50 were accepted only 10.

"They have to provide me with a medical certificate and I want to meet them myself. They're reliable and conscientious," she said.

The countess, who runs an avant-garde cinema in Rome, got the idea from a friend, and she never expected so much interest in her idea. A series of articles in the local press and appearances on radio and television have given wide publicity to the scheme.

"It all goes well—and I'm confident it will—I hope to set up a similar agency in Milan and Naples," the countess declared, herself a grandmother.

But why should Romani prefer their grannies? Most often to elderly ladies? Several reasons, said the countess. First, they have already brought up their own families and know how to treat children with tact, understanding and love. Secondly, they are generally qualified, the countess said, "to tell stories and correct a first-class education, which is crowded with branches becoming blunder, others leaving shortages and stylings, unnecessary and unwanted fullness and intricate trim performed behind closed doors. Prices are not bad, considering the manufacture and packaging—but the quality is not there. Generally, 35 per cent and higher.

From a country of small pants, Hungary has developed its textile industry in recent years with modern looking and wearing machinery from Russia and Switzerland. Production is extensive, and cotton, wool and synthetics are combined and redesigned in Hungary's own workshops.

Community Support Can Help Parents

Junior is bound to give you moments of perplexity, sometimes anger. Certainly not parent hood. Children are not parent hood. Children are not baffled from time to time.

Some of the ways you cope to avoid could be avoided entirely if your love or affection, recreation or part-time fun from one of your agencies. This is true of not only schools, but churches, playgrounds, clubs, and recreation, as well as recreation centres.

Good principles of living can be absorbed into the child's framework, which is a natural part of his everyday life and activities. When it comes to Christian living, the Christian Education program teaches Sunday attendance at church schools is much to be said for it.

If the right kind of right and wrong, good principles are instilled in John and Mary by those who are of the Christian stage, such principles are likely to stick by them when they are confronted with sticky situations later on.

Dear Doris: I haven't driven my place for the last six months. I don't like it. I am a fag. I haven't written my letters either.

You said "What's the matter?" All I can really say is nervous. I get in a depression. In one week I've lost ten pounds.

Yes, I'm taking medicine and smoke to recuperate a few of the ways and wherefores. One reason is no appetite and there is a vicious circle there because my mouth is so sore and I would rather just drink cold water.

Since retirement I'm not only wearing out, I'm rusting out. Don't say "Do you remember?" I spend too much time alone.

Dear Nan: At 41 it is not easy to battle cancer, especially when a large part of your life is at stake. Many people like you and will invite you to their homes. Don't overdo it, but do not hide yourself. Let your friends help you. Ask your daughters just to give us—and accept their help.

Confidential to Sunny's Grandmother: Sunny will also be 5 in June. It sounds like you were never able to see fully what you have been missing. Don't be sad. Make the most of it. Get out and enjoy the sunshine. I spend as much time as possible outdoors.

Dear Doris: I'm getting married soon. I'm in the nursery school. I'm fed up with sitting on the floor. Can you help me? Also my

Law Sought to Forbid Setting Own Salaries

GRAVENHURST, Ont. (CP) — Legislation to forbid municipal councillors and school board trustees to set their own salaries was sought Saturday at the convention of Ontario municipalities.

The resolution, presented by the town of Aurora, requested that salaries for municipal councillors and school board trustees be set by the outgoing council or the school board before an election.

About 30 municipalities with a population of 30,000 or less were represented at the convention of the Organization of Small Municipalities in the province.

Immigrants and Workers Said Used as Scapegoats

WINNIPEG (CP) — Immigrants and workers are being used as scapegoats during the current recession, says Rosemary Brown, a national leadership candidate for the New Democratic Party.

She was speaking Saturday at a stop here on a cross-Canada campaign tour. Also present was Manitoba's sole-woman MP, Howard Pawley.

Both speakers denounced the federal government's recent deportation proceedings in which more than 1,000 Haitians face deportation for entering the country illegally.

Jamaican Official Critical

TORONTO (CP) — Willis O. Isaac, Jamaica's high commissioner, has lashed out at what he called racist and unenlightened statements in the Metropolitan Toronto police force.

He was speaking Saturday at the funeral of 25-year-old Michael Habibh, a Jamaican boy shot to death last week at a shooting gallery.

Ronald Ryan, a 36-year-old white man, has been charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment in connection with the shooting.

Mr. Isaac said he has received reports which lead him to believe "there are elements in the police which are extremely racist, unschooled and inhuman." He did not elaborate.

"I am extremely dissatisfied with the administration of justice when there are clashes between my people and the police."

Mr. Isaac also asked Toronto Jamaicans to remain calm and not to become emotional over the killing.

About 1,000 people attended the funeral service. All but 150 waited outside the church in the Toronto borough of North York.

NATIONAL POLICE WEEK - 1975

The week of May 11th to May 17th, 1975 has been set out as National Police Week, and I would like to take this opportunity to seek the assistance from all citizens to assist their Police Department in trying to fulfill their role in society.

The role of the Police today has changed quite considerably from its original concept. In addition to being an agency that prevents, detects, and apprehends criminals, the modern Police force is made up of specialists in other fields to aid the citizens of their community. This Police Force has a Services Branch which includes trained Officers in Safety and in Youth work.

Over 80% of our time is spent primarily in providing services to the public.

Over the past year in Belleville we have experienced a 16% increase in reported crime. The only way that we will be truly successful in reducing the crime in our community is with the assistance of all the citizens.

We are not asking that they do our job, but merely inform us of what they see to enable us to carry out our role.

May I take this opportunity of thanking those many citizens who already do this and trust that their numbers will increase.

OFL Entry Impressive In Four Weekend Tests

The Ontario Football League made its debut in Belleville, Sunday, and thanks to the first-time city story, the Mc-Donald's, the fans had to be impressed with what they saw.

It was a great weekend for McDonald's.

With pre-season activity delayed by rain when earlier attempts were being made to give the Belleville team some much needed competition, Mc-Donald's were more than ready when the test finally came.

And they can't be dubbed "secret".

After tying defending Canadian Champions Oshawa Tony's all that team could muster Saturday, right in the Motor City, McDonald's treated the home fans to some more excellent work at Memorial Park Sunday.

Matched against Newmarket Ray's in the Queen's Cup tilt, McDonald's more than held their own, coming up with a win and a tie.

That first rate effort followed a 4-3 win, in Oshawa.

Certainly club officials should now know the answers to many of the questions which crop up when a venture such as this is undertaken.

And the fans must be convinced that McDonald's are for real.

What More Could a McDonald's Fan Ask For?

By DOUG JEFFERIES

If pre-season play is any indication on how the Belleville McDonald's are about to take their upcoming Ontario Football League schedule, their opponents had better beware.

On Saturday, the Macs travelled to Oshawa for a twin-bill against the defending Canadian champions, the Oshawa Tony's and split the double-header.

In the first game the Macs bats were silent as ace Jim Comeau threw a single-off winning pitcher Barry Timbers. Belleville's Fred Waite was almost equal in his task as he struck out 11, but gave up one unearned run, in the teams first defeat.

In game two, Scott Reid started for the Macs, pitched five innings, then came off with the score tied 3-3 to let Bob Ebbert finish out the game. The Macs won the ball game 4-3 as Ebbert himself drove in the winning run. Ebbert played on the weekend to give the Macs a three man staff.)

Frank Robinson and Dave Duvall each added two hits in the winning cause as he too was credited to Tuesday jockey Paul Wammamaker.

On Sunday, the McDonald's, in their home debut looked impressive while beating the Newmarket Ray's. Once again the Macs picked up valuable points in the Ray's last years east division pennant winners.

The McDonalds won the first game 5-1 getting all the runs they needed in the first inning of the game.

Jim Clement walked to open the game and Glen Carleton came up with a bunt single, with one out Jack Jury walked to load the bases. After Frank Robinson struck out, being pitched by Bill Kinney there a wild hitch scoring Clement. With the runners on the move Paul Goodfellow singled to left scoring two more runs.

Belleville's starter, Scott Reid threw excellent ball until the sixth when three consecutive base hits put him out of the box. One of those hits was on inside the park home-run by Ron Lakey.

Bob Ebbert came into relieve Reid and was credited with the save, while striking out four batters. Winning pitcher Reid also fanned four.

The second game saw Newmarket ace Bob Domik, and Belleville's Ted Waite meet head-on in a duel where so runs were scored until the final inning.

Waite prevailed in the strike-out department fanning 11 while Domik struck out 10 Mac batters.

Last years' leading hitter in the OFL, Lee Carleton was outsmarted by Waite three times.

Newmarket scored its only run in the seventh when Joes Pigeau smashed a two-out single to left scoring Dave Day from second base. Pigeau is from the Phillipines where he was an All-Star shortstop in the 1972 World Championships.

In the Macs final at bat, they never let up. With a rash of undisciplined batters, and a pinch runner there is a rule on the books that a batsman who is not in the game may bat or run for any player) they tied the score 1-1.

With one out Carleton singled, and Duvall failed in a sqeuese play. Paul Cardal came in as a pinch runner and went down to second on a wild pitch.

With two one Steve Ling came through with a choice single as he blooped a Texas leaguer over the infield to drive in the tying run.

The McDonalds open the regular season next Saturday night at the Alemite with a game against the Woodstock Warriors. The game starts at 8:15.

McGUIRE TWINS LEAVE RING

Wrestlers Work Hard To Polish Their Talents

Professional Wrestling, as promoted by Big Boss' Sports Promotions, has made its return to Memorial Arena. And judging from the reception the performers in promoter Leonard Gerow's group of grapplers got from the public in Friday's opening card, it's a cinch that form of summer entertainment will be popular at the box office.

Whether one takes wrestling seriously or prefers to put the authority or powers to put the whole thing down as a fabrication, it is a fact that, most of the participants are highly skilled in their trade. And they know how to put their part in proceedings over with the paying public.

It is entertainment.

Like most entertainers, wrestlers rely on their years of special style, gimmick, talent in their efforts to win acceptance from the fans.

Wrestling has its "good guys and it's "bad guys".

While the Whipper Watson, Lord Alfred Hayes, Bobo Brazil, Johnson, Tony Parisi, Duncan McTavish, Red Bastien, Lyons" and the rest polish up their images as the heroes, others have built up the Killer Wahtoo, Stan Stasiak, Hell's Angels and the rest with the goal as determent to make their mark as villian.

They are specialists.

Naturally, the do not escape criticism from the fans, but the attention of the fans and attendance at the matches are what help in the important part of the program known as box office appeal. Fans are part of the game.

The Belleville athlete who helped launch the new wrestling season with a bang was definitely going for them in the crowd for promoter Gerow's success miss them.

Lt. Il Doby or Benny who makes the scales comelain under the 250 pound limit is no matter. The other brother is only 39 lbs. lighter.

And impressive? No doubt about it.

When one or the other team on one of the villains, the bad guy booed.

The Guiness Book of Records should refer to them also as Silly and Benny McCauley alias Doug and Billy McCoy, calls the tag team the beyriest twins in the world.

Both — in Hendersonville, North Carolina, the McCreerys or McGuires, are 28 years old.

They must have caused a stir on the high school wrestling scene in North Carolina.

"We weighed about 400 lbs. each during our high school days," they inform an inquisitive observer.

Apparently these two big boys don't keep track of who they meet in the ring, probably because they don't stick around long enough to get acquainted.

But they don't remember ever having been beaten at a team. Circumstances with heavily in their favor (if you'll excuse the pun).

Anyway, pro wrestling will from Detroit to Memorial Arena every second Friday night for the next three months or so. It should be a successful run.

Hellenic fell to the new-look Belleville Parsons 6-1 in the first game of the exhibition double bill.

Nick Del Grosso said it for Italo. His goal in the dying minutes rolled it out when it appeared the clubs would settle for a draw.

And it was Del Grosso who shot Italo in front with the only goal of the first half when he found the corner after slipping by Trenton defence.

Bob Arsenault's goal early in the second half put the Parsons squad on even terms. Arsenault drilled the ball home after taking a pass from Ken Clevester.

Parsons, with only three players back from last year, put on an impressive show in their first pre-season test.

Ross MacLeod and Roger Sprague each connected for a pair of goals while Tommy Britton and Rob Smit clicked for one each.

Jim Asselstine turned in a strong game in goal for the winners.

Extreme left is Belleville's Steve Edwards. Italo - Canadians scored the only goal of the game late in the match to take Premier Soccer League exhibition contest played at Belleville Fairgrounds.

SAULT STE. MARIE (Special) — Belleville Branch 99 became a three-time winner of the Royal Canadian Legion provincial shuffleboard championship here on the weekend.

Other members of the championship team are team captain Bob Mondeville, John Goode and Tom Bentley.

Sixteen Legion Branches from across the province were shooting for the title.

Others representing Belleville at the event were Branch 99 president Gerry Downs, sports officer Dave Fraser and photographer Tom Purdey.

Branch 99 will host the provincial finals in 1976.

Goode and Boyle were members of the other two Branch 99 championship teams.

Plenty of Excitement Slated for Mosport

Busy is the only way to describe Mosport Park's first major weekend of activity as Canada's only Grand Prix auto racing circuit prepares to host the Victoria Day Bonnie, May 16, 17, 18 and 19.

Traditionally this weekend marks the start of the racing season in Ontario and Mosport is no exception. Workers are currently completing the 2.459 acres of parkland for a full four days of camping and motor racing activity.

Headlining the weekend will be the appearance of some of North America's leading motorcyclists as well as the Molson Challenge — two full days of motorcycle racing, production and sidecar events. As a result, it's one event we feel the two-wheeled fraternity will not wish to miss, particularly considering we have scheduled just two motorcycle events this season.

The motorcyclists contests will be held on Saturday and Sunday, May 17 and 18. Highlight of the weekend round of the Bolova Championship for Formula 100s and 3.5 seaters on Monday, May 19. Friday is reserved for motorcycle practice.

A Sportcimet which includes the Molson Challenge as the weekend is priced at $12 while the Monday Bolova Cup events also allow admittance to Gearhead Park where camping all weekend, but only the Sportcimet holders may enter the grand stand seat. Camping, firewood and showers are still free of charge to all spectators.

Flyers Baffled by Islanders' Ability to Win 'Must' Games

Gerry Hart – Pots Winner

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Fresh and strong, New York Islanders have turned the tables on Philadelphia Flyers, tying their semi-final series 3-3 and leaving the Atlantic Conference champs that the Stanley Cup champions are about to be dethroned.

"Stanley Cup or bust," said a disillusioned Dave Schultz after the Flyers were didn't get a penalty but played Sunday's game in their own backyard, to clinch 3-1 to force a deciding game in their best-of-seven Philadelphia Hockey League series.

The Islanders, who overcame a 2-0 deficit to win their quarter-final with Pittsburgh Penguins, were on the verge of an identical turn around, against the Flyers.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said the Islanders' surprising performance has been great for expansion hockey.

"Never has a team faced the axe so many times," Campbell said. "It's a feat no team will ever duplicate again."

The Islanders have never stopped ubbling a way, tiring and frustrating the Flyers until they are fatigued both mentally and physically.

It was defenceman Gerry Hart who scored the winning goal early in the third period of Sunday's game.

The seventh game in Philadelphia on Tuesday night will decide who faces Buffalo Sabres in the final. The Sabres com-pleted a 4-3 semi-final win over Montreal Canadiens Thursday night in Montreal.

No club has ever won two games after being down 3-0. Only one, Toronto Maple Leafs, in 1942, ever came before the Islanders. The Leafs accomplished their feat in the 1942 final against Detroit Red Wings.

Coach Al Arbour of the Islanders agreed with Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero that being away from home means little in the deciding game of a series.

"But it should be interesting, very tough game," said Arbour. "Everything is built up into one game, and I think you could play the game in Moscow and it wouldn't really matter."

Almost to a man, the Flyers were a deeply disappointed team after their third loss in a row to the Islanders.

Shero could send it hard to rationalize the losses and the humiliations the Islanders have piled on the champions.

Shero went into great detail to explain the mistakes in his team's positional play and admitted that some of his players are hurt, but wouldn't say who they are.

The injuries obviously have affected his power floor, which seems to have lost their offensive punch.

The Flyer power-play has failed to produce a goal in its last 18 chances.

Glenn Resch, the little goalie, has been playing brilliantly for the Islanders. Against the Penguins, he was so good for all four New York wins, as he has been in all of his team's victories in the semi-final.

Flyer goalie Bobby Clarke, battered and tired and sporting a cut over his left eye, was pulled early in the game, could offer no real explanation for his team's shortcomings.

"The Islanders are blocking a lot of shots and we get off-fence at all hardly," said Clarke. "Whatever we have, they've taken away.

"If you don't have an offence, you're not going to win."

Schultz, the Flyers' badman, was about as gloomy as Clarke.

"We've got no third line," he moaned. Schultz is a member of that third line.

Resch didn't have a chance on the first Flyer goal at 14½ of the first period, as Bobby Clarke's shot from the Rene Leduc sheeny tipped in.

Clarke seemed to be at his best in the first period when he was alive at 13 faceoffs but then he took a costly penalty in the second period that led to the Long Islander goal by Denis Potvin.

Clarke hooked Potvin, who was in a clear shot from the circle.

Clarke had only been off the ice for two seconds when New York's Ed Westfall won the faceoff and put the puck right back to Jude Drouin, who passed it to Potvin.

Potvin sent a 40-foot wrist shot goalward on the hot that caught the corner at 19:15. Potvin said he gambled on the fact that Parent was partially screened on the play.

That goal gave the Islanders the lift they needed. Clarke began hoking faceoffs to Westfall, who later explained that he suddenly found the rhythm that is so necessary to beat Clarke, one of the best faceoff men in the league.

As the Islanders pressed and the Flyers were tiring, the tie was broken at 2:42 of the third period on Hart's conversion

Twins Capture Allan Cup

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — The Allan Cup, symbol of national senior hockey supremacy, has returned to Thunder Bay for an absence of 36 years.

Thunder Bay Twins recaptured the coveted cup Saturday with a best-of-seven 4-1 win over Barrie Flyers, winning the seven-foot games in two.

"We have been aiming for this right from season first began," said Twins' playing-coach Dave Siciliano after his team defeated Barrie 8-4 Saturday night.

Twins played the first three games at Barrie, losing twice, but came back with three straight wins on home ice.

"That was one of the better games they (Barrie) played. They skated well and kept coming back," Siciliano said. "We had three-goal leads twice but we were lot and cold."

Barrie coach Darryle Sly, whose team defeated Thunder Bay for the title last year put it this way: "You just can't spot a team like that three goals and no an absence of 36 years."

The Lakehead was a recognized power in senior hockey from 1901 until 1938 when Port Arthur Bear Cats won four national titles.

They may not have made it this year but the Bears first be-ginning executive decision which sent them into the western playoffs after the series had been suspended by Ski Bonilace Mohawks.

The Twins refused to meet playoff dates established earlier by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA), and said they would forfeit the series if it was held.

But the Mohawks appealed to the CAHA and changed their minds and they did, defeating the Mohawks then ousting Spokane Wash. in the western final.

In Saturday's game, Twins built up two second-period leads of 3-2 and 5-3. At one point in the final period, Barrie narrowed the score to 5-4 but the Twins quickly put the game out of reach.

Dave Siciliano scored three times for Thunder Bay while Dave Brangwin got two. Singles went to Barry McLaren, Mike Vaillant and Jack Byerley. Harry Neale, Barrie coach, and Ron Rabidoux, Carby Adams, Grant Moore and Bob Baird.

Thunder Bay outshot Barrie 39 to 32.

Court Battles Intervene In WHAs Final Series

QUEBEC (CP)—A bit of the storm the World Hockey Association had attached to its final playoff series this year has vanished in a series of court battles today.

The hectic dissipated Saturday night when the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association obtained a Quebec Superior Court injunction that instructed bailiffs to seize the equipment of Houston Aeros because the team owes the CAHA $35,000 in development fees.

In addition, the CAHA served notice that a portion of the gate receipts from Saturday's third game between the Aeros and Quebec Nordiques, set-tled finally allotted to the WHA, be withheld pending a court hearing today.

The notices of seizure were delivered after the Aeros had built a solid two-game percentage to defeat the Nordiques 3-0 and take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven final. The Aeros can complete their defence of the Avco Trophy with a win in Houston's Sam Houston Arena because the team owns the CAHA $35,000 development fees.

In addition, the CAHA served notice that a portion of the gate receipts from Saturday's third game between the Aeros and Quebec Nordiques, set-

Marlies Get Cup; Give Coach Bath

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Coach George Armstrong took a shower Sunday, then went home not accompanied by his team with his clothes on and both members of the Kitchener-Waterloo champion Toronto Marlboros.

The grey-haired veteran has many a National Hockey League bath but just seen the Marlboros defeat New Westminster Maroons 7-3 in the finals for the Canadian major junior hockey championship.

"They always start a bit later," Armstrong said of the Marlboros who trailed 3-0 late in the first period before scoring four times in the first 10 minutes of the game. The Marlboros then went ahead 5-3 after 46 minutes and scored both goals in the final period to claim their second Memorial Cup in three years and seventh in their history.

The Marlboros threw Armstrong into the shower and then into the hotel swimming pool in the traditional post-victory bath.

Armstrong said he was "concerned" before the game, the first time during the season the Marlboros faced sudden death on the ice.

But all times the Marlboros, Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A champions, came out on top, stretching their quarter-final and semi-final in the playoffs to all but one game short of the limit and winning, then emerging winners in a seven-match Ontario Final night with Sherbrooke Beavers.

Toronto had the edge in talent, the Junior Hockey League's heaviest 1-4 after beating Sherbrooke 5-4 in overtime last Saturday.

The Marlboros were forced to take part in the sudden-death semi-final when they lost 8-6 in a Wednesday night game with New Westminster, the Western champions of the Western Canada Hockey League, headed Sherbrooke its second loss of the tournament with a 7-3 win last Mon-day night.

New Westminster's victory over Toronto gave the team a bye into Sunday's final, resulting in a five-day layoff which Brulin coach Ernie McLean said gave Toronto the edge.

"Marlies got a few lucky bounces at the wrong time for us and that's all you need in hockey but in a one-shot game," McLean.

The lucky bounces came in the form of two Toma goals by John Anderson—one late in the first period, the other early in the second—that seemed to demoralize the Bruins.

Habs Planning To Make Changes

MONTREAL (CP)—There will be changes next season among Montreal Canadiens, owners of hockey's proudest tradition but eliminated 4-1 last week in a best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series against Buffalo Sabres, a fifth-year team.

The nature and extent of the shuffling, however, is not known at this time, even among those responsible for the Canadiens' Stanley Cup failure.

General manager Sam Pollock said after Buffalo's overtime triumph that there is "room for improvement" among the Canadiens.

"We're going to try and strengthen the club any way we can," he said. "I'm not sure how it comes up, we'd have to take a long look."

Coach Scotty Bowman has suggested the Canadiens are ahead of other clubs in personnel replacement.

"Many of the older clubs haven't made many changes but the nucleus of their teams gets older," he said. "We've made the same but there are going to be other changes too.

"Some of the teams are going to Europe for their talent now. We've never been that successful so we always had enough talent here."

"But guys like (Serge) Savard and (Ilgar) Kazmarchuk have played well," he said, referring to Swedes playing with Montreal Maple Leafs.

Pollock pointed to the three-way tie among the Canadiens, Sabres and Flyers for the points lead during the regular season—all had 113—as indicative that the Canadiens were not far wrong this year.

The team "definitely made progress during the year," he said, but added: "It was obviously not enough to win the Stanley Cup.

Centennial Cup Final

Biltmores Fall to Mets

EDMONTON (CP) — Goaltender Bob Mears made only one mistake Saturday night but it cost Cecile Hilmerey their final chance to win the 1975 Centennial Hockey championship.

Mears, who stopped 48 shots in a 6-4 loss to Spruce Grove Mets let a loose puck roll between his legs in the winning goal at 1:28 of a 10-minute overtime period. The win gave Mets a best-of-seven series in six games.

Paul Messier, whose shot ricocheted off the crease and struck Mears, was credited with the goal.

Wayne Turner tucked the puck into an open net with 25 seconds remaining in the over-time period.

Linesmates Ron Lecuyer and Keith Heintz gave Spruce Grove a 2-0 lead in the first period and it almost held up despite the heroics of Mears, Heintz and Gundah winger Tim Holder. Lecuyer, Heintz and Holder scored two goals and 10 assists, tallied the opening goal and helped set up the winner. Holder threw Hertz drew an assist on Lecuyer's goal.

Lecuyer, 20, Spruce Grove's oldest player, accumulated 10 points in his last three games and was an easy choice as the outstanding performer in the series and won a $1,000 watch.

Holder scored two quick goals near the midway mark of the second period to force overtime. Wally Keating scored early in the second period and Dave Kennedy made it a score 4-2 in the third before Holder caught Heintz.

Although he faced only 34 shots, netminder Jeff Reynolds of Spruce Grove got little defensive support during Gordon's late surge. He saved the game with two great stops during a Biltmore power play in the last five minutes.

Coach Doug Messier, whose son got the winning goal, said Spruce Grove had depth and better health than the Biltmores, who had key injuries to wards Mitch Grous and Jim Joy on defence and Dave Injuries and three other players hampered with shoulder and leg injuries.

He's Not Overpowering But Dierker Does Job

MONTREAL (CP) — Right-hander Larry Dierker proved he did not have an overpowering pitch but what he has was good enough to take Houston Astros to a 4-3 win over Montreal Expos Sunday.

"I didn't think I had any one pitch that was real great," said Dierker after hurling a five-hitter for the Astros before 14,000 National League shutout of the baseball season.

"But I had a good selection and I could move around. I just kept mixing them up and kept them off balance a little bit."

Dierker, who got the eighth Astros offence, collecting three hits in four at-bats, including a drive run in the ninth inning and driving in three runs.

The Astros got the only run they needed when Jose Cruz drilled a single to right field in the fourth inning to score Milt Wilcox, who had led off with a single.

Two runs came home in the fifth on a triple by Greg Gross and Dierker's single. The Astros added three in the sixth when Gross singled to score Ken Boswell, who had walked, and Metzger followed with his homer.

Dierker, now 4-3, picked up his second complete game of the season. He struck out four, on start Houston batted that around four double plays.

The most serious Expos threat came in the seventh inning when, with one out, they loaded the bases on Tim Foli's walk, a groundball single by Mike Jorgensen and a walk to Mike Marshall.

"I was trying to be careful with Jorgensen because he got his bits off me in the past," said Dierker. "I figured if I walked him I'd have a chance at a double play."

He got it, as Larry Bittner's ground ball was scooped up by shortstop Metzger, who threw to Rob Andrews at second for the relay to first baseman Bob Watson.

Expos starter Dannie Blair, 1-4, took the loss, while reliever Dan Dobbin picked the last inning and gave up the final three runs.

Atlanta Braves open a four-game series at Jarry Park tonight, with Carl Morton, 3-3, pitching against the Expos's Steve Rogers, 3-4.

Flying Fists Bring Royals Fans to Life

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It wasn't a full-fledged free-for-all in the best baseball tradition, but for a lazy afternoon in Kansas City it wasn't bad.

The royals' ninth consecutive 4-0 behind Steve Busby, Milwaukee batters mustered only a four-hit back attempt and the 11,185 fans scattered around Royals Stadium were stifling yawns.

Then Kansas City's George Brett and Milwaukee's Kurt Bevacqua woke everyone up with some fisticuffs in the seventh inning. Bevacqua slid into second and trying to break up a double play, both players came up swinging and the crowd found something to yell about.

"Brett grabbed my leg and tripped me, and I turned around and hit him," said Bevacqua, the Brewers' second baseman. "That's the right thing to do, isn't it?"

"He's been a dirty ball-player," countered Brett. "I just wanted to break up the double play. We were both on the ground and he put a knee in my chest.

"I hauled off and slugged him."

Both benches and bullpens emptied, but Brett got a better look. No one else threw a punch. Three players and Brett were ejected and everyone settled back to watch Busby finish off his five-hit, 4-0 victory.

Elsewhere in Sunday's American League games, Oakland A's beat New York Mets 7-5, Texas Rangers unhinged Detroit Tigers 11-7, Boston Red Sox defeated California Angels 5-2 and Cleveland Indians beat Chicago White Sox 8-3 in 11 innings. Minnesota Twins and Baltimore Orioles split a double, the Twins taking the opener 6-4 and the Orioles the nightcap 5-3.

On Saturday Baltimore beat Minnesota 9-4, Texas defeated Detroit 4-3, New York Yankees blanked Oakland 3-0, Chicago defeated Cleveland 4-3, Milwaukee shut out Kansas City 3-0 and California beat Boston 9-4.

Busby struck out nine batters and walked two en route to his fifth victory against two losses. Jim Colborn, Ellie Hendricks, Frank White and Harmon Killebrew collected run-scoring singles.

Jeff Burroughs and Leo Cardenas hit two-run homers and Tom Grieve and Roy Smalley added solo shots for Texas in a game marred by mixed fly balls. He was well as other errors that don't show up in the box scores. Ferguson Jenkins took his fifth straight game but left after the fifth in favor of Steve Hargan, who gave up Detroit's three runs in the seventh.

Oakland with a homer and double, Bobby Grich had a four-run homer for New York.

Steve Barr's two-run double was the big blow in a four-run rally in the fifth that carried Minnesota to victory in the opener against Baltimore. Rod Carew and Tony Oliva singled in the other two runs in the inning. Dave Hrynewicz gave Orioles six runs in his fourth win in five decisions.

The Orioles rallied in the nightcap behind the hitting of Bobby Grich and Tommy Davis. Grich hit a pair of solo home runs and Davis went 3-for-4 with four runs batted in. Jim Palmer, 8-2, won it and Mike Parik, making his major league debut, lost it.

Rico Petrocelli and Rick Burleson hit two-run singles as Boston made it seven wins in the last eight games and climbed to within one game of first-place Milwaukee in the East Division. Jim Rice added a solo home run for Boston and Bill Lee went the distance with a seven-hitter.

Cleveland's Tom McCraw got an infield single to drive in the tying run with two out in the bottom of the 11th and John Ellis followed with a game-winner on throwing errors by Terry Forster and Bob Coluccio.

Cards Weren't Looking They Were Swinging

Rookie pitcher Pete Falcone thought St. Louis Cardinals would look at him a couple of times before first to see what he had.

The Expos immediately found what he had and put the pitcher all over the ballpark, and out of it, taking four runs in the first inning for a six-hitter and Sunday baseball victory Sunday over San Francisco Giants.

"I started them off with fast balls," said the 23-year-old Falcone, "I should've started them off with the curve."

In other National League games, Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Pittsburgh 7-0, routed 7-0, New York Mets beat Cincinnati Reds 3-2, Houston Astros defeated Montreal Expos 4-3, San Diego Padres edged Chicago Cubs 3-1 and Atlanta Braves beat Philadelphia Phillies 7-3.

Saturday, the Expos beat Houston 8-7, Atlanta edged the Phillies 3-2, Cincinnati defeated New York 7-1, Los Angeles beat Pittsburgh 8-4, Chicago defeated San Diego 5-1 and St. Louis whipped San Francisco 8-3.

Lee Stuck said it didn't matter what Falcone threw, he wasn't missing anything, he said, "Just leave it over the plate and I'll swing at it. I'm afraid to be taking pitches."

The Dodgers got two runs in the fifth inning when Dave Lopes walked, Lee Lacy tripled and he came in on Ken Brett's wild pitch. Lopes scored on a three in the sixth, two on Lopes' single.

Tom Seaver settled down after giving up a pair of first-inning runs and a single in order to bob the Mets and their six-game losing streak.

Rusty Staub's single in the eighth delivered the tie-breaking run.

Singles by Mike Phillips and Del Unser keyed the Expos' victory over Jack Billingham and Skeeter Barnes singled home Bob McCreary with his line single to right.

San Diego's Dave Freisleben withstood Chicago's 10 hits and Hector Torres single in Dave Roberts with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning for the Padres. Bill Bonham walked Dave Winfield to open the eighth. Two outs later, Winfield stole second and Torres' single to right scored Winfield.

Torres singled to right.

Larry Dierker's five-hitter and Roger Metzger's three runs batted in—two with a home run—gave the Astros their victory over Montreal Expos before a shutout of the season.

Bullets Get by Celtics And Move to Final

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Kevin Porter keeps his cool, he makes things hot for the opposition.

The fiery, 11-inch dynamo had his temper and his game under control Sunday, and had the Washington Bullets in a 95-85 win over Boston Celtics and a 4-3 lead in the National Basketball Association final.

Porter's 28 points—a 20-point in the home games this season gave the Bullets their best-of-seven Eastern Conference title 4-3 against the defending champion Celtics.

"Kevin really took charge," said Bullets' coach Gene Shue. "Hayes. "He's the real key to this team."

"He makes things happen and he's a leader. He proved it today down the stretch. It was a fine effort by the little fellow."

In addition to picking up 11 rebounds and seven assists, the 23 points in the final quarter to blend a Boston comeback.

Washington will now have a week off before entertaining either Golden State Warriors or Chicago Bulls in the first game of the final next Sunday.

Golden State won 96-73 at Chicago Sunday, tying the Western Conference series 3-3, and now is favored to win the deciding game against the Bulls at Oakland.

The Celtics, who won 10 of 11 championships in the 1960s and were rebuilt into a title team a year ago, fought hard before relinquishing their chance at repeating.

Familiar Spot For A. J. Foyt

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A. J. Foyt will lead the Indianapolis 500 field for a record-tying fourth time May 31, but again he'll have to do it from the pole position in the back of the 33-car parade.

Foyt, with a lale afternoon effort Saturday, smashed the old Indianapolis Motor Speedway track record through for 10 miles, then turned in a four-lap average of 145.974 miles an hour with a top lap of 146.513 m.p.h. Only for late Myer, who never was headed, would Foyt have had a startling position in the event.

The 23-year-old Texan, who pulled to the rear of the field, Memorial Day weekend in the first day of qualifying for one position after another, wound up with a four-lap average of 143.613 m.p.h. Sunday, another 10-mile heat, and a four-lap average of 145.497 miles an hour with a top lap of 146.341 m.p.h.

Foyt's top knocked 1923 winner Tommy Milton out of the front row. Milton, a Wichita resident in his second starting spot, will have a pair of 16.332 m.p.h. Bobby Unser, the 1955 champion, completed the all-winner front row with a 145.923 average in a new Eagle.

Two-time winner Al Unser drew off from a four-car row center spot after a 145.572 best.

Twenty-two cars completed their qualifying runs Saturday, with another six making speed attempts Sunday.

DALLAS (AP) — Barring a w r problems the third annual $175,000 Byron Nelson golf tournament will get under way today with a 72-hole medal test and perhaps as many as 15 players still in title contention.

A thunderstorm at noon washed out Sunday's scheduled final round. Officials hoped to get the field on the soggy Preston Trail course.

Tied at 144 were Cary Middlecoff, Bruce Crampton, Bob Rosburg and Ted Kroll.

Defending champion Jerry Barber, Dow Finsterwald, Julius Boros, Ken Venturi, Doug Ford, Billy Maxwell and Dave Ragan were at 145.

Sam Snead, Jackie Burke, Jr., Gene Littler and Art Wall were at 146.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Jim: "The Bob bridge tips competition is certainly bringing out some fine tips from the masters.

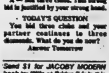
Oswald: "Giorgio Belladonna of Italy may well be the best player in the world. His tip is, 'The most powerful card is the ace of trumps. When you are lucky enough to hold it, try to play it at the right time.'

Jim: "The hand isn't really complicated, both east and west have 27 high-card points and reach what turns out to be an optimistic game contract after West's opening bid."

Oswald: "Declarer suggests that after winning the first heart, South should cross to dummy, play the six of spades and go on with the king."

Jim: "That play is designed to encourage West to use his ace of trumps right then and there. If he does, South will make his contract. West will lead the queen and jack of hearts, but South will discard a losing club and West will have his last trick."

Oswald: "West can beat the contract by refusing both the first and second trump leads. If South plays a third trump you take your ace, lead hearts and get three tricks. If South abandons trumps you make your last small trump and beat him by a trick."



The bidding has been: 13

A — Bid three clubs. This strong bid is justified by your strong hand.

You bid three clubs and your partner now continues to three diamonds. What do you do now?

Fluid in Lungs Blood Problem

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: I have been told I have some fluid in the lower part of my lungs. This shows on x-rays. I am taking a diuretic.

Can one remove the fluid completely, or can it spread throughout the lungs, causing shortness of breath? I find myself giving a slight cough in a while. I'm a little short of breath. Does this have anything to do with it?

I also cough a little almost every day.—Mrs. L. B.

The condition is called "pleurisy," or pleurisy with effusion. It can be related to a failing in your blood circulation so as to accumulate in your blood chemistry.

The diuretic you are taking is to promote elimination of the lung fluid. The cough is caused by the lung congestion from the fluid which has collected in the interstitial tissue. For now, the diuretic should help you eliminate the immediate problem, but it will not remove the underlying cause, which has to be investigated.

Have you had this cough?

Normal blood is about 55 per cent plasma, a clear, slightly yellow material. This plasma is about 90 per cent water. Normally, blood fluid is allowed to pass through vessel walls and out into the lymph system at a carefully controlled rate. This rate is governed by a delicate balance of proteins and minerals in the blood, which determine the degree of permeability through the vessel walls.

When the protein level is too low, the fluid then passes quicker than it should. The excess can collect in body tissues, as in your lungs, or in the tissues.

Each of your immediate edema problem is over with, follow-up visits will probably be made to see whether or not your blood chemistry is proper, or whether your circulatory system is beginning to fail. Treating the underlying cause is important in preventing recurrence of the problem.

You should not attempt to diagnose coughing, and you should try to get a lot of rest during this period.

Dear Dr. Thompson: About a year ago my husband had acute pain so much before the appendectomy. He has always eaten a great deal of sweets. Could this have caused the appendicitis, and could it cause other problems?—Mrs. R. R.

Contrary to a popular belief, appendicitis is not caused by the swallowing of pits or other similar objects. It is a bacterial infection usually the result of lack of fecal material seeping into the appendix from the intestine.

If your husband enjoyed popcorn six ch before the appendectomy, I see no reason he should not enjoy it afterward. Has it troublesome? by Reiff would be no bar.

Dear Dr. Thompson: Is there a right and a wrong way to breathe? Is it best to breathe through the nose?—S. H.

Yes, it is best to breathe through the nose, which is constructed ideally for this purpose. The nose tissues warm the air, and its tiny hairs filter out dust particles.

Normally, we would all breathe through the nose intuitively. Those who don't are usually forced into a mouth-breathing habit because of some nasal deformity or obstruction.

Dear Doctor: My four-year-old grandson suffers flat feet, and so does his father. The child complains of sore legs and knees, and the father says it is his growing pains. Can that be?—Mrs. R. A.

Fifty per cent of the population has flat feet, so it is not unusual for both father and son to have them. And, at four years of age complaints of sore legs and feet are often the result of all of the running, jumping, and kicking a normal boy that age does in the course of an active day. They really do hurt. Why scientists don't know.

There is rarely any medical condition as "growing pains."

To settle the matter, have the boy's feet looked at. If there is no structural defect it would quickly be discovered. Flat feet (fallen arches) may or may not require orthopedic care.

Ten Hostages Unharmed

Montreal Police Hold 34 After United Aircraft Plant Riot

MONTREAL (CP) — Police held 34 men today in the aftermath of a violent confrontation between riot police and union demonstrators at the strike-bound United Aircraft of Canada Ltd., plant in suburban Longueuil.

Almost 130 police stormed into the No. 2 plant at 2.20 a.m. EDT today after 30 workers had occupied the building for four hours with 10 hostages and demanded an immediate settlement to the 16-month labor dispute.

Within several minutes of the police charge, the hostages, including a radio reporter, had been released unharmed and a number of the protesters had been injured.

Police would not give exact details on injuries, arrests or the extent of property damage but the men still being held this morning were expected to appear in court later in the day.

Six police vehicles were overturned, some were burned, and more than 40 cars in the company parking lot were damaged.

Sections of the factory unaffected by the demonstration were operating today but Longueuil Mayor Marcel Robidas, who surveyed the inside of No. 2 plant after the occupation ended, said "everything is smashed."

A company spokesman said unanimously would mean that he would be surprised if it reached "several million of dollars, as some reports say."

Those injured during the demonstration included three Longueuil policemen, including one who was smashed across the back with a shovel, and a number of the occupiers hurt when the riot police attacked.

The 30 workers who took over the plant at one point threatened to "beat everything" unless the strike was settled without delay.

The occupiers refused entry to an executive member of the demonstrators' union, the United Auto Workers, and said police, bugs the hostages except for radio reporter Jean Lodoux, tied up.

Mr. Lodoux, reported resting today at his radio station's offices, said earlier that workers had made no attempt to interfere before the police moved in, and reported that there was "brutal carnage" when the assault began.

"There are people here writhing in pain, people with broken skulls just lying around and left there," he said over radio from the plant.

"The men said they were ready to surrender when police broke in. The riot squad just rushed in and started beating people blindly."

The violence started about 8 p.m. EST Monday following a Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) meeting to protest recommendations of the Cliche Commission report, aimed at bringing peace to the troubled construction industry.

Several hundred workers poured out of the meeting hall and marched to the nearby United plant and began pelting the plant's police guard with stones and attacking with fence posts.

Provincial and municipal riot-squad police used tear gas and nightsticks to restore order, but during the fray, some 30 demonstrators broke entrances to the plant.

The strike at United Aircraft, now officially named Pratt and Whitney Aircraft of Canada Ltd., has been one of the most bitter labor conflicts in Quebec history, characterized by violence and sporadic attempts at settlement that usually ended in chaos and frustration.

Cambodia Seizes U.S. Ship

U.S. Sends Marines But Thailand Balks

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States will fly about 1,000 marines to Thailand in the crisis over Cambodia's seizure of a U.S. cargo ship, Pentagon sources reported today.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj said in Bangkok the U.S. will not be allowed to use its bases in Thailand too wage war on neighboring Cambodia.

Kukrit also said he informed Edward Masters, U.S. charge d'affaires in Bangkok, his government would not allow U-Tapao air base on the Gulf of Thailand to be used for any purposes connected with the recovery of the container vessel Mayaguez.

He said Thailand would not get involved, even as a third country seeking a diplomatic solution to the issue.

The Pentagon sources said the marines would be flown from Okinawa to the U.S. air base at Utapo in southern Thailand.

There was no immediate word about what use would be made of the marines once they reached Thailand, but the move apparently was designed to back up President Ford's warning of "grave consequences" if the new Cambodian government seizes or harms the merchant ship Mayaguez and its crew.

The White House said, meanwhile, the Mayaguez, seized Monday about eight miles from a small island in the chain of Thailand, has been moved to the island of Koh-tang, 30 miles from the mainland, apparently under escort of two Cambodian gunboats.

The U.S. was working through intermediary countries to obtain release of the merchant ship, but also was preparing a number of military options.

Marines could be flown by helicopter or carried by amphibious ship to the island of the vessel if Thailand agrees and Ford should decide is essential. Then in some effort to retake the Mayaguez.

A number of U.S. 7th Fleet ships were steaming from the South China Sea area toward the Gulf of Thailand, but they were given no orders to act beyond that.

Just after dawn, a White House spokesman said U.S. military planes were hedging the confiscation with reconnaissance.

Some administration sources said the decision to send the military force to rescue the Mayaguez and its 39 crewmembers will be complicated by this development.

Can the U.S. afford the appearance of weakness in Southeast Asia following the precipitous withdrawals of governments in Cambodia and South Vietnam?

Former lawyer Philip Boehen said neither of two laws restricting presidential use of military force would prevent Ford from calling on U.S. armed forces in this instance.

Warships from the U.S. 7th Fleet were reported to be moving toward the Gulf of Thailand, where the unarmed Mayaguez was fired upon and seized by a Cambodian gunboatMonday.

Jobless Number Cut Small

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment continued last month its highest rate for the last 14 years, Statistics Canada reported today.

The national unemployment rate, seasonally adjusted, was unchanged in April from the 7.2 per cent recorded in March, it said. The highest jobless rate since June, 1961.

A total of 798,000 were without jobs in April, down from the 807,000 recorded earlier.

On a regional basis, the Atlantic provinces recorded some improvement in their jobless rates. However, the rate moved higher in some of the provinces with the largest change in Ontario and Quebec.

While Ontario unemployment showed a nominal increase to 6.1 from six per cent in March. The jobless rate in Ontario now is the highest since April, 1961. Quebec's nine-per-cent unemployment rate was unchanged from March. It is the worst for the province since late 1961 and compares with about a seven-per-cent rate at the start of the year.

These figures all are adjusted for seasonal variations.

The actual unemployment rate last month was 8.1 per cent, compared with 8.6 per cent in March. The labor force expanded last month by about 14,000 persons, a sharp drop from the 100,000 new work forces members a month earlier.

Man, 93, Dies in Fire While Crowd Watches

TORONTO (CP) — Hilda Arnold, 58, of Toronto sat helpless in her wheelchair Monday night as her 93-year-old invalid husband, Evlyn, burned to death.

Outside an apathetic crowd gathered at the couples' house went up in flames and only one person, a passing motorist, offered help.

David Duffie said he was driving by when he noticed flames coming from the house. A crowd was gathering on the sidewalk and he called for help as he tried to kick down the front door.

"I screamed for them to help," he said afterwards. "I had type convulsions. Nobody moved, nobody did anything."

Mr. Duffie finally managed to break down the door after about three or four minutes delay and found Mrs. Arnold sitting in her wheelchair in the hall. By then a passing taxi driver, Ronald Lawrence, arrived on the scene and the two men carried Mrs. Arnold to safety.

But it was too late for Mr. Arnold who was farther back in the house engulfed by flames.

"I was the most horrible thing I've ever seen," Mr. Duffie said. "There wasn't a damn thing I could do.

Neighbours said the couple were both paralyzed in a car accident four or five years ago.

Dockers on Job But Builders Idle

MONTREAL (CP) — Activity on three major St. Lawrence River ports resumed today after longshoremen returned to their jobs, ending a six-week strike.

Activity at the east-end 1976 Olympic Games harbor, however, remained at a standstill as construction workers stayed off the job at the site as well as at several other major docks in Montreal area.

Longshoremen decided Monday to go back to work. The 4,000 construction workers, about 1,000 of whom work on the Olympic site, walked off their jobs May 4.

The dock workers returned to their jobs following a Quebec Superior Courtruling during the weekend that both unions be legislation by the federal government was not unconstitutional.

Employers said workers at Montreal, Quebec City and Trois-Rivieres made duty calls to dispatch offices Monday night and operations began to return to normal as ships moved into docking areas today.

When is a vote not a vote?

Apparently, when it's not recorded.

When Belleville city council voted themselves a $1,000 increase to their annual $3,000 honorarium, at Friday's budget meeting. The Intelligencer was left with the impression that Ald. Brian Knudson, who spoke against the raise, was the sole member.

Monday morning, Ald. Wally Warren called to say the impression to say he also voted against the increase.

With doubts now raised about the actual outcome of Friday's unrecorded vote, The Intelligencer decided to poll the council members.

Ald. Jack Ireland said by telephone he voted against the 25 per cent increase.

Ald. Fred Rowsell said he was for it; count at the time of the vote, but if he had been in council chambers "probably wouldn't have supported it."

Ald. Jean Smith said: "I probably put my hand up, but I'm not sure."

Councillors Art Keegan, Stu Hooks, Ben Corke, Joe Cox and George Zeguers remained firm in their support of the $1,000 raise. Aldermen Keegan and Hooks say they don't remember anyone but Ald. Knudsen voting against it.

"Now, some people are just trying to be political," observed Ald. Cox. "But I'm not backing down from my original position.

"In asking all councils across the province, we were below 50 per cent of the.

"I think the increase was justified. I spend about 20 or 25 hours a week on council business."

City clerk Earl Dafoe said today the salary increase must be approved in bylaw form.

"The bylaw is being prepared now, probably for presentation to the next council meeting (May 26)," the clerk said.

Right of Teachers To Speak Defended

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Belleville trustee Richard Williams Monday night defended the right of teachers to speak their minds — especially in letters to the editor.

Mr. Williams, a teacher himself at Loyalist College, took exception to a May 7 letter to the editor by city alderman Arthur Keegan who criticized a group of teachers for expressing their opinions on communism in a previous letter.

"I was surprised by the letter from Mr. Keegan," said Mr. Williams. "free expression is the greatest wealth in this country."

Mr. Williams said he would be more concerned if there was an effort to stifle the opinions of teachers.

In the letter Mr. Keegan accused the teachers of having sympathy with communism and suggested they were "brainwashing our children to become Viet Cong in Canada."

The seven secondary school teachers in their April 28 letter took The Intelligencer's editorial writer to task over recent editorials about communism.

Closed Meetings May Be Dropped

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The Hastings County Board of Education may take a second look at its policy on closed meetings as a result of the new Education Act.

Belleville trustee Elaine Burr gave notice of motion Monday night asking for the bylaw and policy committee to consider the board's current policy as it pertains to "the spirit and letter of law" in the Education Act.

The new act virtually opens all previously closed meetings of committees of the whole and committee meetings. Exceptions include discussions at the act intends that most of these closed meetings be open to the public except when the board deems it necessary to go behind closed doors.

The board's current bylaw prohibits the public or the press from attending the committees of the whole and the committee meetings. It is also said the board has manipulated its policy does not contravene the Education Act.

The board has traditionally restricted matters of personnel and finance to the closed sessions. Many trustees claim they would lose their freedom of expression if the closed meetings were opened.

Sidney Outlines Rec Program And Calls for Public Input

A wide range of recreational activities have been planned for Sidney Township residents this summer through the municipality's fledgling recreation department.

Two months ago, the township hired a full time recreation co-ordinator and a preliminary basis until next January when the trial period of recreational programming in the township can be evaluated.

Wendy Neale, recreation co-ordinator, says a survey will be conducted this summer to determine what interest areas would be best served by department programming and to determine the best time periods in which to hold programs.

This summer's activities are generally pointed at the township's young people — a trend which Miss Neale says will change as fall approaches. A public meeting will be held in the township offices May 20 to draw direct input from township residents on which way they think the department should be moving and also to invite volunteers to help with programs.

This summer a junior adventure program for boys and girls age eight to 15 will be held along with day camps, swimming classes, playground programs and a senior youth program.

The senior youth program for boys and girls age 12 to 15 will consist of night, one-week classes on swimming, sports, hiking and bus trips.

The recreation department has also begun plans for a Junior Olympics meet, covering track and field, novelty games and softball for Saturday, May 31. In the evening, a dance will be held for adults in the township building beginning at 8:30 p.m.

For more information about any of the programs, contact Wendy Neale 968-7326 at Sidney Township offices, R.R.3, Belleville.

Marmora Hard Pressed To Meet Levy Increase

By RUBY McCOY
Local Correspondent

MARMORA — This village's share of the Hastings County $7.32 million budget for 1976 and the 13.5-per-cent increase in the Hastings County Board of Education budget that will be "is going to impose a great burden on our municipality and taxpayers," says Jack Reynolds, village reeve.

"The concession of county council is that the large increases is regrettable," he told village council. He also reported, "But we are just going to have to live with it."

He said he understands Deseronto and Belleville have also appealed their assessments but doubted if the appeal will be successful because the estimates are based on a factor established by the municipal government and there has been no indication that the factors will be changed.

William Shannon, village clerk-treasurer, reported the county demand for Marmora accounts is $92, $28.85 an increase of $26,660. This is almost double last year's, he noted.

The Municipality will pay a levy of $52,982.75 for schools and $20,167 for secondary education.

Crews Finally Patch Water System Leaks

MARMORA — This village's head water tank is full again.

Finally.

Thursday in Marmora's water system were located and repaired last week, making it possible for the tank council meeting to begin to refill to the brim and the pumping station to resume its regular rate of processing for the first time since October.

Two to the leaks were found in the business section on Forsyth St. and Main St. The repeated absence of environment work crew will return to the village to continue checking on the water lines north their Bleecker Service in case there are other leaks.

Deputy Reeve Grant Aitchett and Coun. Bert Grey worked with ministry officials and village workmen on several hours following the last council meeting to keep track down the leaks which were responsible for the loss of thousands of gallons of water.

140 Confirmed At Service

By RICK NELSON
Staff Correspondent

WELLINGTON — Fifteen people were confirmed Sunday by the St. Rev. Henry Hill when he paid his first visit to St. Andrew's Anglican Church as Bishop and performed his first confirmation since his consecration, May 9, 1975.

Over 140 people from all the congregation of the Parish of Ernie came to worship with Bishop Hill to St. Andrew's Church.

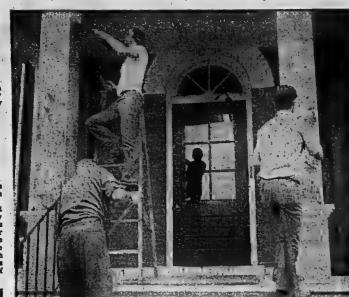
Bishop Hill has held his post since January but had just recently been appointed to be officially allowed to conduct services in his own church as Bishop.

Before Bishop Hill confirmed the candidates with them they were standing one of the biggest decisions in their lives, in making their vows to the church. "It's hard to be a Christian. To be one, you might have to do things you don't like to do and put up with what other people think or say about you."

After the service, the candidates were confirmed by Bishop Hill and took part in their first communion.

The candidates were as follows: Sharon Hillier, Mrs. Mary Hoover, Melanie Jean Clarke, Heather Elaine Clarke, Kimberly Heise Dalson, Theresa Lynn Fyfe, Gladys Bonnie Louis Smith, Rhonda Jane Hutton, John William Braidwood, Christopher Richard Hill, Andrew Dale Margerison, Ernest Allan Margerison, Paul Margerison, David William Smith, Jack Sherwin Thompson.

A reception in the parish hall at St. Andrews followed the service.



Spring Thing Begins

Shire Hall, a Picton landmark, this week will receive a paint job to brighten entrance pillars,eaves and window trim. The gracious brick building on Main Street houses the offices of the county clerk, the director of economic development and the county engineer. In addition, provincial court is held there. Workmen now are scraping wooden trim in preparation for painting.

Lack of Land Factor In Plant Site Switch

TRENTON — Trenton'S lack of large-size areas of serviced industrial land is blamed by town clerk Aubrey Sharp for the loss of new 200-million-dollar Fabricon Manufacturing Co. plant to Belleville.

The cable and wire manufacturer announced Sunday that it will build a 125,000-square-foot plant in Belleville's proposed industrial park.

It will locate on 30 acres and is expected to employ about 250 when it swings into production in spring 1978.

Mr. Sharp commented on Fabricon's announcement Monday after release of a report outlining Trenton's talks with representatives of the Fabricon plant located here.

Trenton's plant employs about 140 in its 112,000-square-foot plant on Creswell Dr.

"It boils down to the fact that we don't have sufficient serviced land to accommodate an industry of their size," said Mr. Sharp. "I feel bad about it leaving. But at the same time, you can't do the impossible."

Small parcels of industrial land are scattered in various parts of Trenton, but none were large enough to house the industry. About 20 acres north of Highway 401 is unusable by Fabricon because railway lines cannot be strung across the highway.

Mr. Sharp's report outlined repeated attempts by the town at changing the actual siting of the 70-acre building on the 30.9 acres of CN Railway-owned land north of PSH Foods Ltd. in southwest Trenton.

Two attempts to buy needed land from PSH Foods and Quaker Oats Co. met with failure. The town worked out a land-swap and land-sharing scheme with Murray after one site was called for location of part of the plant in the township.

During talks, land demands by Fabricon escalated from 15 to 40 acres, prompting Mr. Sharp to comment in his report that the company's approval was backed "with uncertain facts and p'ofitless plans." Cost of the proposed plant grew from an initial estimate of $11 to $20-million.

Mr. Sharp said Fabricon opted not to locate here because the CNR site could not be serviced inexpensively with a railway link. The site, under negotiation since January 1975, was also not served by high pressure natural gas mains.

Clinching the refusal were soil tests that revealed the land was swampy in some places and rocky in others.

Mayor Bob Patrick said Monday he was disappointed in the company's decision to locate in Belleville, but it was "good to still have it in the neighborhood."

Trenton, he said, made every effort and "went over back wards" to have the plant settle here.

With the construction of new Fabricon facilities in Belleville, the future of the plant in Trenton is up in the air.

Plant general manager Hans Allmendinger has said the possibility exists that the plant here could be come warehouse space as present employees are moved to Belleville to fill production lines there.

He has said he hopes Fabricon, in Trenton will not be closed and he the future depends on market conditions in the next two years.

Fabricon, which had planned to employ up to 250 in Trenton about seven years after production started, is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Felten and Guilleaume AG, a West German company.

Budget Highlights

No Cleanup This Year

TRENTON — The annual spring clean-up of wastes will definitely not take place this year, Council cut $8,000 for the clean-up campaign from its 1975- budget, despite earlier indications that it might reverse a previous decision to axe the program.

Grant Request Slashed

TRENTON — The Trenton Chamber of Commerce request for an $8,000 grant to defray tourist promotion expenses and a 1976 deficit was only partially filled by council.

It stayed only $5,000 to the group. The grant marks an increase of a $1,000 over what was given the Chamber in 1974.

Some Costs Down

TRENTON — Clerk and treasury department expenditures costs have dropped by $5,444 in Trenton's estimated 1975 budget, Accounting for the decrease in spending are a drop in office equipment expenditures, consultant fees and $1,000 in estimated legal fees (as long as oil year).

Funding Examined

Mount Evergreen Cemetery, The Trenton Figure Skating Club, the Canadian Hemophilia Society and Grace St. United Church day care centre will receive no outright grants from Trenton Town Council this year.

Only the Association for Retarded Children received an increase in their 1975 grant, from $985 to $1,984. The Victoria Order of Nursing will receive $300 less than the $3,000 in 1975. The Highland of Hastings Tourist Association gets $300 from the $1,800 set created to cover say-time grant requests from Quinte groups.

REAL ESTATE:
HOUSE VALUE
vs.
LOT VALUE

Ed. McCloskey
J. E. McCloskey
County Ltd.

What is the proper relationship between the cost of a lot and the value of the home on it? Question confused building economists more in the past than it does now. Old rules of thumb have put much of their meaning. It used to be said that land should represent about one-sixth of the home's purchase price. Then it moved up to one-fifth and is now one-fourth or more. And it will change again as the cost of land continues to rise.

Nevertheless, the land value versus house value ratio cannot be totally dismissed because it does, to some extent, affect the resale value of the property. And resale value determines the ease or difficulty you'll have succeeding in securing a mortgage. In this light, it would make a great deal of difference if you put an inexpensive house on an expensive lot, but it could be a mistake to have too much house for the land.

Trudeau's Two Cadillacs Might Seem Superfluous to Many Taxpayers

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Okay, so who cares any longer that Pierre Trudeau is not the biggest spending Canadian Prime Minister ever?

Conspicuous luxury and ostentatious display are often as displeasing — flaunted, almost as for all to see.

He makes no attempt to conceal his dedication to the Good Life.

The very elasticity of the scale of his spending. It has unlimited expense — may fascinate or infuriate the savagely-pressed taxpayer in these frighteningly inflationary times.

Opposition parliamentarians — Conservatives; New Democrats and Social Crediters — rail about it, but it has become such old hat that few listen any more to the speeches. Speak of the Prime Minister's lifestyle and a dozen images flash across the mind.

An $83,139 silver Cadillac with . . . $75,000 Rolls Royce already in the garage.

. . . Hundreds of thousands of dollars spent renovating and decorating red roofed rambling 100 year old official residence, 24 Sussex Drive.

. . . More than 12 million for the permanent staff exceeding 100 people.

. . . From an Arab king, gifts of expensive cameras.

. . . A $20,000 Asian holiday for his wife from a Hong Kong shipping magnate.

. . . The $300,000-plus swimming pool.

. . . For personal political and election campaigning, repainting of Department of Transport jets.

. . . More holidays, with government aircraft, than any other Prime Minister ever dreamed of enjoying.

. . . and there's more, more, more.

But the thing that really is fascinating about the people who pay . . . that's you — is the purchase of the second Caddy when one already was provided.

Under pressure from the Opposition, the Government has come through with all you probably never wanted to know about the two Cadillac limousines.

Item: The old black Caddy, a 1973 model, had 19,388 on its odometer when the $83,139.94 was laid out for the new 1974 silver grey job.

Item: The black limo wasn't obsolete and remains in use for haulage of visiting VIPs.

Item: The second Caddy was needed for two reasons. 1. When the first was being used by VIPs, what was the Prime Minister to use? 2. Mobile security. A Defence Department armoured car? And 2. It was handy to be have 2 limos so that the one being used to transport one being used to transport VIPs could be moved quickly from city to city without "inconveniencing the guest with unnecessary radio-car delays."

Item: If there was only one Caddy, and it was required at separate locations simultaneously — by PM and his wife, and a VIP in another — and the incident arose, there would have been serious repercussions for the government.

Those, then, are the points the Government makes to establish its case for having $139,282 worth of armoured Cadillacs, each with bullet-proof glass and tires.

So what do you get for $83,139.94 when you shop for a silver-grey Cadillac limousine guzzling a gallon of gas every eight miles?

Air conditioning, of course. Power door locks.

A light monitoring system.

Opera lamps.

VHF and telescopic steering wheel.

Front and rear AM-FM stereo signal-seeking radio with controls in rear compartment.

Power assisted front and front fender "as close as possible to the windshield."

Black leather in front compartment (for driver and armed bodyguard) and 725 Medici blue in passenger area.

For all this and more; a $13,412.94 bonus.

Deluxe equipment, of course, but available to any citizen who wants to lay out the $13,000-plus.

Then add $70,127.00 for what the RCMP describes as additional to the armour plate and bullet-proof "fires and glass) secret "special security equipment of which specifications for security reasons may not be provided."

The limo was built by GM at its Oshawa plant, sents five, and was moved directly from the factory with no dealer involved.

No other Prime Minister before Pierre Trudeau had one, never mind a pair of them. They made do with Chevs and Fords, one chauffeur, no bodyguards and no $13,000 limousine.

Life for Prime Ministers, even only seven years ago, was less luxurious, complicated, and presumably, dangerous.

EMO Leaves Gap

What exactly does the provincial government have in mind to take the place of the Emergency Measures Organization?

There have been some vague announcements that any trouble would be handled by various government departments.

Yet if a disaster struck in Belleville tomorrow it would surely have to be the EMO, for all its impending phase-out, that would have to respond.

The fall of 1973 issue of EMO National Digest — a three times-a-year publication of the Canada Emergency Measures Organization, Department of National Defence — contained an article by A. F. Wiggleworth of the EMO in Nova Scotia.

Mr. Wiggleworth had this to say: "Emergency Measures has been called," government acting in a period of extraordinary emergency," but it is more than that. Local government forces do provide its core, but many non-governmental forces and groups must also be involved, and the operation of all these groups must be co-ordinated effectively."

The article stressed the need for an organization to be in a state of readiness for any such emergency. What then will take the place of the EMO? How can any sector of the bureaucracy in Toronto hope to take the place of an organization at the local or regional level, under a trained co-ordinator such as we have here in Angus Duffy?

Senator William Fulbright once made a statement that is singularly applicable to the situation of an EMO in limbo. It is one of the perversities of human nature," he said in part, "that people have a far greater capacity for enduring disasters than preventing them, even when the danger is plain and imminent."

What about it, Queen's Park?

KNOWN AS TAKING THE BULL BY THE HORNS

Impossible Dream

A religious group has a pamphlet doing the rounds locally. It contains a mock-up of what might be termed "the impossible dream." That is, the front page of a journal called World News containing nothing nothing but good news. Like an end to poverty, crime, food shortages. And into the bargain, peace reigns everywhere.

Quarter of Us Live in Poverty

Peterborough Examiner

The race for higher pay cheques by unionized workers these days is watched by a million populace, particularly since the more than one-quarter of Canada's population which lives below the poverty line.

Single people earning the minimum wage are being rapidly left behind by the surging strikers. The minimum wage amounts to $4,500 per year — enough to support one person, no more. The poverty line for a family of two is $5,620.

Plumbers Best Paid Tradesmen

Kingston Whig-Standard

Plumbers have ratified a two-year contract in London, Ont., which provides for an hourly rate of $13.22. The contract will make the 400 plumbers and pipefitters in that city the highest paid in their trade in Canada with weekly pay of $468 and annual income of more than $25,000.

Of course the world has never been thus, and human nature and politics being what they are, it may never be thus.

Yet it can still remain the ideal. Mankind can never give up its search for a better world, to combat the inequalities, dangers, crimes, loneliness and all the other pitfalls of this life. Another religious paper tells of the discovery of two bodies in a mountainous area of Thailand and they are believed to be those of two nurses abducted by bandits at gunpoint some time ago. Another report discusses child abuse in Britain and notes that two children die daily from parental abuse in England. The problem here too, an apparently universal problem in fact.

And of course there are wars and rumours of war, and polarization of opposing ideologies in the world. There is hunger, outright starvation, and millions are dying. In Toronto area in recent days three children: a girl of 11, her two-year-old brother and another two-year-old were struck and killed by a freight train. And in Orlando, Fla., four-year-old twin boys are both suffering from leukemia, and their parents have been struggling to pay $20,000 in medical bills. Yes — $20,000.

In the nature of things then, this world is full of peril, tragedy, and uncertainty. The big powers know that only through mutual strength — it has been called the "balance of terror" — will peace be maintained with any certainty. This reflects not only fear, but man's natural competitiveness, not to say aggressiveness — without which, incidentally, there would remain only passivity.

Most Asian 'Client States' Phase Out American Influence

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

"Client state" is a precise term probably created by the American political scientist which means what it says. There are certain countries, clients of arms, aid and assistance from the world's top per-powers.

It is now being used in reference to South Vietnam, until April 30, a client state of the United States and now presumably of Communist China. In the words of the weapon used by the Viet Cong and North Viet. namese, which is the end were substantial, South Vietnam might be a client state of the Soviet Union.

The remaining American client states in Southeast Asia want to get out of that relationship as fast as they can with the change in the order of political power in Indochina.

Thailand which is neighbor to the new Marxist regime in Cambodia, was a major American base during the Vietnam war with airfields and military establishments throughout the country.

But the Thai government has informed Washington all of U.S. troops and equipment must be out of the country by next summer. And U.S. troops withdrawal has already commenced.

South Korea, another U.S. client state, contains about 35,000 American troops, some of them with families, and the possibility of another invasion from the north like the one which started the Korean war June 25, 1950.

But South Korea's economic recovery was largely a result of massive inputs of U.S. funds and branch plant operations. Like Thailand, South Korea's American client state in Southeast Asia, South Korean prosperity would not have been possible without the huge American involvement.

The Philippines republic, related to the United States than any other Asian country, has also become American territory, also many U.S. military bases and considerable seasonal and U.S. withdrawal from naval facilities initialed by America since the days of the Spanish-American War.

Only Taiwan among the remaining Asian nations relying on U.S. economic and military power for sustenance does not want to change its status. If anything its position might have been strengthened by the Vietnamese debacle. Taiwanese emphasis on the basics nature of the island nation against Asian communism.

There are also the client states of the major Communist powers as well. North Vietnam, North Korea and Cambodia being the chief. And in their cases, it is hard to say which large Communist nation, China or Russia has the major role.

The expression has been given wider use than that by neo-conservative, usually military specialists and worried publicians who see Communist influence spreading even further through 'technologies' of great power aid and assistance.

Therefore the neo-Marxist republic of Guinea in Africa as well as Egypt are "client states" not directly controlled by Russia or China but beholden economically and in Cuba's case, militarily without Russian assistance.

NDP Deserves Credit For Pollution Fight

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — The government's new program for protection of workers in mines from environmental dangers must be regarded as creditable and progressive.

Also major.

In the first instance the program only applies to mines and mills employing 50 or more persons. Secondly, permanent financial benefits, then it will be applied to miners suffering early stages of infection from silicosis.

It will cover workers with advanced silicosis out of the mines and give them disability allowances and permanent financial benefits, then it will be applied to miners suffering early stages of infection from silicosis.

It will cover workers with advanced silicosis out of the mines and give them disability allowances and permanent financial benefits, then it will be applied to miners suffering early stages of infection from silicosis.

Credit for this advance in our social atmosphere goes to the NDP and its predecessor, the CCF.

The party has been drumming away steadily at this question of industrial pollution for years.

At long as 30 years ago Robert Carlin, the CCF member the later turned Labor Progressive, was practically alone in the house about conditions in the mines and smelters in his home riding of Sudbury.

And since then the question has been the bane of the life of attention of the two parties.

Tradition of the correctness of the move has been given in full it has not been criticized by industry.

Or at least if it hasn't at the point of public view.

It is going to cost industry some money, both in capital outlays and in increased Workmen's Compensation Board assessments.

Only a few years ago the program probably would have met with some criticism and opposition.

But the reaction to the proposals speaks well for the more enlightened industry of today.

It also speaks well, of course, for the more public attitude of both the government and the CCF in the Ontario Legislature Board.

After all, three ministries—health, labor and natural resources—plus the Workmen's Board were involved. All apparently were willingly so.

Turner's Goal For Inflation Won't be Reached

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

John Turner's professed goal of an eight per cent annual inflation rate won't be reached this year.

Even if organized labor were to agree to the finance minister's suggestion ceiling of a 12 per cent increase in wages — which, of course, it won't — there are too many other factors pushing prices up.

When these factors are considered with labor's unabated drive for still bigger wage hikes, it appears that Canada will be lucky if the inflation rate doesn't exceed the recent level of 13 per cent.

Wage rates in new contract settlements in Canada's basic industries so far this year have been rising by an average of 16 per cent. That's twice the gain rate in the United States—and it means that American workers in more and more industries are falling below parity with their Canadian counterparts.

In all probability, the Canadian domestic prices of petroleum products will be sharply up in response to a crude-oil price hike on July 1 with further increases coming six and 12 months later.

These increases set off a cascade of further price rises in transportation and housing—gasoline, natural gas, electricity, interest rates, fuel, as well as a wide range of products for which petroleum is represent on a small component of cost," says Warren Hoyle of Wood Gundy Securities Ltd., Toronto.

Just as pervasive is the cost of borrowed money. The early-1975 decline in interest rates has been reversed, and higher borrowing costs will be reflected in increased prices on a broad list of every-day goods and services.

Food prices—which contributed heavily to last year's rapid growth of inflation—are difficult to predict because of weather as well as other variables.

A survey of planting intentions has indicated that Canadian farmers plan to increase their grain acreage this year, but that acreages of wheat, barley, flaxseed and rapeseed will be lower than the targets suggested by the federal department of agriculture.

Good growing weather could hold down the prices of meat, poultry, eggs, fruit, vegetables and cereals — but another bad season could create shortages and send prices soaring.

Keegan's Claims Disputed

Editor,

The Intelligencer:

I would think that Alderman Keegan would do more research on his subject, rather than strike out blindly at a group of secondary school students who expressed a valid opinion on Vietnam.

As Mr. Keegan said, they are entitled to their beliefs. It is apparent that Mr. Keegan has not been in a high school classroom for a time. If he had been, he would realize that teachers don't "brainwash" or "brain-wash" students about Communism. Nor do they use for teaching any of the derogatory material mentioned in the original article. Indeed, the term "brainwash" had been dead for some time, but apparently Mr. Keegan has decided to revive it. It is a term usually used by extremists.

The students Mr. Keegan criticizes are not to be condemned, if he feels they could become Communist because of their teachers' beliefs that there is not a simple solution to the problems of poverty and war in some way our own democratic society must take responsibility for social ills, as communist graphic books, V.D., drugs and erotic films.

Students today are more highly educated and informed, and able to think for themselves than were students in past years. Surely, if students are to become involved in solving worldwide adults, they must have knowledge of all political systems. Perhaps if we understood Communism that we would be better able to cope with it and systems other than our own.

I feel that the High School Board that should be alerted, Mr. Keegan, and that you will be more informed. Maybe his criticism of teachers' integrity and intelligence, would be increased.

KAREN WISHART,
High school student.

Pound's Big Plunge Sees It Dip 25 Per Cent Since 1971

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP)—With the British pound moving dangerously close to a dizzying plunge in value on international exchanges, confusion is rampant over just what the real cause of its apparently unstoppable decline.

The overseas purchasing power of the pound, at times recently, has dropped more than 25 per cent from its level of December, 1971.

But unlike other periods when there has been a sterling crisis, newspapers, magazines and specialist journals carry only the barest reports of the problem instead of the lavish coverage and analysis they usually provide. Some editors have acknowledge they are deeply baffled.

In financial circles, however, there is a lingering suspicion that the treasury and the Bank of England may have decided to refrain from supporting the pound as part of the campaign to convince Britons to vote for remaining in the European Common Market when a referendum on the issue is held June 5.

The immediate cause of alarm is the fact that more Britishers and individuals wish to sell it than wish to buy it.

But the question now puzzling analysts is why the current pressure on the pound appears to have developed so suddenly.

It is possible, of course, that large sterling holders, such as Arab oil states and multinational firms, are simply losing faith in the British economy and they wish to switch their wealth to the dollar—and currencies of other countries.

But this would not explain why everyone chose to act at this time rather than months ago, when the economy was even weaker.

In the past, the government has said it does not want sterling to fall anywhere near a 30-per-cent devaluation and has decided it would prefer to hold the depreciation closer to 20 per cent.

The Bank of England exchange rate that it has frequently gone into the markets itself to buy sterling and bolster its strength at times when it has shown alarming weakness in the past.

So the question now being asked is why the bank isn't doing this again. Britain has official reserves of foreign currency equal to about $7 billion with which to buy pounds if it wishes.

If this kind of suspension of the Bank's normal market intervention is the real cause of sterling's fall, some observers believe it may not lead to any permanent weakening and can be reversed fairly easily after the Common Market referendum.

Unless, that is, the current plunge sets off a self-sustained panic, in which case nothing short of a massively international rescue operation could be hoped to save the pound.

Scouting Makes Comeback In North Hastings Area

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — After an absence of almost 10 years, scouting, in all its forms, has returned to the North Hastings area.

Following a number of opinion-seeking and organizing meetings a call was put out recently for all interested local boys to attend the first meeting of the various groups at Our Lady of Mercy Auditorium. About 40 potential Beavers, Cubs, Scouts and Venturers showed up.

The scouting movement has been revamped in the last several years and it now is geared to serve boys from 5 years of age and up.

A local advisory and steering committee, backed by the Bancroft Lions Club, has found leaders for all the new troops with the exception of the Venturers who are 14 and 15 years old.

The Venturer group is geared toward community service and the leader needs to be aware of the needs of the community and in the way that the boys can help.

Jim Dailey, of the steering committee says: "The Venturers really look after their own affairs and the leader takes on the role of being an advisor."

The local groups now are all meeting on Wednesday evenings, and any boys or adults who want to get involved can do so by getting in touch with Jim Dailey, Albert Stapley or Ken Wilbocks.

MARMORA — The advice of Marmora and Lake Township Council was sought by a new resident of Marmora Township, Ronald Calling, formerly of Ireland, in locating a building or property where he could carry on his trade of cabinet making.

Mr. Calling's present location in the Zone' warehouse has been objected to by some of the nearby residents who complain about the noise from his electric saws.

Council was unable to give Mr. Calling much assistance in the matter as there seems to be few suitable buildings available in the township.

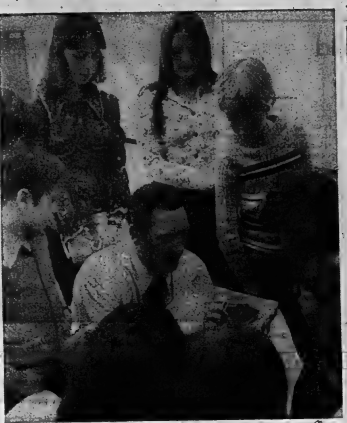
Concert A Success

BANCROFT — The students of North Hasting Senior Elementary School played to a full house last week as they presented the school's annual Spring Concert.

In a program that ranged from choir and band performances to cheer leaders and a trampoline act, the students delighted parents and friends and themselves with their versatility.

In addition to the other acts, the school's French Club presented a playlet in their newly-acquired second language.

The proceeds from the Spring Concert will be used by the students for the development of further extracurricular activities.



Lots to Do

Cub Leader Ben Kimanski of Bancroft has his hands full showing a newly-formed troop of boys all the regalia and badges that they can expect to use in their scouting experience. The troop was formed this week as part of an effort to re-establish scouting in the North Hastings area.

Double Trio Entertains

During the North Hastings Spring Concert this double trio led by Murray McCall entertained a full house last week at the school's annual concert. Acts ranged from cheer leaders to trampoline act.

Today's Child

by Helen Allen

Tommy is a handsome lad with silver dark eyes, a firm chin and a pleasant expression which can turn into an even more pleasant smile.

Though he is a registered Indian, it is possible Tommy may have some black ancestry. He has light brown, very curly hair, hazel eyes and medium complexion.

Tommy, 11, is a quiet, shy lad who is most at ease when he is outdoors. Healthy and active, he is a camping enthusiast. Recently he has become interested in sports but since his foster home is in a rural area he has not been able to take part in organized games.

Average in ability, Tommy is doing well in Grade four. He is fond of reading and he writes poetry. Country and Western "music" are his favorites. Tommy is interested in farm equipment and how it works. He enjoys woodworking and making such things as bows and arrows.

Cartoon programs on television appeal to Tommy. He dislikes programs showing any type of violence.

Tommy needs parents who will appreciate his agreeable personality. They will help him to accept and trust people as well as to have more confidence in himself. For such a family he will be a rewarding son.

To inquire about adopting Tommy, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 980, Station K, Toronto M4P 3H2.

Rural Learning Handicapped Don't Receive Adequate Help

SASKATOON (CP)—More than 40 per cent of Canada's one million educationally-handicapped children live in rural areas and are not receiving adequate teaching. A research project at University of Saskatchewan aims to change the situation.

The project, being carried out at the university's Institute of Child Guidance and Development, is designed to improve the quality and accessibility of educational services at a lesser cost than existing methods. It will directly affect between 500 and 800 students in the province.

"Unfortunately, the misconception thinking has always been: 'Get a problem? Then get a specialist,'" said Dr. John McLeod, director of the institute.

This kind of thinking had created excessive costs for individuals and school boards and limited access to special education for those needing help. It had also created two education systems—one for normal children and one for handicapped children.

"The problem is particularly obvious in rural areas where families have to drive perhaps 100 miles to get help—or worse yet, send the child to live away from home," Dr. McLeod said.

"The kids in need should be right in the regular school, year-round, not just for a few minutes every month."

The project, which has received a $47,000 grant from IBM Canada Ltd., aims to solve the problem in sparsely-populated areas and to provide a more effective method for urban educationists. It is based on a model theorized in the 1971 Standards for Educators of Exceptional Children in Canada (SEEC) report, on which Dr. McLeod is co-author.

The model suggests special education services at three levels: training for regular teachers in identifying and working with exceptional children; a specially-trained diagnostic teacher in regular schools to help both students and teachers; in-depth diagnosis and remedial programs for extreme cases through clinical centres.

About one million handicapped Canadian children require attention at the first level. The second level would help about 250,000 with more serious handicaps, while the third level would be required for about 100,000 children.

Under the present system, all types of handicaps are treated by specialists who practically exist schools in reasonably well populated areas.

Operating on an estimated $100,000 budget, the research program covers three school districts in Saskatchewan.

"The greatest benefit, of course, will be to the thousands of youngsters in rural Canada who suffer from severe learning problems," Dr. McLeod said. "These kids are either being identified too late or are being pushed right to the top for specialist treatment."

They have traditionally been categorized as mentally retarded, emotionally disturbed, socially maladjusted or organically handicapped.

Dr. McLeod criticized the "resource room" setup in many schools, where teachers can send children for additional instruction or evaluation. Such rooms became dumping grounds for problem children who could be handled in the classroom.

The faculty of education at University of Saskatchewan has, in the last few years, graduated more than 600 training in dealing with exceptional children. Dr. McLeod said he hopes most future teachers in Canada will have similar training.

"That's the guts of the problem — getting reasonably trained teachers into the classroom. And let's face it, they won't have priced themselves out of jobs."

During the next three years, the six-member research team at the institute will evaluate such areas as costs per child, parental children's attitudes toward handicapped classmates, teachers' and parents' perceptions of their roles and the emotional adjustment of exceptional children under the new system.

Dr. Robert Sanche, an associate director of the project who has studied the problem of educating exceptional children in the United States, indicated the Saskatoon project can be expected to alter attitudes of educationists.

Quiet Woman

Vivian Belair, Nonegenarian

Sitting in an armchair by an upstairs window, dressed for the afternoon with a pale blue sheet and matching ribbon in her snow-white hair, Vivian Belair presents a picture of contentment as she reminisces her 92 years spend almost entirely in Belleville.

"We moved to Deseronto from Brantford, Pennsylvania when I was only five," she recalls. "I went to school here, at Loretto Academy and then at the Ontario Business College. When I graduated I went to work as assistant book-keeper at The Intelligencer.

"Charlie Bowles — he was Mackenzie Bowles' son — was my boss, and my, he was a nice man. It was a happy place to work. We all knew each other, and I enjoyed every part of the paper. I used to like watching the boys in the Linotype room. I don't know, they were always so polite and careful of their language, a lady didn't have to worry about going out there at all."

Mrs. Belair met her future husband Walter, who later became manager of Schreiter Coal Company, "on the street, introduced by a girl I knew" and married him when she was 23 years old. During the next years, she became a regular eight times, and says that when her children arrived, now for her happy and says, "That's the best advice I could give anyone who wonders how to have as good a life as I do at this age," she says with a smile. "Get married and have plenty of children.

"They're scattered all over now; from Nova Scotia to B.C., but they all still come home to visit, and they keep me interested in what's going on.

"With 30 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren, it's sometimes hard to keep track of them all!"

Mrs. Belair lives with her daughter Margaret in the home she designed for her husband to build more than 40 years ago, and it's still to her liking although she no longer goes downstairs. She has no severe health problems, her memory is in top condition, but walking is only done with the help of her metal walker she calls "Jenny". Much of her time is spent at the window, keeping an eye on the comings and goings along the street, staying in touch with the neighborhood.

Although her husband and many of her friends and family have pre-deceased Mrs. Belair, she doesn't mourn the past, and doesn't regret not getting out any longer.

"With a family as big as I had, I was never a gadabout," she says. "I always liked being busy at home and maybe that's why I'm content at age 92. I like sewing, quilting, weaving, embroidering and such, and I sewed clothes for my girls, but I was never one for teas."

Violet Reilly, whose son graduated from Malvern in 1969, said, "I couldn't do my work at home during the day French homework."

Consumer Goods Fair Features Music, Clothes

BRNO, Czechoslovakia (CP) — Too often in the latest trend to make fashion shows entertaining to audiences, dance routines by models distract from the clothes being shown.

Not so during the fall and winter showings of fashions which was part of the 45th annual International Consumer Goods Fair in this country's second largest city.

Here the fashion industry collaborates with choreographers, musicians and visual artists to produce as they state: "Productions shows where the textile and clothing products are backed up with rewarding artistic experience."

Coats appeared as the best of the country's designs. They were in bright, clear colors and many were full-skirted. A few sported capelets and one group was lined in similar handsome dark all-over prints as their companion dresses.

Since the knitting industry is one of the most important in Czechoslovakia, emphasis was placed on printed knits both in sports and daytime dresses. Several two-piece ensembles were in a peplum style.

There is a general influence overwhere in fashion this year. The Czech show included several Scandinavian designed shoes. One long pleasure style dress was in small checks and had ruffled lace over the shoulders and down in the back.

But the peasant look in the Russian shoes, also held during the fair, went wild. One designer tossed together so many different designs and so much ruching, lace and flounces on each garment that they looked, as he said "sometimes almost grotesque."

This same designer favored high Empire waistlines in his evening clothes. Many of these had a ruffish touch as was seen in a long skirted print with large frilled medallions on the skirt in another pattern.

Participating countries in the fashion showings at the trade fair compete for the Golden Sash awards. Fifty awards are given in various categories which include handbags and shoes.

There was a large display of leather items with 1,400 pairs of shoe fashions, 130 glove models and other leather goods. Most of the Czech shoes are similar to Canadian styles but with a slightly heavier look.

The English shoe firm of Clarks was showing the thickest platforms. Its representative claimed the heavier look would prove to be even more popular this year.

Czechoslovakia, well known for its crystal and costume jewelry, is probably the largest manufacturer in the world for these goods. The industry originates 20,000 new designs a year.

Pearls are expected to make a come-back next season. Also interesting were small bead bands in 13-strand effects, in tones of black, white, green and brown.

New Czech Fashion Twosomes

Czechoslovakia presented its Fall-Winter 75-76 fashions in a dance routine at the daily fashion shows during the annual trade fair in Brno. Left is a duo of casual knits and right, the peasant influence in a printed dress and a classic men's suit. (CP Photo)

Professional Help Can Be Expensive

Dear Ann Landers: You often advise emotionally-troubled readers to seek the help of a psychiatrist or a professional counsellor. I wonder how many people have failed to head this advice because they fear the most communities now offer professional counselling with payment schedules based on personal income.

Not long ago my wife and I were on the verge of a divorce although we loved each other deeply. Professional counselling for only $3 a week helped us solve our differences and save our marriage. (As our financial status improved, our fees were increased to $30 a week, but it was worth every penny.)

I hope you will print this letter so others who need counseling won't let the fear of financial burdens prevent them from straightening out their lives.—Making It in California

Dear Cal.: Thank you for providing me with another opportunity to suggest to my readers that they contact the Mental Health Association, mental health societies, Family Service Assn., The YM-YWCA, Catholic charities and Salvation Army. Don't look down your nose, folks. I'm tired of hearing, "I can't afford $40 an hour for a psychiatrist." Very few people can—but there are plenty of alternatives.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 65-year-old woman whose hair is naturally grey. It started to turn when I was in my mid-forties and I hated it. With the help of commercial compounds I have kept my hair a chestnut brown—the color it was most of my life.

I'm sick and tired of people coming up to me and saying, "Why don't you let your hair be grey? It would be just beautiful!" I could scream. Why, TRULY think grey hair is beautiful, but I think it would make me look 15 years older. Ghosts of the women who have suggested this are tiring their own hair!)

I have changed beauty shops three times in the last two years because the hairdressers have been after me to let my hair go "naturally." I can't stand the nagging.

I tried twice to let the grey grow out and after three weeks I despised the way I looked. I felt like an old lady.

What I want to know is this: Am I being silly and stubborn? What should I say to people who try to tell me what to do with my hair?—Brownette

Dear Brownie: It's YOUR hair. The person to please is yourself. And this is what you should tell people if they come on too strong.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't want an easy or quickie. Just a simple yes or no will do.

If a woman finds out her husband is having an affair with a so-called good friend and says she'd like to learn the right to go out and do the same!—Sweet Pea

Dear Green: What do you mean by "right?" Who gave HIM the right? Getting even is not a motive for doing anything. The answer is no.

Doris Clark

Don't Neglect Teeth

The many people go through life with lovelier teeth than they need to have, so that their smiles are not attractive. Many people are embarrassed by decay, or ugly fillings of gold or amalgam, yet could make no better investment of part of their money than to go to your dentist with your problems.

Maybe nothing cheers with the same magic as a smile. It can help a lot, or if they are self, and extremely shy, a smile may suggest making a holiday, even though the trip may still be good enough for cheering purposes.

How at home people are better looking after they get the much-desired false teeth than they ever were before — and many ready to smile!

Dear Doris: In a recent column you added a letter asking about organizing a club for single parents for single persons.

I would like to make you aware of a totally Canadian organization, One Parent Families Association of Canada, which has several chapters across Canada.

This is a worthy organization helping people who are on their own and raising children. We try to work in liaison with community organizations to provide benefits and information can assist our members.

I also help problems and know through your efforts you could many who turn to you for guidance. — One Parent.

OUT OUR WAY — by Neg Cochrane

Abused Child Parleys Aimed at Easing Heat

TORONTO (CP) — Elie Martel (NDP—Sudbury East) revealed Monday a memo from an official of the social services ministry which said a series of seminars and conferences on child abuse were arranged this year to take political heat off the controversial government day-care programs during an election year.

The memo, entitled Back Burner Stuff, was written Jan. 15 by Dr. Charles E. Hendry, an adviser of the deputy minister of community and social services, to Gordon McLellan, executive director of the social services branch.

Mr. Martel revealed the memo at a meeting of the social development committee reviewing the ministry's estimates.

The memo said "1975 will be an election year in Ontario, and pointed out that leadership initiatives would be of special importance.

"One such area is child welfare and child development. Day care has become a subject of sharp controversy. Some living room contention and direction is needed to provide focus for more harmonious undertakings."

The memo said child abuse or child battering might supply such a focus for political action.

Dr. Hendry, former head of the University of Toronto school of social work, also said in his memo that in dealing with the problem of child abuse, language should be "familiar to citizens who are not specialists and who cannot be expected to follow highly technical discussions.

"Ultimately, of course, elected political representatives, themselves for the most part free of the-cull dilemma, must pass any legislation that may be required."

In the memo, lists of associations which should be involved include children's aid societies, family serv.ce agencies, juvenile and family courts and hospital pediatric departments.

Mr. McLellan said Monday that the first seminar was expected to be in September.

Day Care Plans Said Too Limited

TORONTO (CP) — The only saving grace of the government's proposal of $1 million for new capital costs for day care would be a mid-election promise of $20 to $30 million, Elie Martel (NDP—Sudbury East) said Monday.

In capital cost estimates, $9,- 350,700 of $10,250,700 allocated for day care is carried over from a $15-million program announced last spring by Margaret Birch, social development secretary.

Completion of both programs is expected to bring the total of children receiving day care to 20,000 from 40,000.

Mr. Martel said 200,000 new places were needed this year for children in day-care centres.

Plan Changes In Family Law

TORONTO (CP) — Family law will be changed to give women and children important new rights, Attorney-General John Clement said Monday.

The Family Law Reform Act, introduced in the legislature by Mr. Clement, drew criticism from Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, and skepticism from Laura Sabia, chairman of the Ontario Council on the Status of Women.

Mr. Clement said the new legislation aims to preserve individual legal rights within a marriage as well as creating equal legal status for married men and women.

The act establishes the separate legal personalities of each spouse and grants full legal capacity to married persons. A spouse will have the right to sue his or her partner for personal injuries and protection of property, and married women will have the right to act as guardian for an infant in a law suit.

Mr. Clement said clarification will be made about contribution of work or funds which a spouse makes to the property or business owned by the other.

"In the absence of any agreement between them," Mr. Clement said, "the contribution will be treated as if made by one individual to another outside of marriage."

He said the new act creates a presumption of trust where property is purchased by one spouse is received by the other.

"Unless there is proof to the contrary, the property is deemed to be held in trust for the other. This takes in bank tenancy and bank accounts or common funds in the names of both husband and wife are excepted.

"In these cases, the law will presume that the property is held in joint tenancy, whatever the contribution."

A wife will retain the right to pledge her husband's credit for necessities but husband and wife both will be made personally liable for damages arising from a breach of contract.

The new proposals were partially taken from a report published last fall by the Ontario Law Reform Commission, but in the new legislation, Mr. Clement ignored some of its major recommendations.—CP

The matrimonial home, income, economic partnership and all assets accumulated during marriage by either partner be considered equally-owned.

School Renovations Get Major Priority in Education Budget

The Hastings County Board of Education last week decided to stay within its existing ceilings — Monday night it had the longest job of cutting programs to meet this objective.

After an hour debate, building renovations and plant maintenance surfaced as the greatest concern facing the board this year — not the actual cost of renovating but the cost of having working drawings prepared, about $75,000.

The renovating projects, involving Belleville, Trenton, Tweed and Madoc schools, were placed before class size reduction, more librarians, more guidance counsellors and more supplies and services.

The administration gave trustees a list of priorities Monday night to be arranged according to the most urgent need. Director of education Eric Rasmussen said due to the pending salary settlements all of the projected programs and work can't be completed.

Trustees will be consulted on the architectural and engineering plans for preparation of working drawings for renovation of six county schools including Queen Victoria and King George Public Schools in Belleville. This top priority was recommended because the heating systems in these schools could break down at any time.

Next on the list of priorities trustees recommended that 17 more teachers be hired in the elementary panel to reduce primary class sizes from 28 to 25. Following this recommendation the board listed the hiring of eight new teachers for oral French as the next priority.

Low on the list was an increase in guidance counsellors for classes between kindergarten and Grade 6. An increase in librarians also took a low priority.

In the secondary school panel, trustees listed an increase in supplies and services as top priority with an increase of $30,000 in the general development being low priority.

Last week the board set the budget at $31.92 million which is within the spending ceilings set down by the provincial government. Salary negotiations are still outstanding, so the board can't accurately budget all its funds until the settlements are reached.

Provincial Grants Ease Trenton Tax Increases

By AL SABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON—Trenton residential taxpayers can breathe a sigh of relief today with the present Monday of a $5.5-million budget that does not include a previously threatened 30 to 39 mill increase to cover town expenditures in 1975.

The general levy this year remained stable with only education taxes marking an increase that will mean added tax dollars.

Residential public school supporters face a 4.9-mill increase (about $10 while separate school supporters must pay an extra $25 17.8 mills).

Town council Monday, Mayor Bob Patrick said the 29 per cent increase in provincial grants "greatly saved us" and avoided the need to drastically raise the mill rate.

Revenues from Queen's Park amount to $1,651,188.36 percent of the total budget.

Taxes make up the major portion (65.1 per cent) of town receipts at $3,583,241. Levy in lieu of taxes and unclassified revenues, etc.) plus a $133,000 surplus from 1974 make up the remaining revenues.

Mayor Patrick said the budget will permit the town to carry on with nearly all projects that had been planned for 1975. He said no major cuts were made in requests from town departments.

However, he did say Fire Chief Cecil Elliott would not get two additional firemen was axed as was an approximate $6,000 from the Recreation Committee Gardens operating grant.

A notable increase was in honorariums for mayor and councillors. Council gave itself a 35-per-cent increase, described by the mayor as "deserved" considering work performed by council in line with pay scales in other municipalities of similar size.

The mayor will now get $5,000 annually while councillors take home $2,700 each.

A new feature in the 1975 budget is creation of two reserves into which council has thrown $300,000. The reserve accounts $180,000 in each reserve will be used in later years for rebuilding the Dundas St. swing bridge and reconstruction of the CPR Sidney St. overpass.

Treasurer Brian Fagan said council will use the bridge reserves this year and will probably add more money in 1976.

The reserve for the over pass indicates council's acceptance of the Ontario Municipal Board's ruling exclusive the project from the town's 1975 capital budget. Mayor Patrick said he will not now make the previously planned journey to Queen's Park to appeal the ruling but that the project will likely be included again in the 1976 budget for OMB study.

Leader among the big spenders in town departments is public works. It will eat up 29.4 per cent of total costs. Estimated at $1,651,188, its budget represents a 42.6 per cent jump from 1974's estimated budget and $325,791 more than was actually spent.

Education costs at $1.3-million account for 23.1 per cent of expenditures.

The police department gets a 22.7 per cent increase to $777,1370 over 1974 costs. The fire department's budget is set at $288,380, 5.1 per cent of total town costs and only $4,898 more than it spent in 1974.

Expenditures for sanitary sewers and garbage collection, and recreation and community services are 8.1 and 6.7 per cent respectively of total town costs.

More Telephones Mean Fee Increase Council Warned

By CASH MARAFFY
Staff Reporter

Bell Canada subscribers in Belleville and district will probably be paying more for their telephone service by the end of this year, it was learned at Monday's city council meeting.

The Canadian Transport Commission (CTC) which governs Bell operations, informed council that the number of telephones in service in the area served by the Belleville exchange had increased to more than 28,000. This puts the exchange into a higher rate category.

George Thompson, Bell's Belleville manager explained that rates are set by the CTC on a "value of service" basis. The more numbers a subscriber can reach without paying long distance rates, the more valuable the service is considered to be — and the higher the monthly rate.

Bell Canada is required to report to the CTC twice a year; Mr. Thompson said, and upward or downward revisions in rates based on the figures reported follow.

Under the new rate structure, private line residence rates — the majority — would go from $5.30 to $5.55 a month; party line rates from $4.55 to $4.85.

Business service rates would go from $12.25 to $14.10 for private service and $5.85 to $6.25 for party-line service.

Municipalities affected under the new rate structure would be Belleville, Tyendinaga, Thurlow, Sophiasburg, Sidney and Ameliasburg townships.

Procedure calls for the CTC to inform municipalities of impending rate increases and the municipalities have 30 days to decide if they prefer a cut in service to the increase in rates.

Season for Painting

Jim Strachan, of Darrah's Paint and Wallpaper, says now's the time to start house painting as temperatures hover around 60 degrees. But, before you start, find out why the last paint peeled off before putting a new coat on. Chances are, if the problem hasn't been solved, the new paint won't stay any longer than the last coat.

To Study Calculators

The pocket calculator — curse or blessing to education? That's the question a 15-member task force will answer in the next few months. Here, two members of the task force, Bill MacKay, principal of Centennial Secondary School and Grade 13 Centennial student Bill Kitcher discuss the pros and cons at Monday's initial meeting. The task force is sanctioned by the Hastings County Board of Education.

Board Task Force to Study Calculator Use in School

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Pocket calculators — they're here to stay and we have to learn how to take advantage of them, says Hastings County business head at Bayside Secondary School.

The statement was made Monday during the planning stages of a 15-member task force looking into the effects of electronic calculators as today's students. The task force is composed of trustees, teachers and parents.

Chairman of the task force will produce a position paper for the Hastings County Board of Education and could be adopted by the board as policy. Due to the enormous growth in the number of pocket calculators on the market educators across the province are now confronting problems.

At Monday's planning meeting members established their goals and established a list of strategies and disadvantages. They later combined these lists into areas of concern.

The committee expects to study the impact of calculators on learning as well as its application to basic computations. The committee expects to discover and determine the concern for the basics and how they apply to this new learning device.

Some schools are now experiencing problems with students using the new calculators during examinations. The committee will investigate this area and put forth a policy statement.

It will also consider the cost of these instruments and just how much they should be allowed to own them or whether the board of education should supply them for the students.

During Monday's meeting it was suggested that there was concern of many teachers in that pocket calculators are usually misused or recognized even as a learning device. Because of this would put a board of education in a difficult situation.

Most Stations Want No Change in Hours Bylaw

A survey conducted by city clerk Arthur Purcell and reported to Monday's council meeting reveals that the majority of service station operators in the city want regulations governing their hours of sale to remain as they are.

Twenty-five replies were received of a total of 31 survey forms mailed and most operators wished to continue under the present bylaw.

Current hours are 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. through the week except May 1 to May 31 an hour more. Also 30 per cent of the stations may remain open 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. during the week and 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday.

Humane Society Still on Job

The City of Belleville, officially without any provision for animal control until Monday, has resigned the Ontario Humane Society to look after its animal control problems.

Under the contract's new terms, the Humane Society will be paid $1 for each city resident for the first half of this year; $1.10 per capita for the second half and $1.25 effective Jan. 1 1976.

Teachers Want Study On Status of Women

Three teachers federations, representing about 1,150 teachers in Hastings County, have asked the board of education to establish a task force to study the status of women in the county.

Jean Hutchison, chairman of the Hastings County Board of Education, read a letter from Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation (OSSTF) Hastings Division president Judie Carty Monday night inviting the board on behalf of the county's teachers.

Mrs. Carty, a teacher at Centennial Secondary School, said the task force would not be a "women's lib" group because but would take a total view of the status of women across the county. It would be a benefit to both men and women," she said.

The board indicated an interest but stopped short of establishing a task force until board representatives meet with the various federations to discuss the terms of reference.

The Federation of Women Teachers Association of Ontario (FWTAO) would be a member of the task force, as would School Men's Teachers Federation are also interested in the study.

CN Reducing Supervisory Staff

An unspecified number of supervisory positions at Canadian National Railways in Belleville are to be eliminated in the chain of command, says superintendent Bill Newman.

The move to cut "unnecessary" positions comes as part of a "streamlining" program by the CN, said Mr. Newman during an interview Monday.

Mr. Newman said theaction by CN's part is in effect confused as a layoff but as "streamlining."

Four Belleville positions have already been cut, but it is not known how many more will be eradicated before the end of the year. Of the four not affected by the cuts, three were close to retirement age and have applied for pensions, said Mr. Newman. The fourth position — under seniority — has returned "to the route," he said.

"We don't know how many more will be affected by the CN's supervisory and yard positions . . . streamlining must be completed by Dec. 31," said Mr. Newman.

"It's not that we're cutting jobs that are not necessary," he said. However, "it's new [illegible] necessary to streamline and make more economical the operation."

"A load hasn't been set but it won't likely exceed 30 positions," he said.

EMO Funding Examined

Alderman Stu Meeks, at Monday's council meeting, asked city officials if it would be possible to investigate with the federal government the possibility of municipalities getting funds to support emergency measures program directly.

Council directed city manager Wilbur Purcell to look into the matter and report to council.

New Coat of Paint Won't Cure All Ills

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

It doesn't really matter how good the quality of paint is if your house has structural problems such as poor ventilation.

If the walls can't breathe, chances are your paint is going to peel.

"One of the biggest problems in the retail paint business is shoppers buying paint without finding the problem that peeled the first coat off," said Jim Strachan, owner of Earl Darrah's Paint and Wallpaper.

In the case of painting siding, you have to make sure that the wood has been properly prepared and that blistering has been remedied by wedges or breather holes in the wall.

Basics, before painting, include a thorough scraping job followed by a primer coat and finally a couple of coats of the finished paint, said Mr. Strachan.

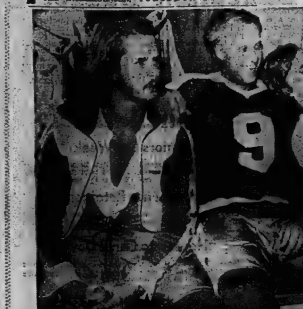
Dublin temperatures now holding around the 50s and 60s, the moment is right to begin thinking about painting.

Mr. Strachan said while it still the big color for exteriors is brown, a medium brim color choice.

"The thing is talk to the salesman and let him know what you intend to paint and what problems you're having now so he can recommend a solution," said Mr. Strachan.

"If you don't fix the problem . . . you defeat your purpose of painting over it."

He said there are many fine shops in the city where the service or the finished product can put some trouble shooting type.



The Hawks, Marty, Gordie and Mark, all well-deserved rest after the Houston Aeros eliminated Quebec Nordiques from World Hockey Association playoff action Monday night in four straight. The victory gave the Hawks and the Aeros their second Avco World Cup in a row.

Aeros Win Second Straight

QUEBEC (CP) — Gordie Howe, the legendary 47-year-old right winger with Houston Aeros, says there was friendly persuasion from certain quarters for him to retire after the club won the World Hockey Association title last year.

But today the Aeros are glad he decided not to listen.

Howe was the dominating figure Monday night as the Aeros trimmed Quebec Nordiques 9-3. The victory enabled the Houston club to win its best-of-seven final series 4-0 and attain off with the Avco Trophy for the second straight year.

With his two assists—left winger Mark and defenseman Marty Howe—Howe Monday night's victory should be his swan song as a player.

Wihkhin points to his credit last season and 99 in the season's regular schedule. Howe scored his seventh and eighth goals in 13 playoff games this year to help sink the Nordiques.

In addition, he added an assist on one of the two goals scored by right winger Frank Hughes, performed as part of the Howes power-play unit and helped confirm the role of penalty-killer.

To keep the Howes name on the scoresheet Mark also contributed a goal and gained an assist on the first goal scored by Hughes.

Defenceman Marty, who missed the first three games of the series because of tendinitis, was injured.

In addition to the three goals scored by the Howe family and the two by Hughes, Gordon Labatt and Larry Lund added one each. Left winger Réjean Houle scored on the other Quebec goal.

Following a two-day rest period covering the series, Gordie accepted the Gordie Howe Trophy, awarded to the outstanding player in the playoffs. The trophy was by Houston's rookie netminder Ron Grahame.

Grahame had a spectacular playoff as he posted straight games and recorded a record goals against.

Gordie said he thinks he will stick to a schedule of 60 games later to retire.

"Some people said maybe I should have quit last year, but

DENIS POTVIN

Sabres' Dudley Will Return

BUFFALO (CP) — Thanks to New York Islanders, winger Rick Dudley will have a chance to play in the Stanley Cup finals.

Dudley, a 22-goal scorer for Buffalo Sabres during the regular National Hockey League season, has been out of action since April 10 when he broke his left knee in the opening game of the Sabres' semi-final series against Montreal Canadiens.

"The knee has been a lot better in the last couple of days," Dudley said Monday.

"I'm real lucky because of the fact the Islanders have extended the series. It's given me a lot of extra time.

The Islanders lost the first three games of their semi-final with Philadelphia Flyers but have extended the series by winning the last three games, then outskated and outhit the Flyers to win Monday night's game 5-1.

The seventh and deciding game is set for Philadelphia tonight.

On Thursday night, when the Sabres next skate, the Sabres would have had a week's rest.

Dudley, the 5-foot-10 centreman during the summer, was a member of the Montreal Canadiens team in 1973.

"They were tremendous thrills," Dudley said of his previous championship year with the Canadiens. "I can't get too many chances in treat.

"But I never thought we would lose four in a row," Gordon said. "It's not an excuse, but we missed J. C. Tremblay." The Montreal played all four games without Tremblay's services. The veteran defenceman was sidelined by calcium deposits in his right shoulder, a condition that caused the shoulder to stiffen.

Miracles Make It in New York

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — If you believe coach Fred Shero, his Philadelphia Flyers are not playing defensive-minded hockey against New York Islanders tonight.

Assistant coach Mike Nykoluk agrees his goals coach Al Arbour of the Islanders and defenceman Ivan Walsh of the Flyers have different opinions.

The teams are tied 3-3 in their best-of-seven National Hockey League playoff series with the final game here tonight, starting at 8 p.m. EDT. The Islanders, who lost Denis Potvin in the quarter-final, matching a last period-formed only once before, by Toronto Maple Leafs in 1961.

"We're not playing defensive-minded hockey," Shero said Monday. "The goalie (Rasch) has been outstanding. He was the first game of the series 4-4, but we played better Sunday and losing 5-1.

"You could have five goals and not play that well. You could win 1-0 and it would be a beautiful game."

Nykoluk said he thought the Flyers had too many faceoffs in Sunday's loss at Uniondale, N.Y.

"If you control the faceoffs, you control the game," he said. "We didn't want to make any mistakes when we had the puck but I don't think we were too defensive."

Watson said: "We started taking it to them in the third period after we were losing. But we did that in the first and second. I wish they would have come out like that in the first and second. Sure we played too conservative."

Rosemberry's goal gave the Flyers the lead in the first period Sunday but Clark Gillies scored in the second to tie it up and Bobby Hart's third-period goal won it for New York.

Rasch, a 26-year-old native of Moose Jaw, Sask., who played only two NHL games before this season said:

"The Flyers love to sit on a one-goal lead. That's their game.

"They get about one and play their defensemen and forwards the ball out of you. They try to get you so mad that you'll take unnecessary chances and make a mistake, then they pounce on you. You have to be patient against the Flyers. Make your passes, play your system and then you might get a break.

Meanwhile, Flyers goal Bernie Parent allowed himself to be distracted from the Islanders long enough to collect a $16,000 cheque Monday. It was the first time he's been called the NHL's outstanding player in a regular season.

Shero attended the presentation and said he had no objection to his players making such appearances during playoffs.

"I don't mind us hiding a team like Montreal Canadiens do," said Shero.

"I've tried that myself and it's never been successful. My body's happy being away from the game. Son of Sir. Why do we have to go up into the mountains and look at each other?"

The fifth playoff game, which will be televised on the CBC network, pits Flyers against Buffalo Sabres in the Stanley Cup final series starting Thursday.

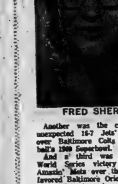
How Are We Losing? Let's Count the Ways

By MEL SUPKIN
CP Sports Editor

If New York Islanders continue their current pace of comebacks in a match by defeating Philadelphia Flyers in tonight's deciding game of the National Hockey League playoff finals they will become part of a proud tradition.

They will add a new chapter to the story of New York's sporting miracles of the last quarter century.

The first, and still most memorable, was the 1951 National League baseball playoff between New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers which was decided by Bobby Thomson's dramatic home run.



FRED SHERO

Another was the completely unexpected 16-7 Jets' triumph over Baltimore Colts in football's 1969 Superbowl.

And a third was the 1969 World Series victory by the Amazin' Mets over the heavily favored Baltimore Orioles.

The Islanders have already performed one miracle in coming back to beat Pittsburgh Penguins four in a row after trailing 2-0 in the three games in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-final.

But there was a precedent for that. Toronto Maple Leafs had performed the feat against Detroit Red Wings in the 1942-43 season.

SETS EARNINGS MARK

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — Easy Goer became the all-time leading money winner in quarter horse racing history when she won the $218,209 Golden State Derby at Bay Meadows. The three-year-old daughter of Easy Jet won by 1¼ lengths over Hesa Charger, earning $94,586 and increasing her career earnings to $291,796. The record of $270,440 had been held by Phenos Thinkrich, winner of the Golden State Derby a year ago.

DEFEATS ARGENTINA

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP) — Canada opened the second round of an Inter-national basketball tournament Saturday night by defeating Argentina 82-77. The Brazil team also had victories from Canada in the first round of play in Campinas.

No team has ever come back from a three-game deficit to beat the Islanders have a chance to do that by knocking off the defending-champion Flyers in Philadelphia tonight.

Only twice before, the Giants, Jets and Mets will have to go three over the limit in legitimate miracle attacks.

Actually, Thomson's homer was only the crowning touch to the three-game deficit the Giants had been 13½ games behind the Dodgers on Aug. 11, 1951. The next day they launched a 16-game winning streak to win 37 of 44 games to finish in a tie with Brooklyn.

Each team won one game in the best-of-three National League playoff. The Giants, playing at home in the Polo Grounds, came to the bottom of the ninth in the deciding game trailing 4-1. They scored one run and had Whitey Lockman on second and pinch runner Clint Hartung on third with one out. That's when Thomson hit his homer run to send the Giants into the series.

They ran out of miracles at that point, however, losing to New York Yankees in six games.

In the 1969 Superbowl, played at the Orange Bowl in Miami on Jan. 11, quarterback Joe Namath seemed the only person willing to give the Jets a chance to defeat the Colts, who had lost only one game all season in fact. Namath guaranteed victory, though few believed him.

Before 75,377 fans, Namath converted the skeptics by completing 17 of 28 passes for 206 yards to give the American Football League its first victory over the National Football League. And it wasn't really close. The Jets built up a 16-0 lead before the Colts' Johnny Unitas directed them in their only touchdown late in the fourth quarter.

The 1969 baseball Mets were a bunch of schnooks who had finished ninth in the 10-team division in the National League. They had two strong arms in Tom Seaver and Jerry Koosman and a pretty-fair hitter in Cleon Jones. But that was about it.

After losing the World Series opener, they seemed on their way to defeat.

But they came back with four straight victories in succession, winning two, Seaver one and Gary Gentry one, to complete their climb from mediocrity to fame.

Oh, Islanders, your turn.

Good Publicity Frightens Potvin

UNIONDALE, N.Y. — The sudden rise of New York Islanders has generated so much publicity that it frightens Denis Potvin, who is staying in town this summer to promote the team.

"That's really unbelievable," said the Islander defenceman, who ducks interviews only because he fears all the nice things writers are saying about him might go to his head at any time.

Uodercigs like the Islanders generate the copy that sports editors dream about. The islander success so far is the biggest story around the city since the title of "hockey's miracle workers," and this scares Potvin.

The job is not yet completed for the Islanders in the trail to the Stanley Cup and it might not be this year. No matter how slim their chances were, they struck in the chest, they figured they can play a giant step in the deciding semi final game tonight and defeating them are Philadelphia Flyers.

Potvin, of course, has been one of the stars of the Islander success and the man who spearheads the Islander power play, one of the reasons why the Islander showing in their best of seven series against the Flyers.

"You know, you read the papers," Potvin said. "I actually try not to do that. You get a little too confident and ever so gressive if you read about yourself."

Coach Fred Shero of the Flyers was asked about the aura of invincibility his club was supposed to have before it was stopped by the Islanders.

"We never thought that way," Shero said after the Islanders won 3-1 here Sunday against the Flyers to deadlock the series at 3-3.

"We're not born that way. We know everybody is a challenge and you work just as hard, no matter who it is.

But the Islanders have been a pain in Shero's neck all season.

They ended Philadelphia's unbeaten string at 21 games, snapped an eight game playoff winning streak and ended the Flyers record of having won 13 consecutive playoff games on home ice.

In six games the Flyers have outshot New York 171 146, yet they are even in goals scored at 13 apiece. The Islander power play produced six goals, the Flyers got only five, plus one shorthanded goal.

In the nets, Glenn Resch has outplayed Bernie Parent, the Flyers' Vezina Trophy winner. Resch has allowed 11 goals in four games, Resch 19 in five. Parent 5 1-3, Resch 3 1-.

Parent hasn't said much about his right knee, injured during a pre-game warmup April 28.

Wayne Stephenson replaced Parent in the first two games and won 4-3 and 5-4. Bernie had a 3-1 shutout in the third game but very little went. Then he had the next three by 4-3, 3-1 and 3-1.

BISL Start Looks Good

The Belleville Industrial Softball League got under way on two fronts Monday night and if initial contests are any indication of what's in store, BISL fans are in for some keen competition.

At Sir Mackenzie Bowell Block Diamond ripped Brooks Bond 6-0 and at Queen Elizabeth Island Junction and the Independents battled to a 3-3 tie.

Block Diamond took the win with a single run in the sixth inning after Brooks Bond had rallied with four in the fifth to tie things at five apiece.

Dale Acorn shared mound duties for the cheesmen batting nine nine and striking seven. Tom St. Jules was the loser striking out eight and walking none.

Acorn helped his own cause with a three run homer in the first inning. Jack Francis supported him with a four for four of his own and two singles.

Doc Daddefiore was tops for Brooks Bond with a double.

Meads rallied with two runs in the top of the seventh to earn the split with the Independents. Sonny Holoway and Allan Williamson fanned 11 Independents in all while Fred Davis, Greg Bellis and Earl Collan put together four strikeouts.

Ken Bertrand crashed a home run and a single, Doug Beauchower got a triple and a double and George Foote added a double and a single to lead up the Independents attack.

Rick Farrell was tops for Meads with a double and a single.

BERNIE PARENT

Computer Picks Parent

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Goalie Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers received a $18,000 award Monday for being adjudged the outstanding player in the National Hockey League in the 1974-75 season.

Based on a computer analysis, he was the most productive and consistent player in the NHL. Every statistical score of his goaltending play was recorded, computed and then applied against a mean standard of excellence for goalies.

Parent, the computer said, exceeded the standard by a larger margin than any other player at any other position.

Parent, in the league's Vezina Trophy this past season as the best goalie, had the lowest goals against average (2.03), the most shutouts (12) and the most victories (44).

He had a saves percentage of 91.7 and was one of two goalies to play more than 4,000 minutes. He compiled a productivity efficiency rating (PER) of 67.2 in the computer study.

HOCKEY TIPS

CUTTING AROUND PLAYERS

Using one hand on the stick is not one thing which minor hockey players should do generally. However, when it comes to cutting around players, one hand on the stick might be a way of doing it.

In football, I'm sure you've seen plays when the ball carrier uses a straight arm or employs his free arm in ward off a tackler. Hockey players often come close to doing the very same things because sometimes the best way to get around a man is to put the puck on the backhand in your off wing and, leaning slightly, use the other arm to prevent him from stopping you.

In the picture, you'll note the puck was on my backhand and I was cutting around Ron Ellis of Toronto Maple Leafs but he avoided my progress by wrapping me up momentarily.

I continued to move forward and used my left arm for balance expecting to complete the move and use things which minor hockey around Ellis. On plays such as this, the checker, in this case Ellis, might be in line for a penalty, but I can't stop to wait for an official to call a penalty. My job is to keep moving in case an infraction is missed.

Once the checker is bypassed, it's vital to get your head up and his free arm in ward off a tackler, hacked.

Another way of cutting around players can be done on the backhand by simply keeping both hands on your stick and leaning on the opposing player with your body.

There's still enough time to work on this skill by getting a teammate to practice with you. Try leaning into the checker, then try using the extended arm method.

If you can't get a partner, set up a series of chairs and sail around them. You might even consider cutting around the net.

Four Innings a Lot Of Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Jim Brewer of Los Angeles Dodgers probably couldn't pitch four innings every day, he admitted Monday after Atlanta Braves had tagged him for a run-scoring single in the fourth inning.

The left-hander, usually called in by starter relief pitchers, entered the game against St. Louis in the seventh inning and scored a victory as the Dodgers defeated the Cardinals 6-4 in 10 innings.

Expos Trounce Braves

Scanlon Roars Into Lineup

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos discovered Monday night that they have had a tiger by the tail.

Pat Scanlon came off the bench because regular third baseman Larry Parrish was ailing and Scanlon responded to his first starting appearance by collecting two hits, including a three-run home run, to help the Expos to an 11-1 win over Atlanta Braves in National League baseball action.

"I felt good hitting early," said Scanlon, who also drove in a run with a first-inning infield out. /

PAT SCANLON

Scanlon, who had two hits in his four-hit outing into the record book as the 11th player to stay with the same club in the major leagues since the start of the 1900 season.

The Expos scored two runs in the first, another in the second, Gary Carter's 10th home run of the season, and chased Braves starter Carl Morton over 5-3, with the third-inning offensive. It was the first time Expos's first loss in seven decisions against the old club.

Wilmer Steve Rogers, 3-4, picked up his first victory in five lifetime decisions against the Braves. He scored a fifth-inning run, drove in a sixth, advancing to third on a single and coasting home on a fielding choice.

Tony Scott drilled a seventh-inning single to score the other Expos run and Earl Williams led off the ninth with his third homer of the season to account for Atlanta's only score.

Marshall Placed On Disabled List

MIKE MARSHALL

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mike Marshall, ace reliever of Los Angeles Dodgers, was on the 22-day disabled list Monday.

Since April 18, the Cy Young award winner as the best National League pitcher of 1974 has suffered a separated cartilage in his left rib cage, and pulled his left Adidon doesn't want to use him until he is well.

Marshall's stint on the disabled list will be retroactive to May 18, meaning he can appear again May 31.

Injured while pitching against San Francisco, he left the game protesting that he was hurt. San Diego and aggravated the injury.

Six days later, he tried again against Pittsburgh and was ineffective. He said there still was pain.

Olympic Report A Bit Deceiving

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Olympic Committee in Rome will be presented today with an optimistic report on the preparations for the 1976 Olympic Games.

The report, released at a news conference Monday by the Olympics organizing committee, paints a rosy picture of progress towards the July, 1976, opening date.

The report was prepared — before a walkout by construction workers that nearly stopped Olympic building site.

Should the walkout continue for a long time, final costs could rise, Simon St. Pierre, executive vice-president of the organizing committee, told reporters. But he insisted Monday that the Games would begin on schedule.

The report said that in general "construction is adhering to critical deadlines" on all Olympic sites.

Work on the Olympic Village, which will house some 10,000 athletes, officials and coaches, is "on schedule, despite a seven-week strike of iron workers and plumbers that began in January which interrupted all construction at the east-end village, and that village's other structures may be completed before the end of 1975, the report says.

Although the report did not say the Olympic building strike was not yielding anticipated returns, it said the 13-week strike "felt the impact of the world economic situation and the hesitation at the Royal Canadian Mint."

To date, the program has realized total profits of less than $20 million on gross sales of $285 million. The Olympic organizing committee received $21 million of those profits.

The Olympic organizing program was faring better and was on target towards its goal of providing $10 million revenue for the Games. The first four Olympic Games returned $8 million in profits to the organizing committee, the report said.

Roberts Does Re-write Job

LEON ROBERTS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Dennis Leonard may have the book on Leon Roberts, but he apparently didn't read up on him Monday night.

Roberts, who usually have forced a rewrite job.

He banged eight fielder on a hitting streak to 14 games—that's every game he's played this year—scattered and unloosed a three-run homer in leading Texas Rangers past to help Detroit Tigers beath Kansas City Royals 5-0.

In the only other American League baseball game, Oakland A's beat Boston Red Sox 2-1.

Roberts' fellow rookie Vern Ruhle with relief help in the eighth inning from John Hiller, both the Tigers' pitchers, held Royals left 10 runners on, two short of the team record.

Kansas City manager Jack McKeon couldn't figure out how Leonard offers up the gopher ball.

"He did not pitch the way we talked about pitching him," McKeon said. "He's got the fastball and he's pitched a tough time against him in the minors."

Roberts seemed almost as surprised as anyone that he got the homer, his third of the season, off Leonard.

"I saw him last year (in the American Association) and he scared me," said the 6-foot-3, 205-pound Roberts. "He was tough on me. I'd say I was the second best pitcher in the league."

Roberts, a switch-hitted hitter, was platooned the first few weeks of the season, batting only against left-handed pitchers. Now he plays every day. Leonard is a right-hander.

His homer followed a walk and a single by Bill Freehan. Willie Horton contributed a run-out, two-run single in the third for the Tigers.

Jim Bibby's two-run Texas single highlighted a four-run rally in the seventh inning.

ANNOUNCE TOUR

GLASGOW (Reuter) — The Scottish Professional Footballers' Association Monday announced a tour of Canada, Bermuda and the United States by Manchester United.

The Reggers assumed Monday a soccer tour of Canada, Bermuda and the United States in May and June. The team will fly to Bermuda for a friendly game on May 30, then fly to Montreal for two more games and to Australia for four.

AROUND SOME SCORE

TORONTO (CP) — Ken Scott, a six-foot-two 205-pound defence end and offensive guard from the University of Mary-land, has been signed by Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Scott played with Philadelphia Bell of the World Football League last season.

Post Amazed By Popularity

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The phenomenal popularity of women's pro golf tour still doesn't seem to have caught up with Sandra Post, whose seven-year pro career has suddenly taken a turn for the better.

For example, Miss Post was amazed when, on completing her first year as a golf pro, she became, she began receiving requests for interviews and, as a result, she saw her family for "a total of about 10 minutes" during the first 36 weeks of her stay.

But she's not complaining. "I think it would upset me more if nobody called."

And she shook her head in amazement when she recalled how one magazine writer recently spent five days interviewing her for one article.

But while she's learned to take herself seriously as a celebrity, she is very serious about playing winning golf.

After a promising start in 1968 when she won the LPGA Rookie of the Year award, a year in her rookie appearance, her career hit the doldrums about four years ago, when she suffered a bout of emotional upheaval of her divorce from Jim Post, a golf pro.

She got back on the top and has been a consistent money winner for the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour for four years ago was about sixth.

Last year she was ranked 24th and earned more than $30,000 in prize money, including $14,250 in official LPGA earnings and she is seventh on the money list.

"I got my determination back and I started working on my confidence. I believe in my ability now. That's the important thing."

Athletes Will Do Well Despite Help

WINNIPEG (CP) — Performances by Canadian athletes in international competitions, including the 1976 Olympics, will be achieved in spite of the Canadian system, not because of it, says Canadian shotputter Bruce Fitzke.

"The Canadian people, whether they like it or not, are going to be kept from reaching the sporting world by the athletes' performances . . . performances which, for the most part, will be achieved in spite of the Canadian system, not because of it," he told the 17th provincial sports awards banquet Saturday.

The former medal winner at the 1974 Commonwealth Games said it cost him more than $7,000 in lost income to get to the Olympic Games in Munich.

Indian Boutique Opens in Picton

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Ved Sethi, an aspiring Indian actor was rejected for lead roles in the movies because he was "just too short for a hero" but his dramatic clothing designs imported to a new Picton shop lend the fashion world.

Orient Clothing, a third store in Mr. Sethis' chain opened in the Armory Mall this week featuring dozens of hand-made and hand-embroidered blouses, dresses and Unisex apparel.

Mr. Sethi says he worked as an assistant film director and a building contractor in Delhi, India, until about six years ago when he visited Canada for a reunion with his brother.

"It is a young country filled with new things," he observed.

Impressed by what he had seen he decided to leave India permanently.

In 1972, he opened a clothing boutique in Kingston and later followed this business venture with a shop in Napanee. The Picton boutique is the third link in a growing chain of sales outlets for colorful cloths.

"Everything is from India and Pakistan," said Mr. Sethi, indicating his stock.

He observed most of the clothing items were popular in India until recently, but some have been replaced by other new styles. In Canada however, the bright cotton tops embroidered with flowers and intricate designs remain perennial favorites.

In addition to clothing the boutique specializes in brass ware and wooden ware, all hand-made and hand-designed. There are also several Mexican and West African pieces.

"Ninety-five percent of the things are from India," said Mr. Sethi.

Orient Clothing also features accessories such as handbags and sandals crafted from buffalo leather and exotic jewellery.

Mr. Sethi says he designs much of the clothing sold in his shops and sends drawings to his workmen in India.

The proprietor of Picton's newest boutique lives in Kingston and commutes to his shops in Napanee and Picton daily.

Eastern Promise

LONDON (CP)—In recognition of the growing oil wealth of the Middle East, Sotheby's, the international fine art auctioneers, will open an office in Tehran to give information and advice and to distribute catalogues. But no sales are planned there yet.

Home of The Week

DESIGN R3-476
1,832 Sq. Ft.

An essentially maintenance-free exterior is a prime consideration in this elegant ranch style home. Stone and brick veneer and small areas of cedar shakes will last many, many years without any care.

An excellent floor plan is provided. Note the convenience of being able to enter from three outdoor areas and from the rear of the garage.

A corner fireplace in the living room will provide many hours of enjoyment on cold winter evenings.

The kitchen is in the form of a compact U, starting with the built-in oven and ending with the built-in range and it serves both a family-sized breakfast nook and a separate dining room. A main floor laundry is conveniently nearby.

The large main bathroom is entered directly from two bedrooms and from the hall which makes it, in effect, ensuite with either of the two large bedrooms. It has an angled tub with shower over and double and single vanities. A convenient powder room is located at the other end of the house. Plans cover building with or without a basement.

Plans for Design R3-476 cost $25 for the first set, $11 each additional set and are supplied by return mail.

Special Housing Assistance for Veterans
The Department of Veterans Affairs will provide
■ an additional grant of up to $800 a year—for veterans* who obtain new house loans from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and who require additional assistance to the interest reducing grants available to moderate income families under the Assisted Home Ownership Program. AHOP reduces monthly payments to a reasonable proportion of a family's income.
■ an additional grant of up to $800 a year—for veterans* who obtain new house loans from NHA approved lenders and who require additional assistance to that available under AHOP. This will enable many veterans to become homeowners who would not otherwise find it possible despite the existing favourable provisions of the AHOP plan.
■ a grant of up to $800 a year—for veterans* who do not qualify for AHOP because they have no dependent children or because they want to buy an existing house. To qualify a veteran must obtain an NHA insured loan from an approved lender and must not have owned a house in the previous three years.
■ a grant of 10% of capital costs—in addition to CMHC benefits—for non-profit groups who obtain NHA loans to develop low-rental housing projects intended primarily, but not exclusively, for veterans.
*Veterans of World War II and the Korean conflict as defined in the Veterans' Land Act.

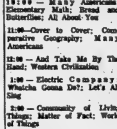
Win at Bridge

Sure trick assists in others



By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

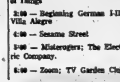
Here is Bellademas hand that shows the advantage played by defense in holding back his ace of trumps. Unlike some acts, that one act is easy to win a trick whenever it is played.

West opens the three of diamonds against South's four heart contract. You East. Analyze the lead as fourth best from a four or five-card suit. You Review the bidding and assume that East has seven hearts. He also holds at least three diamond honors and can score three diamond tricks if your partner holds the king.

Your first impulse is to play the ace and another trump. If you do this declarer will discard his last diamond on dummy's spades and make an overtrick. If you don't lead trumps he will ruff his last three diamond. Then what can you do?

Just lead your low trump! If South has a second diamond your partner will win and play his last trump. Your son of trumps and 10 of diamonds will set declarer.

All other lines of play will also leave him one trick short. The lead of the low trump has cooked his goose.



The bidding has been: 13

West	North	East	South
			1♠
Pass	2♦	Pass	2♠
Pass	3♠	Pass	4♡
You, South, bid:

♠ KQ1053 ♥ K6 ♦ A3 ♣ K97

What do you do now?

You have 10 high hearts. Your partner showed strength by his two-diamond call, and he now jumped to strong diamond suit. Some further forcing action is indicated.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner continues to front narrows. What do you do now?

To Your Good Health

Joint Inflammation Called Synovitis

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: I am 32 years old. Two years ago an orthopedic surgeon told me I had synovitis in both knees. I got an injection in the knees, but it didn't subside. What is synovitis?

I've been told that outside of exercising there is not much I can do about it, that I could go away as quickly as it appeared. Is this true? I cannot be kneeling or kneeling.

Is it really a disease that cannot be treated?—Mrs. K. W.

Two years is a rather long time for such a condition to remain, and you should be re-examined to determine why healing has not occurred.

Synovitis (which is another name to do with the tissues) is an inflammation of what is called the "synovial membrane," a viscous material which floats in joint cavities. The inflammation can result from either an injury to the joint, or in some cases there is a secretion of fluid into the joint cavity and resultant leg pain, especially when the knee is bent.

"Water on the knee" is a common term for what you appropriately had. As I say above, disorder the symptoms may remain for a long time until the infection disappears or the fluid is removed and things go back to normal. The goal of treatment is to keep abnormal fluid out of the joint cavity. Complete resting of the joint. A gentle-pressure bandage can also help.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I have heard that women of child-bearing age do not have to worry about their intake of cholesterol. Is this true? I also have all the eggs and cheese I want!—C. L.

Yes, but that is what I like to call a "dangerous truth."

Thanks to the female hormones that circulated during these years women do enjoy some protection from the cholesterol problem. You will notice that I say "some immunity." It is rather small, and not sufficient to allow a woman to be more the matter entirely.

A sensible approach to cholesterol is to order at any age for those who have a family history of the arteries (in which cholesterol plays some role) begins at an early age and continues to do so throughout our life. It is not a matter of a great respector of sex.

Cholesterol is a complex subject about which much has been written, some of which is not of doubtful validity and medically unsound. As my readers know, I am a "middle-of-the-roader" in this matter.

Dear Dr. Thompson: Some recipes for making soup suggest boiling a chicken, chicken, or beef bones for two or three hours, using the remaining liquid as a soup stock, which is cook vegetables, etc.

Does such a liquid contain enough nutrition to be good stock?—A. W.

This would not fall into the group of basic extract recipes, usually a no-no in a good stock, which is also in a good diet. I see no objection to it.

It is chiefly the high-purine foods (red meats, etc.) that are to be avoided. Dieting for the loss of weight discussed in recent years in favor of the new drugs which can control the hunger adequately. But dieting can be healthful and it certainly can do no harm.

I must add, however, that the bones you mention using for a soup are considered purine food, and strictly speaking, should also be avoided.

Dear Doctor: Please tell me what the initials of the trivia, bit? When it becomes elongated, can be used in place of the sign? Can the and be snipped? If so, would it cause any speech impediment?—Mrs. H. D.

Respecting your wish not to use your real initials, I'll inform readers that "T. L." stands for "long ovals."

The words which mean "little grape" in its Latin derivation is a bunch, fleshy tissue. The one to which you refer is usually the palatine uvula, the bit of tissue "tart over" in the fusion of the palate.

To my knowledge it has no obvious function. If it is too long, the uvula can get a cramp, tickling the back of the throat, causing the throat, especially when tying down. It can be removed surgically to bring it down to a reasonable size, and this will not affect your speech. But it cannot be reduced by dieting.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I am a woman 76 years old, and have been in good health all of my life.

Recently my stool has become black. Can you explain why?—Mrs. A. S.

A black stool that persists for over two movements is something which requires investigation. It can indicate bleeding from an ulcer or a diverticulum, or an intestinal infection.

Occasionally dark stool can result from medication—bismuth, for example. Also, food high in iron content or iron medication can produce this.

It can be any of these things, but if the black stool has persisted you should be checked promptly.

Dear Dr. Thompson: When you overfeed a baby, do fat cells develop which make it difficult for the baby to weight over the child is an adult?—Mrs. W. J.

Yes, larger, than-normal fat cells can develop in the overfed infant and carry over into adulthood. Such cells do not disintegrate readily with the usual weight-reduction attempts.

This can account for some of the impasses reducers encounter. I'll have a full article for you soon.

Man Held For Murder

TORONTO (CP) — John Baldasi, 39, of Toronto was charged early today with murder punishable by life imprisonment in the death of Margaret Fraser of Toronto, whose mutilated body was found Monday in a down town laneway.

Police said the legs of the 39-year-old woman were missing. She had been badly beaten and stabbed several times.

Sgt. James Hayter said the legs of the woman had been cut off after death. He refused to say whether the legs had been found.

There were no signs of blood leading to the lane and police believe the body had been dumped there.

It is believed the woman, also known as Margaret Fox, was killed within the last few days, police said.

Lots of Gas

WASHINGTON (CP) — A key executive of Alaskan Arctic Natural Gas (AAG) estimated Monday before the Federal Power Commission (FPC) that Canada's Mackenzie Delta has an estimated 26.3 trillion cubic feet of natural gas available for sale.

E. A. Olson, vice-president of AAG, said the total included a potential 16 trillion cubic feet beneath the neighboring Beaufort Sea and another 4.3 trillion feet of proven, probable and possible reserves within the delta itself.

He testified as the commission continued its hearings on the Alaskan Arctic proposal to take the gas fields of Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, and the Mackenzie Delta and pipe the gas south through Canada to customers in Western Canada and the U.S.

Fall 22 Storeys

MONTREAL (CP) — Two window washers who fell 22 storeys to a concrete roof Monday were listed in satisfactory condition by doctors at St. Luc Hospital.

"I guess it wasn't my hour to die," Gilles Chaumont, 28, said from his hospital bed Monday night as nurses tried to find a feeling in his legs.

Mr. Chaumont and Pierre Picke, 42, suffered multiple bone fractures in the fall from the face of the Maison Radio Canada, the CBC tower in downtown Montreal. But only Picke sustained a head injury.

Fatalities Fewer

TORONTO (CP)—The number of car crashes increased in 1970 but a newer percentage of them involved fatalities, says a survey released Monday by the Ontario Ministry of transportation and communications.

More Charges Laid

TORONTO (CP) — Ronald Steven Ryan, charged with murder in connection with the shooting last February of Michael Habibh, a 15-year-old Jamaican, was charged Monday with another murder in connection with the shooting of two black musicians last January, police said.

Both charges carry a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

PICKERING, Ont. (CP) — Heavy water has been discovered in the closed-collection system of Reactor No. 4 at the nuclear power station in this community about 15 miles northeast of Toronto, Ontario Hydro reported Monday.

Choice Hard

OTTAWA (CP) — A seminar on the health effects of chemicals in foods was told Monday that modern man has the choice of more food through the use of pesticides and other chemicals, or more starvation in a "clean and pure pastoral environment."

Harding le Riche, a professor of epidemiology at the University of Toronto, said that in this chemical age man must learn to make the best use of "these remarkable substances we have made."

Foreigners Best

OTTAWA (CP) — Many farmers find imported seasonal laborers more attractive than Canadian workers because offshore recruits are a more stable source of supply, federal manpower officials say.

The situation is occurring despite general policy that Canadian workers must be given first chance at farm labor jobs, the officials said in a recent interview on the government's farm labor pool program.

Meat Said Tainted

OTTAWA (CP) — Gus Mingo (PC—Simcoe North) asked in the Commons Monday what action the government contemplated against Federal Packing Inc. of Magog, Que., or against retailers that bought meat from the company.

He said the issue of bad meat—from dead and diseased animals, had been distributed. Mr. Mingo was a federal meat inspector before entering politics.

The federal health department issued an official warning Friday to consumers to be on the alert for tainted meat distributed by the company.

He was replying to Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, who asked what action the province planned in light of the "obvious anxiety of the black community and the obvious extremism of some segments of the white community."

Hint at More Skeletons In Air Canada Closet Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — The opposition suggested Monday that Air Canada may have other skeletons in its closet but the allegation was quickly denied by the government and outside officials.

Elmer MacKay (PC—Central Nova) raised the issue by calling for an investigation of links between the public airline and management placement firms.

He said in the Commons he understood that a finder's fee had been paid to an executive of a replacement company who "arranged to have himself placed with Air Canada."

The individual stayed only nine months, then resigned. The finder's fee amounted to half the individuals Air Canada salary, he said, suggesting that a statement later denying any placement agency, hired as director of organization and planning.

But transport officials issued a statement later denying any impropriety.

They identified the individual as Philippe Valois of Sathenay-Garoux-Mill, Ltd., a Montreal

Mr. Valois stayed a total of 18 months with Air Canada, then left but did not return to his former employer. No placement fee was paid to Sathenay-Garoux, they said.

He said two of every three applications for this summer's junior agriculturist program sponsored by his ministry will be turned down. There were more than 600 applicants but only 300 farmers willing to take part, he told Murray Gaskin (L—Huron-Bruce) during debate on 1975-76 budget estimates of the ministry.

Thailand Upset

U.S. Given Three Days To Remove 800 Marines

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Premier Kukrith Pramoj has given the United States until Thursday to remove 800 marines he said were landed in Thailand today without permission.

The marines were sent in here by President Ford's administration to help evacuate U.S. refugees said by Cambodia's new government to be aboard a freighter seized Monday.

Kukrith said massive action by the U.S. Air Force to move the marines from the territory of the only remaining ally in the Southeast Asian mainland.

Kukrith said Thailand does not intend to be drafted into U.S. preparations for its own ship back by force.

The premier delivered his ultimatum to U.S. Charge D'Affaires Edward Masters.

The source said the ship was intercepted near the island of Paulpinang about 40 miles off the Cambodian and South Vietnamese coast and is now anchored where the Mayagguez was fired on and boarded Monday.

It was the fourth foreign freighter reported to have been seized by Cambodian gunboats since the Communist takeover in Phnom Penh. One of the others, another Panamanian, was reported seized May 7 but was released after 36 hours.

U.S. planes kept watch on the 10,420-ton freighter Mayagguez in the Gulf of Thailand. It was reported Sunday near Cambodia's Poulo Wai island, 60 miles off the Cambodian coast.

The ship, manned by a crew of 39, was captured in waters 60 nauticle miles from Hong Kong to Thailand with a cargo of military and civilian freight.

Pentagon sources said the aircraft carrier Coral Sea, escorting destroyers and at least one guided missile cruiser, were en route to the Gulf of Thailand.

Schools Said Not Serving Working Class

TORONTO (CP) — Leaders of Ontario and Quebec teachers' unions charged Tuesday that schools as they operate now are not serving the interests of the working-class children.

James Forster, president of the 34,000-member Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation, told a public meeting that "it is obvious that the school of Ontario are not serving the interests of children of workers as they should."

Yvon Charbonneau, president of the Quebec Teachers' Corp., urged Ontario teachers to follow the example of their Quebec colleagues and "leave the ivory tower of professionalism" to join forces with other members of the working class in order to help changes be achieved to help create a more egalitarian society.

Neither the Thai government nor the U.S. embassy in Bangkok was informed in advance of the marines' arrival before dawn today.

Fifty students carrying anti-American posters flocked to the Bangkok airport to await the arrival of the new U.S. ambassador, Charles Whitehouse.

The National Student Center, which led the uprising that toppled military dictatorship 19 months ago, accused the United States of aiding the Cambodian seizure of the freighter Mayagguez as it prepares to take arms again in Indochina.

Kukrith said Thailand does not intend to be drafted into U.S. preparations for its own ship back by force.

Hastings Survey Made

Most Public School Teachers Expect 30 Per Cent More Pay

BY RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

A majority of Hastings elementary teachers expect a salary increase of about 30 per cent this year with an adjustable cost-of-living clause in their new contract, The Intelligencer has learned.

An informal source says that one-third of elementary teachers in Hastings County were surveyed earlier this year. The survey was designed to assess teacher expectations on salaries, fringe benefits and working conditions. It was conducted jointly by the local branches of the Ontario Public School Men's Teachers Federation and the Federation of Women Teachers Associations of Ontario.

Salary negotiations are now underway in the county between the Hastings County Board of Education and representatives of the county's 1,150 elementary and secondary school teachers. No settlement has been reached.

Director of education Eric Rumsey said today he was unaware of the survey and, its results. He said he could not make a comment due to an agreement between negotiating parties.

However, he did say negotiations are "proceeding extremely well" and that a settlement could be reached in the "near future."

The source said more than 50 per cent of teachers surveyed favored a 30 per cent salary increase or a cost-of-living allowance (COLA) which would be adjusted every six months according to the consumer price index. These clauses are not included in the 1,150 teacher contracts.

Apparently, the cost-of-living clause has been a contentious point in the current negotiations. Last year Hastings teachers received a salary increase of about 10 per cent with no cost-of-living clause.

Teachers also expressed a concern over the establishment of the Qualification Evaluation Council of Ontario (QECO), an industrial council made up of four teachers' federations in the province.

The survey revealed that a majority of teachers wanted the QECO replacement clause, requiring in some cases that department courses be replaced by university courses, removed from the agreement.

Many teachers saw this clause as a hardship on the senior teachers. They also feel the QECO category has penalty in the upgrading. This clause would penalize teachers for not meeting certain qualifications.

The QECO is a type of disciplinary board which is attempting to establish a standard set of requirements across the province for teachers. Hastings teachers said they would only accept QECO as implemented in 1975.

Bourassa Stands Firm

Social Order Put Ahead of Olympics

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa, determined to re-establish law and order in province's troubled construction industry, said Tuesday preservation of Quebec's social order is more important than staging the 1976 Olympic Games.

"Social order comes before everything, all events, no matter how important they are," Mr. Bourassa said.

Work on the Olympics' sites and other major construction projects stopped May 1 when industry workers walked off the job as part of a union confrontation with the Quebec government.

The government has tabled legislation which would put five construction union heads underground, following the implementation of the Cliche commission which had completed a study of the province's construction industry.

A meeting of the council in the national assembly Tuesday giving rise to emergency debate on the legislation, which passed second reading in the early night Tuesday.

Premier Bourassa said later "my government possesses all the legislative powers to deal with the situation." Both the Olympic Games and social order are very important. Neither was more important than the other.

But his earlier statement drew a heated reaction from Montreal municipal and Olympic organizing officials.

Raymond Beauchemin, as Montreal organizing committee official, said he did not believe that Premier Bourassa meant that the Games could be sacrificed. He said the organizing committee is at the mercy of the provincial government and the trade unions.

Mayor Jean Drapeau said if the Games were cancelled, it "will be left with the most costly ruins in the world." He said all revenue-producing programs designed to pay the Games debt of $310 million will have to be halted.

Lawrence Hanigan, chairman of the Montreal Urban Community, said Montreal's economy could suffer a serious setback if the Quebec government dropped the Games as lay labor powers. "Those construction has a wide impact on the whole economy of this area," he said.

More than 48 construction sites were shutdown with the walkout of 8,000 workers Tuesday; an strikes spread from the Montreal area to provincial centres, including Chicoutimi and Hull.

Nobody Working At Games Sites

MONTREAL (CP) — The east-end Olympic Games building sites were idle again today as construction workers continued a walkout in protest against provincial government legislation designed to restore order in the industry.

About 8,000 workers were off the job at major building sites in the province as the week stoppages which began May 1 spread to areas outside Montreal.

Premier Robert Bourassa said in Quebec City Tuesday the 1976 Games would be "seriously threatened" if many more working days were lost through the dispute.

Mr. Bourassa said Tuesday the Games could not be postponed and would have to be held in 1976 or not at all.

Trudeau Will Visit School Here

Mr. Chapman said the meeting, which will begin at 8 p.m. will be a question and answer session and is open to the public.

Boaters Given Reprieve On Trent Lockage Fees

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Boaters on the Trent Waterway have been given an unexpected period of grace with the Parks Canada announcement that lockage fees, on the canal will not take effect until next month.

Introduced for the first time in the history of the canal system on the canal, recently purchased from Trent Navigation Allen Kaiser, a Parks Canada official, said Tuesday that fees will be collected "as soon as possible" after the "target date" for instituting the fees. But he said the date is not firm and may be subject to change, depending on action in Ottawa.

Outside's normal information office for Parks Canada, he said installation of the structures has been held up in Ottawa, where final approval of the program is still awaited.

"The first three weeks things are to day work," he said, "the only thing we can do is wait and see. Parks Canada is anxious to spread the word as much as possible."

Details of fees by the federal agency has come under fire from the public since initial word that Hastings Member of Parliament Harold Herbert announced the program in March. Herbert, who is minister responsible for Parks Canada, the agency that controls the canal and historic sites and national parks.

Fees for use of locks on canals are set at $3 a day, $8 a month, and $20 a season. Only in October? for boats under 30-feet in length.

For commercial vessels and boats over 30 feet, owners will pay $1 a day, $40 a month and $80 a season. For hull lockage fees are based on ground investigation for the canal, and charges will not locks without charge.

In addition, boaters using Parks Canada docking facilities will face a 40-hour moratorium after which a $3 daily fee will be levied.

Permits will be available at most locks, marinas and town Chamber of Commerce offices along canal routes.

Mr. Kaiser said recently he felt the public outcry over the boat areas inconvenience to the public is unaware of the amount of money required for canadian canals by the federal government.

In 1963-64, Parks Canada spent $64.5-million to operate canals and another $63.7-million in capital costs. In addition, the agency plans to spend five-year, $200-million improvement program on its facilities coupled with $60-million for operating maintenance.

On the Trent, $925-90 plans call for $1.5-million in capital improvements.

Mr. Kaiser said the boating public is being asked to pay seven per cent of operating costs for their services.

"For every $7 they're spending the rest of Canadian taxpayers are kicking in $93," he said. "The public is that boaters have free-loading on canals all along."

The agency, he said, is not trying to fool anyone, but was forced to establish a user fee. It asked the treasury board for money for the five-year improvement program.

"The treasury board said no," he remembers, "you've got to get money from the user."

Surrounded!

New Barry's a switch. Instead of the police surrounding, the police are surrounded — by children. About 60 Murray Centennial School children encircled OPP officer Cary Miller of Lindsay as he explained, and demonstrated fingerprinting by the provincial police force.

Student Police Display Attracts OPP Interest

BRIGHTON — A display depicting a day in the life of police history in Ontario covered one entire wall of a display room at provincial police headquarters in Brighton during an open house here Tuesday.

The display was produced by two Constabulary Public Relations girls as a history project that eventually sparked the interest of OPP community relations officer Bill Holdaway.

Constable Holdaway asked the two girls, Kathy Landry, 16, and Susanne Rankin, 15, to bring it to the open house, held in conjunction with Police Week in Ontario this week, both girls supported their project, Grade eight, at the Brighton public school.

Mike Holden, who works in the OPP detachment in Belleville and is their joint project has been high enough to warrant the display in the future. Constable Holden has showed films and slides to many classes, Grade students, she said, hoped to teach by the project.

The police display, which was gathered by private and police in Brighton for a series of public school tours for area children. An OPP patrol car, motorbike and motorcycle from Lindsay were made available.

County Education Levy Up by 14 Per Cent

BLOOMFIELD — The Prince Edward County Board of Education this year will collect money in behalf of school boards in Ontario in general lower provincial grants but the increase of inflation, have forced an increase of 13.3 per cent in overall expenditures.

A press release issued by trustees stated during the past year the board had operated below provincial spending ceilings and that local educational tax levy has risen only to the initial year, 1968, when the county board was formed. Total of the educational tax levies for Prince Edward's 16 municipalities for 1968 is $1,212,718. In comparison with $1,127,868, 1969.

This year, 1969, the board received one of the low grant boards in Ontario due to a reduction in the initial year, but due to the assessment base formed. Total of the costs in every under five of the budget — teachers' salaries and equipment, heating oil, hydro, school bus transportation and overall expenditures must be increased by 13.3 per cent over the board.

It was noted an increase in assessment normally reflected a similar adjustment in the local educational tax levy, because, however, of a county assessment which was reduced by almost 10 million, local ratepayers will actually experience an increase of 14 per cent in their educational taxes.

Pupils On TV

BEAVER MEADOW — A Grade 8 class from Pinewood Elementary School, Beaver Meadow, is competing in Beaver Meadow's entry in a TV production competition sponsored by the Ontario Educational Communication Authority.

The 37 pupils who had visited the Toronto studios on April captured Tuesday with their teacher Karen Boyd, and a film crew who shot scenes for a segment of Odyssey, Our Science Lab. The CBC programme is to be carried May 31 on Channel 11, will feature Beaver Meadow pupils and their science project to meet under John Kemp.

Mike Hyland and her pupils surveyed plant life and bird and animal species during their visit to the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority site at Beaver Meadow. The students assessed the species found there in the area and attempted to do up with the meadow provided a valuable lesson.

The information was prepared for insertion in the centre of a program filmed with scenes from Beaver Meadow.

Tuesday's return visit to Beaver Meadow followed the students to study new plant and animal life and to survey questions for television interviewer John Kemp.

Miss Hyland and her class were scheduled on the field trip by Prince Edward County Trustees Harry Lavery, chairman of the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority and Ian Melville, a supervisor with the PERCA. Their field assistant, Miss Boyd's class will return to the Toronto studios to await word of provincial competition.

Prime Minister's Residence Seems to Have Lost Some Hospitality

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — The Prime Minister's official residence, Sussex-out gray stone mansion built for a 19th century lord, has been closed for almost 12 months to newspaper and magazine photographers and their cameras and pen wands.

Even the Queen, who stayed there when the Prime Minister was away, was not allowed to be photographed. The result: Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the youngest Prime Minister ever, the swinging bachelor, the photogenic leader, the unorthodox innovator, is the least photographed man in the Commons, in Ottawa.

And looking at the old colonial, grandiose, cut-stone home, perched on the edge of Rideau Canal, it is easy to see 100,000 sightseeing past and the towering accordion fence of Ottawa River, who could tell the difference.

The fortress, courtesy of the Treasury Board, is a monument to austerities, reductions, re-establishment.

The rare and precious gifts, which Queen Elizabeth II gave to a Prime Minister who left society impressed by not only his wife but by his taste in costume design and who is to give a lavish party in her honor.

In the garage, the very lucrative sports job and the Cadillac limousine, with its armor plate, and steel and bullet-proof glass, is history. Out of it's place is the style of Prime Minister Mr. Trudeau, a dictator of a banana republic.

The place at once is a palace and a fort.

And the fact that Trudeau's predecessor, Lester B. Pearson, was photographed at his home, was criticized. It became a political issue.

And of course, the provincials of the Conservative Party made the most of it. Trudeau, they said, was a snob, a man who was aloof from the people, who valued and intellectualism and exhibitionism above the most secretive duke of the official residence.

Complacent heavy is the style.

Council Missed Boat

City manager Wilbur Purcell is to be congratulated for presenting city council with a budget that represents only a 5.4 per cent increase in assessment over that of the previous year.

Naturally, increased senior government grants and higher assessment rolls helped, but, given social factors as spiralling as ever, Mr. Purcell did an amazing job in keeping the average taxpayer's additional levy to $40 this year.

There is always room for complaints about anything as complicated as a budget, depending on what particular axe one might have to grind.

We can expect a bevvy of complaints, for example, from Citizens' Bureau spokesmen or other self-appointed letter-writers or talk-shop phoners — after their $4,700 request was canned by council while such "establishment" organizations as the YMCA and the Chamber of Commerce are often labelled by their critics, DID receive funding.

And the 24,000 city residents who can't make the 200-seat June "Friendship Night" to Lake won't be too thrilled about a $1,000 wine and cheese party, courtesy Belleville tax money.

One budget proposal that got short shrift was a suggestion for shower facilities at Victoria Park to accommodate boaters. The estimated total cost would have been $3,500.

As of now, there are no shower facilities for visiting boaters, not even at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

Tourism experts estimate holidaying boaters spend an average $100 a day, which would deposit a lot in Belleville tills at last year's average 33 guest boats per day.

One mustn't forget estimates that as many as a quarter of a million craft are expected to be in area waters to watch next summer's Olympic sailing events at Kingston.

In this one budget area, we feel Belleville councillors literally missed the boat.

Plumptre Quiet

Remember the Food Prices Review Board?

It has been quiet of late. The last known statement of its chairman, Beryl Plumptre, was two or three months ago perhaps, when she lamented the fact the board might be acquiring "respectability."

Public scepticism was being replaced by public acceptance, even support.

Of course there could be another reason. Food prices have stabilized somewhat. Even the price of sugar has dropped sharply.

Lest We Forget...

As each year takes us further away from World War II, changing attitudes make themselves more evident concerning wartime "anniversaries."

There is the school of thought that feels the least a nation can do is pay homage to its sons who defended their country in battle.

Which of us would not be a peppy in November?

But there is emerging another sentiment, one that says to celebrate past wars merely opens old wounds.

No less a personage than French president Valery Giscard d'Estaing has announced that his country will never again celebrate the anniversary of V-E Day, May 8.

He made the announcement after attending 30th anniversary celebrations of the day Nazi Germany surrendered unconditionally to Allied forces.

Events in Iraq, Portugal, once slandered by the long life of a dictatorship which began in 1926 with the late president Antonio Salazar in supreme control, are now as confusing as those of the Middle American republics.

The military coup last year which overthrew right wing President Caetano Pinheiro who had succeeded Salazar, was the work of the Council of Armies Spinola, one of Portugal's hero-African guerrilla fighters.

On this basis, the coup of April, 1974 looked like one reversing the right wing, although General Spinola had visions of reversing book calling for the end of Portuguese colonial rule in Africa and the substitution of a British-style Commonwealth for the former territories.

The Portuguese army has turned out to be no complete answer to problems in the dozen or more political parties which emerged as a result of General Spinola's coup, with even a Maoist element among its younger officers.

As for the parties themselves, the Communist party hasn't run Portugal for half a century was enough to identify as to Al Qaeda's Ali Bashir, leader of a league young leader.

The so-called "Armed Forces Movement" which "permitted" Portugal's first election in half a century, appeared to be more to the left than even the newly-emerging socialist and Catholic centre parties.

Common signs of the army's power linked with the pre-election commencement of the democratic process would appear to rule in the benefit of the nation regardless of the results.

Portuguese Military Coup Signalled Shift to Left

LETTERS

Infiltrating Church Communist Tactic?

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

With reference to the recent article "Communist Subversive Practices Exposed — Are Unconvinced" in The Intelligencer, I have observed certain facts in both writings.

First, it is well established Communist strategy to break down the Christian morals in order to conquer. In this they are greatly aided by those assisted by others to whom Communism means little or nothing.

C.H. Simonds, Field Director of Americans for Freedom Council, in placing before the U.S. Congressional Record, principles of Communist Subversive practice, in a paper entitled "Naked Communism," added this observation:

"We have known for some time that Communist plans have included the infiltration of the churches. Should they succeed in this, the Islamic Christian faith would be replaced by a "political-social" gospel — more agreeable to many self-ordained Ministers are working under the Red directive.

"The church is frequently belligerent in discussing economic or political problems, while the main issue is spiritual. It should not suppose that personal concern for the less fortunate cannot be met by the Christian should refuse to participate in any worthwhile effort, it is true that the emphasis should be put where Jesus did."

"Christ and His followers were interested in converting individuals through the salvation of souls, . . . the method of changing the world itself." Paul's epistles may be a slow one, but it is God's way of dealing with humanity and it is His way for us to overcome all types of anti-Christian forces and to create everlasting values."

Shouldn't Single Out Individual Teacher

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

As a rule I enjoy your editorials very much, but for the most part I cannot agree with your comments, especially those in the issue of April 30 under the heading "Don't Be Deceived" when I read your article "Teacher of the Year" in Tuesday's paper, dealing with the honouring of Mrs. Dorothy Reynolds and her work which had appeared in the Belleville Intelligencer on Tuesday's paper previously, I was disgusted.

I am in a position to know more about Mrs. Reynolds and her work than I believe you are.

When the Lake County Board came into existence, and Mr. Dodds became superintendent of schools, he imported Mrs. Reynolds to be a research teacher. For some reason, she did not work out, so she was later placed in Camden East School, to be the principal's assistant.

Why was this school — the only one-room school now, in the county? Mrs. Reynolds agree with your comments, especially those in which Mr. Dodds had closed in order that the pupils could be taken by bus to have the so-called advantages of a large school. The very fact that Mrs. Reynolds had to be moved from the position of best teacher was the best primary teacher in the school ever seen such poor judgement.

There have been and are now, seven wonderful primary teachers in the schools of Addington County schools, who would welcome a chance to be the best teacher in a small school.

Mother Wants Slow Speeds For Residential Streets

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I was appalled at the logic displayed by Alderman Keegan at last Monday's council meeting regarding speeding on residential streets. Two children cared enough to petition council for safe playgrounds safety for young children and residential streets. Alderman Keegan seems unbelievable.

Why should children have to live on one of these residential speedways? — Leland Drive, I have unfolded help from the police have been quite co-operative. However, the traffic problem has increased widespread and I feel it is high time our consideration was given to the safety of our children.

Remember Alderman Keegan if it personally concerns you, it is a responsible period that I want this problem solved.

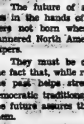
With Friends Like Simon, Who Needs Enemies?

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Economics Analyst
Thomson News Service



With friends like William Simon, John Turner doesn't need enemies.

The secretary of the treasury of the United States made a point of being with the former finance minister of Canada, Liberal party leader and prime minister designate at a meeting of financial analysts.

As one observed, he was not spending his friendship with Mr. Turner on a tourist visit. Treasury Secretary Simon told Finance Minister Turner "you must be extremely careful parties" in formulating your budgetary and economic policy.

Mr. Simon's remarks, delivered in a small band of free-exchange-rate nations, long before the budget debate drew up the attempt to maintain a worldwide system of fixed rates.

"Under the U.S. cabinet officer may be more realistic than Mr. Turner in his observations and prospects for restoration as a means of checking the growth of inflation.

But it is easier for a U.S. politician to reject such extreme measures.

After all, the U.S. inflation rate has fallen faster and further than had been thought possible, although the signs it increases are half the Canadian level, and the current recession may, as Mr. Simon suggested, be 75 per cent over.

Canada's economic position at the moment is distinctly more precarious, and Mr. Turner is right in stating the need for more effective fiscal to deal with the problem.

Here's how Canada's finance minister described our problem: "... at present we have a government that its friend, Secretary Simon, is now slamming the brakes on the inventory policy.

"Somehow in this country, we've got to get going, we've got to have to bring price and our costs of production back to what is more competitive ratio with the United States, which is our biggest market, and with the rates of our European and Japanese competitors."

Mr. Turner is correct in describing restraint as one distasteful than the alternative, runaway inflation.

But as to Mr. Simon's declaring restraint or more distasteful than the alternative, to pass where voluntary or even mandatory controls have proved satisfactory for more than a short period.

Park Lowers Rate For Area Residents

MARMORA — In an effort to interest more village residents to use the facilities at Rossiter Park, provision has been made in a new set of rates, drawn up by the joint Marmora - Village-Marmora and Lake Township parks committee, for a discount to local users.

Coun. Gordon Bennett of Marmora, chairman of the joint committee, recently outlined the new proposals which include a reduction from 50 to 50 trailers to be allowed seasonal space at the park; 30 spaces left open for overnight or week-long visitors; rental fees to be paid in advance; no rights to be carried from one season to the next; trailers must be removed before winter; and only canvas awnings may be attached while the trailers are in use during the summer.

The committee has approved an increase in the yearly pay of caretaker Clayton Smith to $135 plus living accommodation and gave permission for him to operate a concession booth in the park.

New rate cards will be printed with the rules on the tickets for distribution by Mr. Smith to people entering the park.

Hastings Highlights

More Industry Sought

MARMORA — An inquiry as to how this village should go about obtaining an industry will be sent to Claude Bennett, provincial minister of industry and tourism.

Jack Reynolds, village reeve, says he has been urged by businessmen to inquire and has contacted Clarke Rollins, Hastings M.L.A. on how to proceed.

Reeve Reynolds says he thinks Mr. Bennett might arrange to hold a meeting with all interested area councils resulting in the possible formation of an industrial development committee.

Village Held Responsible

MARMORA — Donald and Marie Logan, village residents, have advised Marmora council they are holding the village responsible for damages to their house on Forsyth St. during the recent sewage installation. The claim will be relayed to the contractor, Chirrow Construction Co., for investigation.

Razing Razzed

MARMORA — When village councillors here want a job done, they want it done quickly. William Shannon, village clerk-treasurer, has been directed by council to write the building inspector for Hastings County and ask why a long-standing, partially-demolished house on Mary St. has not been razed to the ground.

Council Ups Rent

MARMORA — Rents on two apartments in the Memorial Building here will be raised by $5 and $10 following a review by village council's property committee under Chairman David McLellan.

The new rents are effective July 1.

One of the apartments recently underwent extensive renovations and the committee says it feels the new rates are more in line with similar accommodations elsewhere in the village.

On Their Way

Five years after an exchange visit from students from Webster City, Iowa, students of North Trenton School are repaying the visit. Students raised the $2,800 bus fare and expenses for the trip with a variety of projects; Thirty Grade 5 and 6 students boarded the bus Sunday and will return next Sunday. School principal Murray Wockenan, while teaching in Belleville, was host five years ago to students from the Iowa city. On the trip are students from Trenton and the south-western part of Hastings County.

Water System Top Priority

MARMORA — Coun. Bert Gray, chairman of fire, water and sewage for village council, says his committee will have to take a close look at all new items to be included in the 1975 budget including the newly-needed new fire truck in light of the increased county demand and education levy. He points out top priority must be the water system which has to be put into proper condition in case of fire.

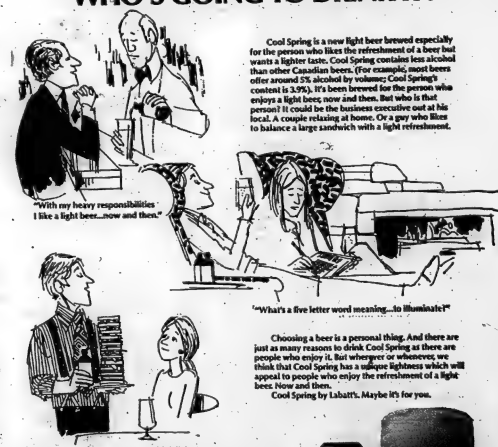
INTRODUCING A NEW BEER

WHO'S GOING TO DRINK IT?



"With my heavy responsibilities I like a light beer...now and then."

"What's a five letter word meaning...to illuminate?"

"My secret? I eat big but I drink light."

Cool Spring is a new light beer brewed especially for the person who likes the refreshment of a beer but wants a lighter taste. Cool Spring contains less alcohol than other Canadian beers. (For example, most beers offer around 5% alcohol by volume; Cool Spring's content is 3.9%). It's been brewed for the person who enjoys a light beer now and then. But who is that person? It could be the business executive out at his local. A couple relaxing at home. Or a guy who likes to balance a large sandwich with a light refreshment.

Choosing a beer is a personal thing. And there are just as many reasons to drink Cool Spring as there are people who enjoy it. But wherever or whenever, we think that Cool Spring has a unique lightness which will appeal to people who enjoy the refreshment of a light beer. Now and then.

Cool Spring by Labatt's. Maybe it's for you.

Ann Landers

Impotency 'Vicious Circle'

Dear Ann Landers: I could have written that letter signed, "Married 15 Years Only," if I'd also read the 16-in letter signed "Most Happy Fella." He told about how his wife dealt with his impotency.

I very that man. He is fortunate in having a wife who is standing by him.

However, having lived with the problem, myself for two years (I'm very sorry one year isn't behind it in this era, etc.) I know that the frustration and guilt can be devastating.

It's a vicious circle, Ann. When a man becomes incapable of functioning normally, the natural response of a wife who loves him is to feel rejected. The more rejected she feels, the more she is turned off by guilt and fear of failure.

My advice is: strive with impotent husbands to keep trying! Most don't become impotent. Every married woman is entitled to a normal sex life. Furthermore, the husband who isn't making the grade feels the loss of a man—and that often leads to other problems.—Healing Betty

Dear B.B.: Thanks for the report from the front lines. Next Week's surprise you to know that male impotency is not a problem confined to "middle age?" It's the No. 1 complaint heard in the health clinics on our country's campuses.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 27-year-old girl, an honor student with sense. I'm ashamed to be writing about this trifle but I need to know if I'm right or wrong.

There's this huge picture of my mother on the piano in my living room. It's 16 by 14 and you can't miss it. The picture was taken 15 years ago, at least. Mom was 35, lighter then, her hair was a different color and she wasn't wearing glasses in those days. I am myself, and the photographer must have been a genius. He made Mom look like Liv Ullman.

At least a dozen kids have asked, "Who's that?" When I say, "It's my mother—a few years ago," they always make remarks like, "She sure has changed." Or "What happened to her? She doesn't look like that NOW!" It's very embarrassing.

I don't want to hurt Mom's feelings but I really think that picture ought to go. For one thing I can't understand why a woman would want to have something around that emphasizes how much she has aged.

Should I keep my mouth shut or should I say something? If so, what?—Ess Ee

Dear Ess: Tell your mom the picture on the piano is out of date and she must have a more mature beauty you'd love to see captured on film. Then you replace the old picture with a new one. And by all means suggest that she use the same photographer—if he's still living.

Dear Ann Landers: Air-conditioning weather will be here before we know it. Help! Help!

Three women in this office are in the change of life. They are alternately freezing and roasting, turning the thermostats all set. The fluctuations are the younger women here it. What can be done?—Dee Forrest

Dear U. P.: The menopausal ladies should wear light cotton dresses and keep sweaters handy. Orders from "on high" should be posted: "Office may be permitted to touch the thermostat." The majority should decide on desired temperature and that should settle it.

Puppets Are Teachers

What do you think of puppet shows as educational tools?

World Literacy of Canada's Literacy House in India discovered that this form of entertaining was traditional for several parts of that large country. Indie, so it was adapted for education.

Puppets are neat little dolls, they are cheap to use, they are instant, even as being without cents or prejudice; they can use tasks of and criticism without offending people.

World Literacy is finding their particularly appropriate in dealing with such issues as family planning, co-operatives, money lenders and corruption.

Important note: World Literacy of Canada is asking organizations and private individuals to write the Canadian legislators to support the development of an Canada Council for Overseas Agencies. The Prairie Provinces have already done so. Now what's another?

Dear Doris: I am living common-law with a divorced man who led me to believe we would be married. He has understood and I have found him to be lying. His defence is, "A lie like that doesn't count."

As far as I'm concerned all lies count.

He is the father of two children. He gave me the first part of Sunday, the ring, the speech and what I've been told we call me a B-. He continues to wear the ring his ex-wife gave him as a gift. Do you think this behavior is open for her?

Troubled: He is immature and immature. I don't think he wears the ring because he cares about his ex-wife; but because he is vain and wants to have some jewelry on.

This is a situation in which you need the personal counselling of a trained social worker.

Doris: I have a child. Doris too. I use your sister's column (on occasion) very often. So I feel that I should express you both. Often the first step to solving our problems might be putting the basic problem on paper to ourselves we trust to understand us.

I am a mother of eight years now and it took a long time to admit I was related to widows United, a year-old club of Kingston and area. Most are: can to meet socially and two, to protect through legislation, financial and legal discrimination against widows. When we feel big enough we plan to help other widows who are left up their own cloth.

All widows are welcome and we put a strong front forward for our rights, such as more pension money, (some company pensions are being payable to a man's widow); less reluctance to rent to widows, etc.

You would be surprised at the number of ways in which widows are downgraded.

Sorters Asked This.

Dear Sorters: Have power to you! If women in general are seeking better status (as they are, through the Status of Women Committee), some of the complaints are those to benefit widows. I'll be glad to forward your address to anyone asking it.

Putting a problem on paper is a fine, constructive way of sorting it out. Having an understanding friend makes it twice as valuable.

You're ALWAYS Welcome

Brings Fathers Back

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Rose Parks of the Fels Research Institute in Yellowsprings, Ohio, says new fathers have been a biological necessity but a social accident for too long. He told a meeting that because fathers have had to view their infants through hospital glass and teachers a taboo, his studies put both parents with the infant from the time of birth. He said that fathers tended to hold, talk, rock and touch the infant more than mothers in the second or third day of its life.

Showed Approval

CALGARY (CP) — A satisfied customer showed her appreciation to Canadian Western Natural Gas Co. Ltd. in a manner which all the employees in the marketing department could enjoy. The company reported that the customer, pleased with her new gas range, baked 30 apple pies in her new appliance and sent them over to the marketing department.

Serve Asparagus in Great Classic Ways

That popular French cooking book, Mastering the Art of French Cooking, says that you must always peel asparagus to produce a tender but not limp fresh-tasting vegetable.

Other authorities prefer steaming just the tips while boiling the thicker butts, still others dispense with saying but the tenderest tops. Some growers swear by the fat stems, others say the fat stems ones are the most tender.

When choosing asparagus pick firm, moist spears with compact tips.

To prepare in the French way, peel with a knife, beginning at the butt end, going as deep as one-eighth inch and resting more shallowly towards the tip. Tie the asparagus in bundles about three inches in diameter so the ones near the base are once near the tip.

Lay the asparagus bundles in the rapidly boiling salted water and bring water to the boil again as quickly as possible. Boil 12 minutes. Pick up by strings and allow to drain briefly on pot. Place on warm platter and cut strings. Serve.

Hot asparagus cooked in the above fashion or by any other plain method may be served as is or with one of several classic sauces.

A Hollandaise is traditional, as is a lemon butter sauce.

Lemon Butter Sauce.

¼ cup lemon juice
dash salt
dash white pepper
¼ lb. butter, chilled

Boil down the lemon juice with the salt and pepper until it is reduced by two-thirds. Cut butter into eight pieces. Remove juice from heat and beat in two pieces of butter. Set over low heat and beat in the rest of the butter a few pieces at a time, to make a thick sauce. Remove from heat and serve.

Hollandaise

¼ cup butter
1 tbsp. lemon juice
¼ tsp. salt
dash white pepper
four egg yolks

Heat butter until bubbling. Place egg yolks, lemon juice, salt and pepper in blender. Turn blender on and off again quickly. Then turn to very high speed and slowly add the hot butter in a very thin stream. Turn off blender and serve immediately.

Cold asparagus can be served with a mustard sauce or in a simple French dressing or with home-made mayonnaise.

Mustard Sauce

two tbsp. Dijon mustard three tbsp. boiling water one-third cup oil
salt and pepper
one tsp. lemon juice
two tbsp. parsley

In a small mixing bowl, beat mustard with a wire whisk, adding the boiling water by droplets. Beat in the oil, also by droplets to make a thick, creamy sauce. Beat in salt, pepper and lemon juice and add parsley.

Asparagus Vinaigrette

asparagus
one clove garlic
½ tsp salt
¼ tsp pepper
one tsp oregano
¼ tsp mustard
2½ tbsp cider vinegar
¼ cup olive oil

Cook asparagus by your favorite method, leaving it slightly undercook. Drain well. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over the asparagus in a shallow glass or stainless steel pan. Cover tightly with foil and refrigerate for at least three hours, basting occasionally. Serve as a salad on a bed of lettuce or as a cold vegetable on the buffet table.

In traditional cuisine, asparagus is most often combined with eggs and cheese or chicken. Here are some classic recipes.

Asparagus Quiche

four eggs
1¼ cups milk
¼ tsp nutmeg
¼ tsp. pepper
one cup shredded swiss cheese
¼ cup mild onion, sliced
8 to 10 asparagus spears
unbaked pie shell.

Precook asparagus spears until just tender. Reserving about four inch sections of the tender tips, slice the bottom part of the stalks.

Preheat the oven to 400. In a large bowl, beat eggs slightly. Beat in 1¼ cups milk, nutmeg and pepper until well blended. Stir in diced asparagus. Sprinkle cheese and onion in the bottom of the pie shell and pour in egg mixt. Lay asparagus in egg mix, radiating from the centre. Place in oven and reduce heat to 375. Bake 35 minutes. Let pie cool 10 minutes, then cut and serve. Serves 6 to 8.

Chicken with Asparagus cold sliced chicken

toast

Lay chicken slices on top buttered toast. Add asparagus spears and top with warm Hollandaise. Serve immediately.

Asparagus Crepes with Tarragon Cheese Sauce

Crepes:
three eggs
two cups milk
one tsp. salt
one cup flour
one tbsp. butter, melted

Beat the eggs, add the milk, and beat together.

In another bowl, sift the flour and salt. Pour the egg and milk mixture into the flour slowly, mixing thoroughly. Stir briefly, add melted butter and mix it in well.

Pour the crepe batter onto a hot, greased griddle, one small ladle at a time, spreading the batter out thinly in a circle. When the crepes begin to form small bubbles over most its surface, use an egg flipper to turn it over. Cook for another minute or two, and then place on an ovenproof plate in a warm oven until serving.

This recipe makes 20 small, or 16 medium crepes.

Sauce:
two tbsp. butter
two tbsp. flour
one cup milk (approximately) two cups grated sharp cheddar
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. black pepper, coarsely ground one tbsp. dried tarragon, or more one dry white wine, approx.

Melt the butter in a saucepan. Add the flour slowly, stirring it into the butter to make a paste. Over low heat, add the milk bit by bit, stirring all the while so that there are no lumps. Increase the amount of milk as you require, to make a light, creamy sauce.

Add the salt, pepper and tarragon to the sauce. Gradually free to take a heavy hand with the tarragon since its flavor is what makes this sauce so distinctive. Add the cheese slowly, and stir until it is dissolved. Continue cooking over a low heat until the sauce becomes quite thick.

A few minutes before serving, add the wine, and stir the sauce vigorously, to lighten its consistency. More or less wine can be added as you require.

While the sauce is cooking, and while you are preparing the crepes, cook 20 spears of asparagus (five for each medium-sized crepe) according to your usual method, being sure to keep them bright green in color and cooked only until tender, not soggy.

Wrap five spears of asparagus in each crepe, rolling each one into a neat, slim cylinder. Place on a heated dinner plate, two for each person, or serve all together on a large, heated platter.

Pour the bubbling cheese sauce over the crepes, and garnish with fresh parsley.

Secretive Officials Plague Baffin Editor

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Baffin Island's largest newspaper has a circulation of about 1,200 and 12 percent circulation is handicap at Inuktitut. But, aside from Nadru Greenaway's problems are caused by secretive officials, the newspaper is highly informative, which is distributed all over Canada's North and in many other parts of the world, has trouble with government secrecy. Some local officials are approachable, she said, but others refuse to go beyond the traditional "no comment." (CP Photo)

Painter Started When 45

TORONTO (CP) — "I didn't paint until I was 45 years old, and then I painted rather vigorously late in."

The speaker is Sydney Fisher, 57-year-old professor emeritus of German literature at University of Toronto and international known scholar and author of perhaps the finest English translation of Goethe's Faust.

Professor Fisher and Robert Finch give Mr. Fairley the push into the world of professional painting, but he found excuses.

The new-productive painter, who has many oil-cans shows and 30 works in landscapes, said when Robert Finch took him out "sketching." That was a

"My style became established immediately," he said.

The rules which boys and critical men of the painted world thus is raw water, an earthy yellow-brown.

"I went to buy paints for the first time and the man asked new number, and I forgot again," Mr. Fairley said. "I can't paint without it now."

'Adult' Magazines Irk Milk Store Manager

EDMONTON (CP) — There's a store, including "a lot from more than a load of bread and silkscreen." He had received few a count of milk available at the complaints from customers, but store, it was claimed Tuesday.

"Adult" magazines, some more explicit than the glossy American variety, are grocery the shelves of many top-shelf outlets and late-night "convenience" stores.

"It's getting to the stage where they are becoming blamed obnoxious that the average, middle-of-the-road lady should appear both in English and Eskimo.

But Mrs. Greenaway sees no alternative to the main challenge. Until recently, all of it had to be translated from English.

"The whole concept of Eskimo news is different," she said. "We need more freedom for the staff in order to have a uniquely Eskimo style of newsgathering.

Harlem Dope Sold At Outdoor Market

NEW YORK (Hunter) — A deadly trade but police say they are unable to make more than a dent in it.

"Sure, we bust our officers down there," said a police captain. "But whenever an officer appears they just go around the corner."

Capt. John Emery is from Saturday's 30th precinct, one of New York's smallest but one of the most dangerous.

In 20 officers patrol an area 17 blocks long and five blocks wide that is always near the top in murder, narcotics and firearms arrests statistics.

The permanent population is around 38,000, virtually all black or Puerto Rican, but the area has a steady stream of transients.

They come to buy, to sell, to shoot narcotics," Henry said.

The outdoor heroin market flourishes in winter or summer, day or night.

Police often make several arrests in a day, sometimes seizing a caller with as many as 25 bags of heroin—what Henry calls a "high-quality dollar."

But what frustrates police is that a user may be called with heroin in his pockets, charged with either possession or trafficking and be back on the streets in days or even hours to buy and sell again.

The "revolving-door" junction is made possible, by court rulings which make "probable cause" a prerequisite for searching.

This means an arresting officer must prove to a judge's satisfaction that he had some concrete reason to believe a man was carrying narcotics.

This can be used to impossible for policemen proves, especially if faced by an able defense lawyer.

Henry said police have been forced to move away from undercover activities, often involving days of observation of a pusher.

"Those methods yield a far higher rate of conviction, up to 70 per cent in recent months.

Henry said illegal activity in the area is decreasing but many people in the community "really don't care."

"The cops can be on one side of the street and there they are on the other side, dealing," said Joseph Richards, spokesman of the Eighth Avenue Merchants' Association.

He said the only way local residents and businessmen can get action from the police is to call the precinct "and tell them they're beating up a cop—then they drop from the sky."

A recent New York state law provides for life imprisonment for narcotics traffickers convicted, the cops usually get convicted."

The money involved can be staggering. In a two-block area, on a day's heroin sales run into the tens of thousands of dollars and the Major numbers make up to $1,000 a day.

One high police official was asked recently whether the stepped-up police efforts in the Eighth Avenue merchant place might lead to its closure.

"I don't think so," he replied. "I think right now we're involved in a holding action and the whole thing is going to get a lot worse."

Pass Up Raises

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Dixie representatives of 56,000 south Florida building tradesmen have agreed to pass up pay raises in a one-year contract with nonunion subcontractors. Instead of more pay, carpenters and others will receive increased fringe benefits equal to 31 cents an hour, spokesman for the union and management said.

LUANDA, Angola (APX)—Diamond smugglers "exported" more than $60-million worth of gems from Angola in 1974, surpassing the legal trade for the year, the ministry of natural resources says.

Nurses Charge Lockout

OTTAWA (CP) — The union representing 1,200 federal government nurses has said it's charge before the public that staff relations board sanctioning Treasury Board chairman Charles Drury, Defence Minister Barney Danson and other cabinet and government officials with illegal actions following a one-day strike here.

The dispute arose over the legal actions here by officials of the National Defence Medical Centre. About a dozen nurses at the centre held a one-day legal walkout May 7 and about three have been forced away when they report for work. They were legally entitled to strike May 2.

Under laws applying to collective bargaining for the public service, the government does not have the right to lock out employees.

Trial Begins

HAMILTON (CP) — The Crown opened the presentation of its carefully-prepared case against former chief magistrate Kenneth Elliott and businessman Donald Fisher in the Hamilton dredging-scandal trial today with a promise that prosecutor Fred McLeod scheduled to deliver the opening address.

CN Silent

EDMONTON (CP) — A Canadian National Railways' executive would not tell the federal inquiry into boxcar marketing what profit the railway makes on shipments of grain to eastern Canada from Alberta.

Tom Norwood of Montreal, CN's market manager for food and agricultural products, Tuesday told Ike Barrilko, one of the inquiry commissioners, he was "not sure that was the case with that."

Nor would he say whether the railway prefers to carry live or dressed meat.

Davis Hits Back

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis brushed aside on Tuesday an assessments of $30 million in new provincial spending, largely for northern Ontario.

The one-page news report, prepared for delivery at a testimonial dinner for James Jessiman, Conservative member of the legislature for Port William, this premier instead spoke of past criticisms and accomplishments of his Conservative government.

Need No License

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the legislature's standing public accounts committee agreed Tuesday that there is nothing wrong with unlicensed bars operating at Queen's Park.

The committee decided at a meeting that there is no need for the government to license itself.

Beer and liquor is sold in two lounges in the legislature's basement — members' dining and a third floor press-gallery lounge.

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Ken Weinrich, 23, of Vancouver said Tuesday he plans to swim across Lake Ontario when he reaches Toronto in his jog from Vancouver to St. John's, Nfld.

Mr. Weinrich left Vancouver Dec. 2 and expects to arrive in St. John's in late July.

Publicity Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer Arthur Maloney said Tuesday that proceedings of the police department's internal trials should be made more open to the public.

New System

TORONTO —(CP) — A new driver's licence system classifying people according to the type of vehicles they drive will begin this fall, a spokesman for the ministry of transportation and communications said Tuesday.

The new system will not affect most people who now have driver's licence, Wally McCabe told in an interview. New drivers and those who wish to drive vehicles in different categories will be rotated under new standards, however.

Inconsistent

TORONTO (CP) — It is inconsistent for the provincial government to order its civil servants to refrain from political affiliation while allowing a member of the legislature to serve as a justice of the peace, Dennis (NDP—Hamilton Westworth) said Tuesday.

Robert Jessiman (PC—St. Catharines) is a part-time justice of the peace in his home riding.

Mr. Johnston said in an interview last week that he intends to continue both duties.

'Liberal Chicanery' Said Behind Delay

OTTAWA (CP) — A Progressive Conservative MP said Tuesday passage of legislation setting up a new crown corporation has been delayed in a Commons committee because of "Liberal chicanery."

Bids Identical

OTTAWA (CP) — Lloyd Crosse (PC—South Shore) said Tuesday in the Commons the successful bidder on a 1971 St. Lawrence River dredging contract might have had inside government information.

He said the bid was $20,000, not the same as a transport department estimate for the three-year project.

He asked whether the bid was "a unique coincidence" or whether someone in the transport department told the bidder the government estimate. Two other bids were $2 million to $10 million higher.

Buchanan Hopes Police Prompter

OTTAWA (CP) — During Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan said Tuesday he hopes other provincial police forces will act more quickly than they did last week in British Columbia after Indians blocked a railway line there.

Appearing before a Commons committee, Mr. Buchanan said he shared the concern of Progressive Conservative and other Liberals over a growing tendency toward violence among Indians.

The minister said he was a firm believer in peaceful demonstrations, but when Indians occupied government buildings, blockaded with government employees or barred access to others they were guilty of illegal acts.

Allmand Rejects Plea For Probe of Mounties

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand has rejected a request by civil liberties for an independent inquiry into the use of the RCMP tactical squad during an Indian demonstration on Parliament Hill last Sept. 30.

As a result, Don Whiteside, Ottawa Civil Liberties Association vice-president, said Tuesday, an association report documenting violent incidents probably will be handed to the Marin commission which is investigating the handling of citizens' complaints against the RCMP.

Mr. Whiteside said the government will be urged to ask the RCMP to restrain its handling anticipated Indian demonstrations this summer.

Indians have been demonstrating from Nova Scotia, leading to Indian confrontation.

Mr. McRae said he saw no signs that the department had asked the inquiry in Kenora, Ont., the scene of Indian unrest last year.

Pete Lamour, Mr. Buchanan's assistant deputy minister, said it might not be readily apparent but there had been discussions since last summer with the Indians, provincial authorities and Indian leaders.

Mr. Buchanan said the Indian claim to a Kenora park had been investigated and it had been found that no valid native claim could be made to the land.

Leader Missing

OTTAWA (CP) — Kermit Moore, president of the Native Council of Canada, was reported missing to police Tuesday.

The council represents 700,000 non-status Indians and Metis.

The 27-year-old executive has not been up in his Ottawa office since April 17. Members of his family asked the council to report his disappearance.

Mr. Moore arrived at the council and Mr. Moore had been working long hours arranging a meeting between council executive and the federal cabinet.

Post Office Faces Its Toughest Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — The two-month-old post office faces its toughest collective bargaining battles in the next few months as talks with a coalition of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) and the union get under way.

CUPW, only one of five unions negotiating contracts with the post office this year, is the most militant and aggressive adversary postal officials will have to face.

Automation and the use of casual labor were two of the key issues in the 1968 post office six-week strike by the 23,000-member Canadian Postal Employees Association and the 7,000-member Association of Postal Officials, a supervisory union; and the members of the general labor and trades group of the Public Service Alliance, who agreed to a contract after a strike earlier this year.

The postal workers presented their initial demands to the government April 17. Members of the union were pay demands that would increase hourly wages by $4.39, to $7.85 in one year; the right to negotiate local working hours arranging the use of casual labor; a reduction in the work week to 30 hours from 40 without loss in pay and bi-annual shift rotations.

The government came back five weeks later with a proposal for a 31.15-an-hour raise spread over 32 months.

CUPW national directors now are considering their next response to the government's counter-offer.

Builders Back Standards Bylaw

... Keller, vice-president of the Quinte Home Builders Association says the association will likely be satisfied with the proposed bylaw "if nothing else is done to it."

However, Mr. Keller said the association would like additional meetings with representatives of the committee.

"Through the subdividers involved in the association, the builders and city council have been able to break down a lot of the barriers of the days of old (because) everybody is ... make it possible for council approval.

The home builders held an executive meeting Monday to brief the association on the committee "with only a few things ... yet to be made," said Mr. Keller.

Also ... are more meetings ... we could have anything prepared for council," he said.

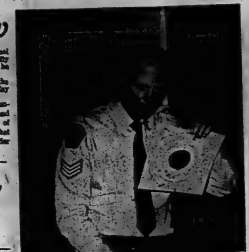
The document has been checked so as broad in its scope and in some areas would lead neighbors to police their own subdivisions. It has been ... directions to the attention of city fathers.

"There are a lot of things that need minor adjustments ... things that could be done in the bylaw," said Mr. Keller.

The public council has been very receptive in hearing the subdividers' comments regarding the proposed bylaw. "They're quite ready to change portions if they feel we are right. There's really good communication," he said.

The next meeting of the committee will be held May 22.

By that time I expect council will have researched and probably rejected most of the areas in the document that we have discussed in earlier meetings, said Mr. Keller.



Police Week Aim

One of the aims of Law Enforcement Week this week is to bring the police and public closer together, especially in regard to small children.

Sgt. Robert Hall of the city force seems to be emphasizing that point as he displays a target to the kindergarten class from Prince Charles Elementary School during a tour of the police department Tuesday.

Authority Gets Grant For New Headquarters

The Moira River Conservation Authority will receive a grant under the Conservation Authorities Act for preparation of plans and specifications of an authority administration building to be located in the city, Minister of the Environment, announced by Quinte MPP Richard Potter, in $4,000.

The authority's current office is in Thurlow Township Hall in Belleville. The new building, if arrangements can be made with city authorities, is proposed to be beside the parks board building at the West Moira Park, according to authority secretary-treasurer James McLeod.

Teachers Won't Back Any Political Party

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The Ontario Teachers Federation, (OTF), represented by three teachers' federations in Hastings County will not support any political party in the provincial election.

The decision was made at a joint meeting of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF), the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation (OPSMTF) and the Federation of Women Teachers' Association of Ontario (FWTAO) held recently at the Four Seasons. These three federations represent about 1,100 teachers in the county.

A spokesman for the OTF, Julie Carty, who is also Hastings District Labor Council president, said the parent federation will meet with all party organizers Thursday to discuss the stand taken by teachers in this county.

"We simply see ourselves as not serving the teachers by gathering and dispensing information about the parties," said Mrs. Carty, who has always rejected the notion that teachers in the province may support one party or the other in this election.

Mrs. Carty said teachers are free as individuals to work or support any one party. She said ... are teachers currently on the executive of the local branch of this country.

Last December the teachers in the county published some information sheets during the Quinte bombing election. The measure was criticized by the public service.

During the annual OSSTF convention in Toronto, delegates voted to accept a resolution that would ensure that the next Ontario government ... that it has its priorities, the areas of human resources ... to the total development of the people of this province.

The provincial OSSTF executive also gave local divisions the right to support a candidate or a party by whatever methods it chooses.

John Sawatzky has been a general contractor in Cobourg for the last 10 years.

The new boundaries for the Northumberland riding include Port Hope and Hope Township.

County to Examine Need For Restructuring Study

By COLIN BENCE
Staff Reporter

A study to investigate restructuring Hastings County joined forces with the 136 county elected and appointed officials Tuesday during a meeting held by the Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario.

Following approval of the motion representatives of the restructured municipalities of County of Oxford, Hamilton-Wentworth and Newcastle, Peterborough and Victoria, Hastings, Belleville and Trenton have been mandated to investigate the need for restructuring study but perhaps ... restructuring.

The motion to restructuring was brought by a local last year when Trenton was asked to participate in a similar study for the County of Northumberland. Trenton council ... the county, but the east had to offer and accepted ... to applaud the idea.

Though the warden agreed to hold a key position in the ... Warden Jack McCrea said his intention of trying to influence the outcome of the study, "if ... he is capable of trying to influence it."

"I'm personally against ... provincial government," he said. "I think ... responsible for ... a region are sometimes left with the dirty end of the stick. What form of government will cost money," he said.

Both Belleville Mayor Bobbie Anne Wallace and Trenton Mayor Patrick said their positions had not changed ... added for a study.

Mayor Patrick said "the bulk of the people here are interested in a study and I don't ... that's going to be changed by thinking," after today's meeting.

Mayor Patrick said, "My feeling ... particularly at a Hastings study though there is a western attitude ... Belleville is in favor of a study ... a position that has ... Mayor Wallace said ... favor."

Through this meeting, "the county is taking another look at the question of a study, ... is seeking an outside ... they can to re-assess the situation.

"We must not now before it is too late," said Mayor Jettrap. She pointed to studies ... Hastings County in the east and west of Hastings County and said, "I've don't ... knowledge ... how critical it is, we certainly could lose portions of our county" to these ... Mayor Jettrap said.

Warden McCrea said the county ... satisfied that a study will be re-introduced ... by the June meeting of county council.

Warden McCrea said a study ... is the government footing ... bill for a study ... "I don't ... to be convinced ... satisfied ... We'd like to have the government out of it."

"There's our own study (without government support) might be a better idea, he said.

Kiwanians Praised For Police Work

People who think only of themselves are damaging the values of society, says a member of the Belleville police department.

Insp. Ralph Blatchford of the force's services division told Belleville Kiwanians Tuesday, "there are people in our society who only live by the pronoun 'I.' They are leading society into the gutter."

Insp. Blatchford noted technological and scientific achievements have not changed the basics of man to the good. There are still frauds and thefts each day, he said.

But he pointed out there is hope for the future "because there are such organizations as Kiwanis."

"Children will learn from your example," he explained. "That is an honorable fact."

Insp. Blatchford urged, "let them see your service in your community, to your society. Let them not see your 'me' first."

It was 13 years ago that Insp. Blatchford joined the city force as a police constable in charge of traffic safety, particularly in the schools. "That was the main function of the police was one of the most gratifying I have ever had," he commented.

He praised the involvement of Kiwanians in police work, specifically the first donation of a traffic safety officer car in Ontario to the Belleville police. The club will also donate another car to the present safety officer, Sgt. Robert Hall.

Insp. Blatchford concluded, "the police and public must stand together. We need your support."

He pointed out, "you have a moral as well as a legal obligation to enhance law and order. The best protection the people can have, rests in ... to protect themselves.

"We (police) are really the front line of society," he said. It is my job to transform society and not be drawn into a compromise."

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Tuesday, May 13, 9:30 p.m. — malfunction of alarm system at Sir James Whitney School (OSD).

Fabricon Says Employees Won't Lose Jobs in Move

A Fabricon Manufacturing official today denied speculation that 140 Trenton plant employees will be without jobs when the factory moves to Belleville.

Speculation has ended up in Queens Park where Labor Minister John MacBeth stated in the house he would check into the status of workers at the Trenton plant.

But Labor minister was responding to a question from Ross Campbell, NDP Windsor West, who said Fabricon employees in Trenton were not assured by the company they would be given jobs in Belleville.

"They can't just let go all their workers in Trenton and take on a new staff of workers in Belleville" Mr. Bossard said.

Company controller in Trenton, Jack Tipler said the rumor of employees losing their jobs is "absolutely unfounded and untrue".

"Every employee that wants to go to the Belleville operation will be moved," he said.

Workers were informed of the transfer of company operations last week, said Mr. Tipler. "There wasn't much talk at that time."

Earlier this week, the company announced that due to shortage of expansion room in Trenton, the firm has purchased sufficient land in Belleville's north ... industrial park.

The new factory intends building a plant here that will employ approximately 300 after its first year of operation in the production of wire and cable products.

Plant manager Hans Altmanditger was not available for comment today regarding the employee situation but said earlier this week the Trenton facility would not be closed.

It is possible that the land ... building will be used as a warehouse facility.

Area Fund Drive Nets $30,000 For Battle Against Cancer

So far, the Belleville branch of the Canadian Cancer Society has raised more than $30,000 in its donations to be used in the fight against cancer.

Mrs. Jean Lindsay, chairman of the local committee, said during the ... "quotas of a large number of campaigns in the city this spring, a large number of individuals and firms are still to be contacted for donations."

The campaign so far has reached only the residential sector.

"I still have about 15 industries to contact or follow up before the campaign concludes," said Mr. Knudsen.

Local workers expect the campaign will top the $35,000 mark, a fund-raising chore which covers Hastings County, south of Highway 7.

While 25 per cent of the funds are held back for research, the remainder are spent to meet entirely locally in services in the area of Belleville.

During 1974 alone, more than $28,000 was spent transporting Belleville patients to Kingston for hospital treatment, said Mr. Knudsen.

"Any patient needing the help of the society is served through the funds collected in the campaign," said Mr. Knudsen.

Some of the campaign's largest donations was made Tuesday by the Belleville Yacht Club, a donation of $1,000 in the amount of $1,000.

Proceeds from the dinner will be used for research, said Mr. Knudsen.

Cigarette May Have Started Legion Blaze

By AL EARAS

COLBORNE — An unextinguished cigarette ... in a garbage container is suspected of causing the $200,000 blaze that destroyed the Royal Canadian Legion building here early Tuesday.

Colborne Fire Chief Ronald Whitehead said today he suspects the fire started when cigarette butts were thrown into the garbage can. The butts would have been ... when ... building was closed ... after it opened for the night.

He said he does not feel ... was involved in the blaze and has no plans to call in the Ontario Fire Marshall's office to investigate.

The chief says the two-storey brick building is "entirely a write off. We lost it." He estimated the loss at $200,000 thereby confirming an estimate made by Colborne clerk Allen Learmouth, Thursday.

During the 6½ hour blaze, firemen from Colborne and Brighton managed to extinguish the flames and save the chief. But flames ... he said he ... suspects were in the ... building of the first floor restarted the blaze.

Investigating operations took all day Tuesday after the fire was finally put out around 4 a.m.

The village landmark on King St. was originally built in 1846 as a public school.

The study question is expected to come before council at its June meeting.

Long and Short of It In Pitching Distances

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nolan Ryan pitched nine hitless innings, Jim Bibby pitched five and Ken Holtzman faced only one batter but all came away with victories in American League baseball action Tuesday night.

Ryan pitched six hitless innings and finished with his sixth career two-hitter as California's Angels' 3-0 victory over New York Yankees. Bibby allowed singles to the first two batters and then knocked off the next 15 in Texas Rangers' 5-0 triumph over Milwaukee Brewers. The game was called in the fifth inning because of rain.

And Holtzman, who had a 1-4 record in eight starts despite a fine 2.33 earned-run average, struck out Cesar Tovar to end a Boston rally in the fifth inning and was credited with the win in Oakland A's 9-5 triumph over the Red Sox when Joe Rudi's tie-breaking home run in the bottom of the fifth made him the pitcher of record.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore Orioles edged Chicago White Sox 3-2, Kansas City Royals beat Detroit Tigers 8-7 and Cleveland Indians defeated Minnesota Twins 4-3.

Ryan flirted with a record-tying fourth career no-hitter until Bobby Boods broke the spell with a leadoff single in the seventh. the Yankees' only clean hit. Ryan, who joined Oakland's Vida Blue and Don Sutton of Los Angeles as the only seven-game winners in the majors, struck out seven and walked five.

Cesar Tovar and Jim Spencer hit first-inning home runs off Jim Nelson as back Bibby's pitching. A heavy thunderstorm hit Arlington Stadium with two out in the bottom of the fifth and the umpires called it after a 1½-hour wait.

Rudi hit his fourth home run of the season in the fifth inning to break a 4-4 tie and Billy Williams added a three-run blast in the seventh. Holtzman made a rare relief appearance and struck out Carl Yastrzemski, the only batter he faced, to nail a four-run Boston rally in the fifth, capped by Rick Burleson's three-run double.

Tommy Davis' run-scoring double in the fifth inning broke a 3-3 tie and the Orioles went on to end Jim Kaat's 13-game winning streak behind the four-hit pitching of Ross Grimsley.

Kansas City stopped on Lerrin LaGrow for five runs in the second inning, one on a homer by Tony Solaita, and survived a four-run Detroit rally in the ninth. Solaita, who singled home a run in the fourth, led off the second with his towering homer. It bounced off the roof of the third deck, 29 feet away and about 100 feet up.

Rookie reliever Dennis Eckersley shut off a seventh-inning Minnesota rally and Cleveland capitalized on a unique bust double to defeat the Twins.

Cub Happy as Dodger

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although Chicago Cubs have the best winning percentage in major-league baseball, Burt Hooton says he would rather be with Los Angeles Dodgers.

The rejuvenated Hooton, obtained by the Dodgers from the Cubs on May 2 after a dismal start this season, showed his gratitude toward his new club Tuesday night by allowing only two hits in pitching Los Angeles to a 5-0 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

Hooton was ecstatic over his sparkling performance and the confidence the Dodgers have shown in him.

"As soon as I got here (with the Dodgers), I had a reversal of attitude," he said. "Maybe the Cubs have a winning attitude now and I admire what they're doing, but it just really didn't sink in with me. The thing is in a whole new start.

"Red Adams (Dodgers pitching coach) talked to me and got me back to doing the things I've once done right," Hooton said. "He put me back to squaring off toward home plate. He got me to slow down and get my arm working with my body."

While Hooton was shackling the Cardinals, Jerry Reuss of Pittsburgh Pirates and rookie Tom Underwood of Philadelphia Phillies also were pitching shutouts. Reuss stopped San Diego Padres 3-0 as three hits and timely homer beat Cincinnati Reds 4-0 on six hits.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cubs edged Houston Astros 5-1, Atlanta Braves whipped Montreal Expos 9-4 and San Francisco Giants and New York Mets battled to a 9-inning deadlock.

Hooton, who had an 0-3 record and a 7.20 earned-run average in five previous appearances this year, walked only one Cardinal Tuesday, struck out seven and faced only 32 batters—two over the minimum. The only hits off him were Ted Sizemore's double in the fourth and Luis Melendez' single in the ninth.

Jimmy Wynn drove in three Los Angeles runs with a home run and a single, and Rick Auerbach singled in two runs.

Reuss, in pitching his third consecutive complete game, struck out 13—his career high.

Frank Taveras, hitting only .111, drove in the Pirates first run with a triple. Reuss scored the second on Manny Sanguillen's sacrifice fly after leading off the eighth with a single.

ITS REVENGE

Underwood, bombed for six runs in one-third of an inning by Cincinnati in his major league debut last Aug. 19, gained revenge against the Reds by striking out nine batters for the second shutout of the season.

Henley Back With Cats

HAMILTON (CP) — Garney Henley, Hamilton Tiger-Cats' veteran defensive back and wide receiver, signed a contract Tuesday to play his 10th season in the Canadian Football League.

Henley, who was named the CFL's outstanding player in 1971, saw limited action as a wide receiver last year because of a knee injury but told Tiger-Cats' manager Ralph Sazio the knee was strong enough for another season.

"Garney wanted to play and, naturally, the knee holds up, he will," said Sazio.

Elsewhere, it also announced Tuesday the signing of import linebackers Robert Shaw from Harvard University and Jerry Williams from Indiana State University.

Off to Bermuda

Marg Ruttan, and Belleville Intermediate bowler, Jan Swatek, accept the women's trophy for the tournament's eighth annual Bowl Your Way to Bermuda tournament held in Toronto recently. Marg became the fourth local bowler in the event's eight years to win an expense-paid vacation in the event.

Belleville's Marg Ruttan Rolls Out in Style

There's no doubt. Pressure doesn't bother Marg Ruttan at all. In order to win the title section of the Brunswick Eighth Annual Bowl Your Way to Bermuda Tournament held in Toronto recently, Marg became the fourth local bowler in the event's eight years to win an expense-paid vacation in the event.

She had to roll three consecutive strikes, in and Dorothy Robinson of Longueuil, and rattled up what appeared to be a winning single (288). The local bowler was the only one who had a chance of clearing 288ap. After the ninth, she found herself on the verge, needing to roll out with three strikes.

Sure enough, Ruttan threw three perfect balls to complete the final pin fall of 300. She turned in all-opposite paid trip to Bermuda.

In the fourth Belleville bowler in the last three years to win a trip, Local pro Pat Hughes won the men's end of the tournament and Dennis Ireland won the women's. In '72 Linda Donahue won the women's.

Five local participants in the final for with three bowlers from each in the men's and women's. In the women's, along with Belleville and Lawson, Sault Ste. Marie, Thunder Bay and the host, Dufferin Lanes' campus bowls qualified.

Mary Boyle, a local bowler in the club's event, had short trip, but it was a big one for her. She not only won a car, but was named to Canada's Roy Brunsdon Cup team.

Other Brunswick Belleville Bowl members were Mike Smith, Keith Barkwood, Glen Shea and Warren Calbery.

Industrial League Games Not Exactly Squeekers

After two tight fits in the Belleville Industrial Softball League opener Monday night, the competition Tuesday came up rather flat. At Queen Elizabeth, the Post Office outlasted Belleville Lumber 16-15, Canadian Tire won Stamped 15-2 by Consolidation at St. MacKenzie Powell, and the Independent got trounced 13-1 by Belleville Yardmen at CNRA.

The Lumbers duo of Wellman and Marr gave up 24 walks and 13 hits in their loss while Norm Lockhart walked five and allowed 13 hits from the Post Office mound.

Married had a home run and a double to lead the Post Office at the plate and teammate Pogmore added a homer and a single. Campbell had three singles.

Marr and Maloney each pounded a four-sacker for the Lumbers and Bob Wilson added a pair of doubles and a single.

Canadian Tire led 2-1 at the end of the first inning, but Consolidation roared back with nine runs in the second to secure the win. Ken Kerik went the distance for the winners, also walking a pair and giving up just five hits.

Kerik was a one man show as he crashed out a single, two doubles and a homer. He got support from Bob Reid with a homer and a triple, Wayne May with a homer, Tom Cole with three singles and Steve Cayhoun with a double and two singles.

Ted Rollins responded for Canadian Tire with a four-bagger and a single.

Warren Jamieson went the distance for Belleville Yardmen striking out seven, walking four and allowing just two hand hits.

Barry Tamlin had a triple for the winners and Jerry Lucas had a single and a double. Bob McIntyre poked out a trio of singles.

Maple Leaf Mills is building a good reason to grow corn this year.

This is Maple Leaf Mills' new Cavan Feed Plant, scheduled for completion in the fall of 1975. It will provide a market for 30,000 tons of corn and a new source for the Master feed and farm supply needs of local agriculturalists. The new facility will employ 24 people and have an economic impact on the local economy of some three million dollars annually.

On completion, the Master Feeds outlet at the plant will offer you a complete range of livestock and poultry feeds in bags or bulk for pick up or delivery.

Maple Leaf Mills will naturally make sure that our own RX Line Hybrids are well stocked in the varieties best suited to the area. Also, to help local growers get the most from their fields, we're offering complete technical assistance and up-to-date seed corn and corn production information.

Our Cavan people are working full time with area growers and prospective growers with the full weight of Maple Leaf Mills research and expertise behind them.

Paul Davidson is the "Corn for Cavan" Project Manager. Paul grew up on a farm near Oakwood, Ontario. Paul's role is to promote new corn acreage in the Cavan area to meet the 30,000 ton appetite of the feed plant. Paul is available to speak to associations and individuals to discuss the impact of the new facility and the techniques of modern corn production. He can offer contracts, arrange financing, advise on crop insurance and help with all the related needs and products.

The new Master Feed Plant in Cavan. More room for corn. More opportunity to make money.

Aeros Grahame Earns Howe Award

HOUSTON (CP) — Houston Aeros goalie Ron Grahame won the World Hockey Association trophy for being the most valuable player in the post-season games and compiled a goals-against average that could hide behind a decimal point, all to prove his detractors wrong.

"I set one goal when I started this year and that was to prove that I belong and I've done that," Grahame said in Quebec, shortly after the Aeros had won their second straight WHA Avco World Cup title Monday by beating the Nordiques 7-3.

After the Aeros' crowd through three opponents to the playoffs, no one doubts Grahame belongs. Houston lost only one game in the playoffs, beating Cleveland 4-1 in the first series and then San Diego and Quebec 4-0 each.

Grahame finished the playoffs with 12 victories in 13 games and a goals against average of 2.05.

"At the first of the season, the Aeros took a backseat chance to letting Don McLeod go," Grahame said. "I wanted more than anything to enjoy them, and I'm here to say that was to put the Aeros' name on the (WHA championship) trophy again."

He did more than repay the Aeros—he gave them dividends. Grahame's 10 straight victories after the loss to Cleveland established a WHA playoff record.

McLeod, the club's leading goals last season, left the Aeros in a contract dispute. McLeod had credited the Aeros' defense with his performance and now so does Grahame.

Although Grahame is a rookie pro this season, Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League are interested in him. The Bruins have scouted Grahame for two months of the regular season.

"I don't know for sure what I want to do," he said. "I'll see what I want to do when the season end and have some time to think things over."

Ten Will Make OHA Major A Playoffs

TORONTO (CP) — Ten of the 13 teams in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior series will qualify for the playoffs, sponsors of the group decided Tuesday.

The governors approved a playoff format for the 1975-76 season putting the new Windsor Spitfires in the western division with Toronto Marlboros, London Knights, Kitchener Rangers, Hamilton Fincups and St. Catharines Black Hawks.

Eastern division members include Sudbury Wolves, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, Oshawa Generals, Peterborough Petes, Ottawa '67s and Kingston Canadians.

The new format calls for a balanced schedule of 66 games, four less than last season.

Only the first-place team in each division will miss the playoffs, which will be played within the respective divisions to determine the division winners, who will meet for the league playoff title.

Happy Hour Results In More Than Hangover

PHILADELPHIA (CP) It was "the happy hour" that saved the champion Philadelphia Flyers together for one monumental effort that won them an spot in the Stanley Cup final against Buffalo, says Flyer coach Fred Shero.

Sneezing in the rainy hole-office after the Flyers beat New York Islanders 4-1 and eliminated them in the National Hockey League best of seven final by a 4-2 margin, Shero told about the gathering of his players in an out of town hotel the night before the game.

"We had what we call a happy hour around five, o'clock, where we drink like hell as fast as you can because you're going to have a meeting in an hour."

The learned to the players, Shero said. "They were not afraid to kid each other and also give each other hell. They were not afraid to embarrass each other when they were having a few drinks. If they do this normally without drinking, they usually touch somebody in the ranks."

Shero went over the game plans, and then "group it in." The talk seemed to end with two men brandishing balloon

"I'll tell you one thing, some of those guys must be pretty good actors because they got a lot of practice on the video."

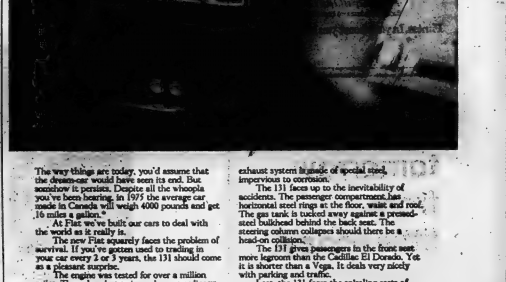
The new Fiat 131. It's not a dream car. It's a reality car.



The way things are today, you'd assume that the dream-car would have seen its end. But somehow it persists. Despite all the whoopla you've been hearing, in 1975 the average car made in Canada will weigh 4000 pounds and get 16 miles a gallon.*

At Fiat we've built our cars to deal with the world as it really is.

The new Fiat squarely faces the problem of survival. If you've gotten used to trading in your car every 2 or 3 years, the 131 should come as a pleasant surprise.

The engine was tested for over a million miles. The valves last twice as long as ordinary valves. The piston rings are plated with chromium. They last far longer than ordinary rings.

The 131 faces the problem of rust. Its entire underbody is sealed against the elements. The exhaust system is made of special steel, impervious to corrosion.

The 131 faces up to the inevitability of accidents. The passenger compartment has horizontal steel rings at the floor, waist and roof. The gas tank is tucked away against a pressed-steel bulkhead behind the back seat. The steering column collapses should there be a head-on collision.

The 131 gives passengers in the front seat more legroom than the Cadillac El Dorado. Yet it is shorter than a Vega. It deals very nicely with parking and traffic.

Last, the 131 faces the spiraling costs of owning a car. It's designed to be economical, not just on gas, but on day-to-day maintenance and repair.

In times like these, isn't the reality car starting to sound more and more like a dream?

4.5 Might Be Magic Number

SANTOS, Brazil (AP) — Head Tex's chances of the North American Soccer League Tuesday they have offered the legendary Pele $4.5 million in a final attempt to lure the Brazilian star out of retirement.

And Pele, after steadfastly refusing all previous deals, apparently is giving this one serious consideration.

The offer, made in a meeting between Pele and Tex club officials Tuesday, would be for three seasons, the club said.

Moreover, the team said, the Cosmos would pay all income tax on the wages that might be due to the U.S. government, and Pele would have to pay only his Brazilian income tax.

The 34-year-old star admitted the last offer left him somewhat confused. He said he had intended on a definite break and also want to come back because he lacked motivation.

"I'll only return if the money can perform some kind of magic," said Pele.

But apparently the offer of $4.5 million approaches magic. He says he will consider the offer and has asked the Cosmos to give him until the end of this week to make a final decision.

"These trials will probably bring out more surprises than any other CASA trials we've had in an interval."

The four-day championships, beginning Friday, will serve for selection of Canada's team for the Montreal Summer Games in Canada's Canada's July 30-31. A classical event will be chosen to compete in the Pan-American Games, scheduled May 30-June 7.

"This will be an extraordinary meet because of the conference," said Dr. Dick Taylor, chairman of the association's committee. The other Canadian meet has had so many world-class performers.

"In a list of the top 10 times posted in the world so far in 1975, 11 different Canadians appear 39 times. That shows the kind of performances of Mary Claridge, 15-year-old Halifax girl who won the 200-metre backstroke at the U.S. Nationals and Wendy Cook, who captured the existing world record. Her time was 2:14.07. Clark is 2:16.32, more than two seconds faster. Cook improved her best time this year by Wendy

It's the first time Canada has had a swimmer ranked No. 1 in the world in any one event.

DePape said the Barracks "We don't really know now how far we can go, but we're very hopeful she hasn't hit her first peak."

Garnick and Cook will duel on Sunday in the final of the 200-metre backstroke but it could be that neither will emerge vic-

Heidi Guehr of Edmonton, one of Canada's fourth finalists, finished third in the 200-metre backstroke in one of her strongest events.

"We'll have some of our veins are struggling, and there may be a couple of surprises coming from the world team," DePape said.

One of those facing a challenge is Newcomb Gonzalez of Coquitlam and Olympic silver medallist Leslie Cliff of Vancouver. The 30-year-old Gonzalez has been a strong member of Canada's national team for several years, but so far in 1975 hasn't been able to rival his top national ranking. She has been replaced by

Singh Prepared For Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Singh, his record to 11 victories in 13 who missed the Kentucky Derby because of a bruised foot injury, is back in shape ready to face Derby winner Foolish Pleasure and the other top three-year-olds in the Preakness.

The last male offspring of the great sire Bold Ruler, who died in 1971, Singh is rated an 8-5 choice in the field of 10 for Saturday's 100th running of the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico race course.

"I'd be a little more confident if he had a little more seasoning," said Hall-of-Fame trainer Jimmy Russell. "On the other hand, if he had the seasoning and had performed well, he wouldn't be here."

Singh won the Peter Pan, the Swift and a division of the Gotham before straining a medial ligament and being the Triple Crown trials without for the Wood Memorial.

That handed Singh out of the Wood and the Derby, and Foolish Pleasure went on to capture the Derby in record time.

The chestnut colt won the Preakness Prep by six lengths last Saturday, covering the 1 1-16 miles in 1:44 3-5.

Foolish Pleasure has been installed as the 6-to-5 favorite for the Preakness. Avatar, the Derby runner-up, is rated at 4 to 1 and Diabolo, third at Churchill Downs and owned by Frank Stronach of Vancouver, is 6 to 1. Two owners Singh and Master Derby, the No. 4 in the field is the Derby, at 8 to 1.

Ex-battery Mates Meet at Expos Expense

MONTREAL (CP) — Earl Williams of Atlanta Braves hooked up Tuesday with his former battery mate and finally got something to hit.

Williams, who previously roomed by the Braves when a former catcher with Baltimore Orioles, clouted two hits off Montreal pitcher Ken Sanders in a 4-2 victory over the Expos.

It marked Williams' first appearance in Montreal baseball, so far.

"It gives you a funny feeling when you're hitting against a guy you used to catch," said Williams of McNally, in his first year as an Expo after 12 full seasons with the American League Orioles.

"But that's part of the game, and no matter how good friends we are, I'm still trying to get a piece of him."

Williams, who scored the final Atlanta run in the sixth.

Paul Mangham opened and scored a run for the Expos in the first and they added another on Larry Parrish's base hit in the third. Pat Scanlon singled and Tony Scott belted a sacrifice fly for two Montreal runs in the seventh.

Braves starter Ron Reed, who gave up 10 hits, needed back-to-back relief help from Max Leon to halt downs his fourth win in seven decisions.

SIGN TOP PICK

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League said Tuesday they have signed Unit No. 1 draft pick, halfback Dave Brown of Michigan. Coach Chuck Noll said Brown would be tried initially as cornerback, where he will join veterans Mel Blount and J. T. Thomas or Mel Blount to win a starting job.

WILLIAMS SIGNED

WILLIAMSPORT (AP) — Mike Williams, right-handed pitcher from Bakersville, has been signed by the Philadelphia Phillies.

His contracting agent, Jack Hernandez, said Williams will report to the Phillies' farm team of the International League.

Darrell Evans clipped home-run No. 9 with a single and two scored on Williams's single. Bill Lee (4-3) took a bow-run triple and Lavell Blanks capped the scoring with a two-run single.

WHA Supports Draft Proposal

TORONTO (CP) — World Hockey Association executives Ben Hatskin and John Bassett said Tuesday they are in favor of the new Canadian Amateur Hockey League's proposal for a draft covering under-age players.

Hatskin, president of the Winnipeg Jets, and Bassett, president of the Toronto Toros, said he sees the CAHL proposal "as a bright move that is legally proper in everyone is involved.

The CAHL, formed last week by the Western Canada, Ontario and Quebec major junior leagues, proposed that it set an sale agent for all its players and would charge pro teams $10,000 for negotiating rights to each 18-year-old player and an additional $60,000 if the player turns pro.

The negotiating rights fee proposed by the CAHL does not include signing bonuses, which each club would be free to offer each player. The CAHL would also collect a share of individual $10,000 to sign. Graduated juniors over 20 would be exempt.

"The structure makes a lot of sense," Hatskin said. "It definitely appears to be a step in the right direction. The price is a bit high, however."

The CAHLIL proposes that the WHA and NHL would participate in a common draft of major junior players, taking turns picking. But NHL Governor Campbell has said the would not take part in any draft.

Bassett said he would like to make his executives the NHL before off, said Hatskin.

Hatskin said the CAHL proposal "does along with and is legally sound for all concerned."

Bassett claimed a controversy over signing of under-age juniors earlier this year when he signed 18-year-old Mark Napier of Toronto Marlboros in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior series. Bassett argued that it would be illegal not to allow an 18-year-old to take a crack at a pro hockey player if he wished to and was qualified to play in the pros.

Unoccupied workmen's trailers sit in front of the incomplete Olympic Stadium at Montreal Olympic Park Tuesday in this aerial picture. Construction strikes and severe labor disputes have halted work on the site again. This time the International Olympic Committee is seriously considering moving the games. (CP Photo)

Bourassa Will Sacrifice Games

ROME (AP) — The Inner cabinet of the Olympics huddled in a crisis meeting today after hearing the first official announcement from Canada that the 1976 Montreal Olympics are in trouble.

The meeting apparently would wrangle with the knotty question of finding a last-minute substitute for the Montreal site, should a wave of construction setbacks that began Tuesday force the Canadian city to give up a mighty struggle to stage the Games.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa told Olympic officials here, including International Olympic Committee (IOC) President Lord Killanin, that he would sacrifice the Games if it became necessary to preserve social order in his province.

Bourassa's remarks came Tuesday after violent clashes between police and workers who were on strike protesting proposed legislation to curb widespread unrest in the construction industry.

The crisis was not entirely unexpected. For months Killanin and other Olympic officials have been worried by strikes which have held up the building of Montreal's new 1976 million Olympic Stadium and the athletes' village. At iron workers' strike last winter forced a six-week shutdown of construction of the facilities.

The current round of Canadian strikes began last Thursday in reaction to pending labor legislation that would place key union locals under trusteeship and bar any persons convicted of a crime from holding union offices for five years.

The bills would also prevent any worker from participating in an illegal work slowdown or refusal to pay any money from impeding in an illegal lockout. The proposals include the stipulation that anyone charged would be presumed guilty until they had proven themselves innocent.

Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL), warned that the Games might have to be postponed to 1977 if the measures are made law.

But Bourassa said he had talked with Olympics officials in Rome earlier Tuesday, and that he found "there is no question of postponing the Games to 1977." Bourassa said the Games would "either be held in June, as I am convinced they will, or they will not be held at all."

There are strong feelings in Olympic circles that the IOC should still keep faith in the Canadian Olympic Association and hold the Games in June whatever happens. Presumably that means that if Montreal can not stage the Games, they might be spread around to other Canadian cities with suitable facilities.

The task of taking over the Olympic Games at a year's notice or less would be near impossible for most cities and not much easier even for cities with already adequate sports facilities.

Killanin Denies Meeting Took Place

ROME (CP) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, has denied reports the IOC held an emergency meeting about a statement by the premier of Quebec that the Montreal Olympics may have to be postponed.

"We did consider the normal part of the president of the organizing committee and the mayor of Montreal during IOC meetings in Lausanne and Thursday. No decision will be made before then," he told Reuter news agency here.

Lord Killanin said he was aware of Premier Robert Bourassa's statement that social order in Quebec must be kept at all costs.

"Barbecues. The word has many meanings. Like food cooked over an open fire, over coals, in a pit, on a spit or in front of a fire. But for most of us, a barbecue simply means an enjoyable outdoor get together with the family or friends. Everyone eagerly waiting for the steaks, hamburgers or hot dogs to be given that final turn to doneness. And the table set with potato chips, potato salad, mustard, relish and all your other favourite fixings that make a barbecue a delicious, meaty family affair, especially during holiday time. You can make your barbecue meats tastier, more moist and more flavourful by marinating or brushing them with a sauce during cooking. So try the following barbecue sauce. It's easy to make and will give your meat that added barbecue flavour."

Easy to Make Barbecue Sauce

1 cup tomato juice
1 cup consommé
1 tablespoon meat sauce
tarragon cloves
1 tablespoon freshly ground pepper
1 tablespoon salt
2 tablespoons wine vinegar
2 tablespoons onion juice
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 clove garlic, grated
½ cup sherry
parsley

1. Heat tomato juice, consommé and meat sauce with a sprig of tarragon, a sprig of thyme and two or three whole cloves.
2. Just before boiling, add other seasonings. Then add sherry and allow sauce to heat for a minute or two longer before serving.

Town Crier Being Sought

HALIFAX (CP) — Halifax has been looking for a town criier since last fall but has yet to find a suitable candidate.

The idea, a city official explained, ties in with the restoration of three acres of waterfront in which merchants are conducting business from refurbished shop fronts, some of them dating to the early 1800s. The city and the owners were looking for a suitable advertising medium.

"We wanted something that would reflect the integrity of the restoration and development project and get the message across," th official said.

Applicants for the crier's job should have experience and ability to communicate.

Did Dog Sense Distant Mishaps?

OMBAY (CP) — Dara, a mained in this panting conch seven-year-old Alsatian, refused tion.s Mrs. Bharucha called in to eat his breakfast for no re- the vet who said he saw nothing son. The dog became moody wrong with Dara.

and irritable. On the morning of the third

For two days the pet dog of day Mrs. Bharucha received a Parin Bharucha, a socially- telegram informing her that her prominent Bombay woman, re- daughter had been seriously injured in a mountain-climbing accident in the Himalayas.

The time of the accident and the time when the dog became irritable almost coincided.

Did the Alsatian instinctively sense the mountain accident more than 1,200 miles away? Was this a case of extra-sensory perception among canines?

Yes, said Mrs. Bharucha. Several dog lovers in India recall their pets with this extraordinary gift.

Madhav Purandare, a farmer in Nasik County, 100 miles from Bombay said "whenever my dog Chandra behaves strangely, I begin to anticipate something bad."

Chandra, a nine-year-old mongrel, refused to follow Purandare on a hunting trip one morning. The dog even bit his master, which was unusual.

"I cancelled the hunting trip," said Purandare. "I knew something was going to happen."

"That same afternoon there was a heavy thunderstorm and lightning struck at several places in the hunting area. Three villagers and a dozen water buffalo died."

According to reports in the Indian press, Federal Railway Minister Lalit Mishra's Pawa- nanian Chacko had a premonition of his master's recent assassination. Mishra died in a bomb attack.

The "Times of India group of newspapers reported that some 10 minutes before the fatal blast at Samastipur in Bihar state on the evening of Jan. 2, Chacko got restive in the minister's New Delhi home.

"Chacko became extremely restless and began barking at all and sundry as if it had a de- premonition of what was about to happen to his master. It remained disconsolate throughout the night. About 10 o'clock in the morning next day Chacko was found dead. Mr. Mishra himself was pronounced dead at 9:30 a.m."

Hydrogen Bombs Said Safe Source of Power

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — Hydrogen bombs exploded deep underground can produce enough electricity safely and cleanly to meet the world's energy needs, say scientists, birthplace of the atomic and hydrogen bombs, government scientists.

Dr. Harold Agnew, director of Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, birthplace of the atomic and hydrogen bombs, said the system would use a virtually inexhaustible fuel—deuterium, a hydrogen isotope that can be extracted from water and is the main ingredient in H-bombs.

Given an energy and cost outlook, said Dr. R. G. Sheffler, project director, his lab can build a prototype power plant producing as much as 1,000 megawatts of electricity by detonating a 30-kiloton bomb every 30 hours. On average the United States currently consumes about 275,000 megawatts from conventional nuclear power plants every hour.

Each thermonuclear explosion, equal to 60,000 tons of TNT, would be 2½ times as powerful as the atomic bomb that devastated Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945.

Yet, Sheffler said: "When this thing goes off, a person a few miles away wouldn't even know anything happened."

The technology for PACER, borrowed from weapons research and the petroleum industry, already is available, Sheffler said. Three years at the lab's drawing boards would polish the concept and complete its design, then field work could begin.

But, for all his confidence, Sheffler said: "We're going to have a hard time getting support in an era when no clear power is taking its lumps from practically every side."

The process would involve a sealed system with an underground cavity at the bottom connected by pipelines to a conventional power plant on the surface. The entire system would be filled with water.

Bombs dropped through pipes into the cavity would heat steam to 600 degrees Fahrenheit. The steam would be circulated to the surface, run through a heat exchanger to power the generators and returned to the cavity in a continuous cycle.
